TIMES

No. 65,944

CYCLING 45

Ultrich claims

Man de France

Hollioal

selected?

team leve

A12 15

1 1 1 1

The second second

Jan. 1921 (128)

of lower phone bills?

at a your call

क्षा कर्मा

RETURN OF THE DINOSAURS THE LOST WORLD

reviews the new Spielberg PAGE 33

Terry Waite on Hezbollah PLUS: Fritz Lang and Derek Walcott, PAGES 36, 37

HURSDAY JULY 17 1997

NOT QUITE HOME AND DRY

Tracey Capstick's sailor returns PAGE 48

BEST FOR JOBS

http://www.the-times.co.uk

1,012
Executive
] Manager	80K
IT director	55K
Graduate	20K

2-SECTION APPOINTMENTS

Tory ideas remodelled by Labour

Rebates plan for top-up pensions

THE Government will today announce a shake-up of pension provision, including a radical plan to give national insurance rebates to millions of people if they join flexible new personal schemes.

The centrepiece of the pro-posals will be chance for everyone to hold a second "stakeholder" pension to top up their basic state pension.

The National Insurance rebates, which may be worth about £10 a week, will go to those who join cheap-to-ad-minister schemes which will be organised so that they can be easily transferred from one employer to another.

John Denham, the Social Security Minister, will today launch a comprehensive review of provision for the over 60s in a tacit admission that the state alone can no longer cover provision for the elderly.

inflation, but the Government promises of the 1980s that it would keep nareases in line with earnings. Labour has also dropped its glan to provide a minimum guaranteed pension, higher than the basic state pension, for poorer

.The key new proposal to be announced today is the plan. for a second pension to complement the basic state-pension - an idea that bears similarities to the Conservatives' Basic Pension Plus idea for reforming the system. which was derided by Tony Blair before the election. Under Labour's plans, evervone who does not have their own occupational scheme will be encouraged to take out a personal pension. That could be run by a variety of different groups including mutual societies, co-operative societies, employers or groups of employers.

SERPS, the state earnings related pension scheme, will continue, at least in the short term. But those who opt out of the scheme will be given national insurance rebates which can be used to build up private provision.

Under Peter Lilley's plans for the Conservatives, people in their early twenties and below would have been given E9 a week rebates from their National Insurance contributions to put into their new pension funds. Although had intended to phase out SERPS. the Tories would have topped un each person's fund by 5 per cent of earnings.

The start up cost of that scheme was estimated at £160 billion by 2040. But Mr Lilley said that it would save £40. billion in the longer term.

Social security sources said yesterday that the aim of the Government's plan was to provide value-for-money, flexible and secure pension provision. One way of achieving that might be to encourage group pensions that could be adopted by a number of employers within an industry. such as car manufacturing or construction. The aim would be both to secure cheaper deals and to enable employees to transfer their scheme to

At present many people are believed to be deterred from taking out private provision because schemes are too expensive - charges can eat up a quarter of the value of the pension or more. But the Government is expected to limit the fees that firms will be able to charge.

The review will also look at the role of the state in approving second pensions, given the misselling scandal of the 1980s in which millions of people were advised to join unsuitable schemes and for which most are still awaiting compensation. Helen Liddell, the Economic Secretary to the Treasury has already warned the industry to "shape up" and one option being floated is to exclude from the new stakeholder scheme any pension firms that fail to settle claims

Harriet Harman, the Social Security Secretary is also keen ers eligible for income support take up their entitlement. Many old people are put off by the stigma of going to benefit offices to claim their extra cash. Ms Harman has suggested that these pensioners should be indentified and an alternative method of pay-

The review team to be announced by Mr Denham is expected to include a number of outsiders as well as government representatives. Social security sources said that the plans would also go out to wide consultation.

Jonathan Aitken heading for home surrounded by photographers and reporters during his brief foray yesterday back into the public eye

Aitken comeback ends with hasty retreat

By DAMIAN WHITWORTH

AFTER a period of resting in America, Jonathan Aitken made his-comeback on the public stage yesterday. He had strong audience got was not even Whitehall farce.

Mr Aitken, who is a bit down on his luck at the moment, had done his own pre-publicity. Earlier this week the fax machine in The Times newsroom whirted and out came a press release from Mr Aitken himself.

Writing in the third person, he said: "Jonathan Aitken is aware, from the large numbers of photographers stationed outside his home, that some media organisations are currently anxious to take pictures of him. To make life easier for all concerned, Mr Aitken is letting it be known that he will be walking across College Green, Westminster, at 5pm on Wednesday, July 16. At this brief photo opportunity Mr Aitken will say nothing beyond the terms of the statement issued today."

Clearly Mr Aitken had learnt something from his scrapping with the press. He had learnt that if you do an announcment that you are going to hang around College Green saying nothing is definitely odd - you will have the full attention of the press. At 5pm yesterday there were at least 100 photographers, television cameramen and reporters milling around on the green waiting for the show to

The problem started when he didn't arrive, Michael Jackson style, from the skies. As Mr Aitken was spotted approaching the green 50 yards away, a photographer (with an 8ft ladder) made his move towards him and a stampede followed.

If Mr Aitken or any of those bruised by yesterday's skirmish refer to it, when trying to impress their grand-children, as the Battle of College Green, they will be exaggerating a line, Like many engagements before it, this battle was over quickly and did not actually take place at the place after wnich ii was named. Mr Aliken never actually made it to College Green. Surrounded within seconds by the pack, with lenses telescoping up his

He squeezed clear but progress towards the patch of grass was slow. Mr Aitken looked rather taken aback by the turnout but not in the happy way that a pop star might be. Perhaps not for the first time in the past few weeks. Mr Aitken may have been wondering if he had done quite the right thing.

nostrils, Mr Aitken got himself trapped between a transit van and a wall.

It was unfortunate that he got swamped by photographers but one was tempted to ask; what had he expected? So we asked. But Mr Aitken.

Eventually, after refusing to answer any questions and inching forward through the pack he declared, with a touch of the prima donna: "I don't going to get to College Green. If this is the way you are going to behave, I am going back." And he did. His house is just around a couple of corners from the green. For the next ten minutes he shuffled towards home. On Little College Street Michael Brunson of ITN fell backwards over the kerb. "I'm sorry Michael, It's not my fault," Mr Aitken said.

Down Great Peter Street: "What do you think of the accusations in the Commons today that you committed perjury. Mr Aitken?"

Finally, into the home strait of Lord North Street. "Why did you do this, Mr Aitken?" And at last he answered: "I arranged it to be helpful to you," he Shares hit a record high

Shares rose to a record high yesterday as unemployment fell to its lowest level for seven

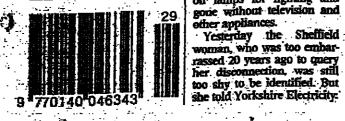

The FISE 100 index of leading shares came within a whisker of rising above 5,000. for the first time, peaking at 49% Sheliore slipping in late trading to close at 4964.2, a rise of 64.9 points on the day.

The downward trend in namploguesit continued in June as the number of people out of work fell for the sixteenth month to reach the lowest level since April 1990. Record levels, page 25. Stock market, page 31.

TV & RADIO 46, 47 CROSSWORDS, 24, 48 HETTERS 19 WELLIAM REES-MOGGIS ARTS 33-35 CHESS & BRIDGE 42 COURT & SOCIAL __20 SPORT 42 46, 48 TRAVEL NEWS ___22-23

Buylong The Times overseas

Anstria Sch 40. Entigium B Frs 100,
Comman II 90. Comman Str 525; Cyprus
Call 20. Desiment Dist 18,00; Finland
Fran 17,00; France F 16,00; Germany
III 6.56; Gibrasher 000; Greece Dr 550;
Neisseniandb F 1 550; Italy 1, 4,506;
Neisseniandb F 1,506; Marchand F 1,506;
Neisseniandb F 1,

Riddle of Versace's contact with gay killer 'years ago'

From Tom Rhodes in south beach, miami

ian fashion designer, may have met his alleged killer years ago, it was disclosed last

Although the FBI and police denied any previous contact between Versace, 50, and An-drew Cunanan, 27, the serial ing gay groups and killer believed to be responsible for his murder, it was reported that the two may have had a backstage encounter at the San Francisco Opera where the designer said: "I remember you." Maureen Orth, who has been researching an article on Mr Cunanan for the September issue of Vanity Fair, said she had spoken to friends who recalled the meeting on the West Coast some years ago. She did not think the two had been lovers.

The latest disclosure came as federal agents and state police launched a nationwide

GIANNI VERSACE, the Ital- He is already charged with one murder in Minnesota and is thought to be responsible for four others, including that of Versace, who was shot outside his ocean-front mansion on > Police were last night targeting gay groups and Aids bottimes for any information that might lead to his arrest. A police hotline received more than 100 calls and a group of 400 FBI agents trawled the streets of South Florida. Authorities were checking > airports, railway stations and ports for any sign of the missing man whom one officer described as a "chameleon of disguise". Thousands of posters, bearing two pictures of the alleged killer, have been circulated and police have issued an alert to Florida's gay community.

Mr Cunanan was said by the FBI to have been sighted in hunt for Mr Cunanan, a gay the neighbouring community prostitute who is HIV positive. the neighbouring community weeks before. A red Chevrolet pick-up truck, believed to have been stolen by Mr Cunanan from the scene of a New Jersey murder in May, was discovered close to the Versace palazzo.

Experts believe that Mr Cunanan had become a "spree killer", who may have wanted to wreak revenge after his contracted the Aids virus. He could be set off by any emotional uprising," said Robert Ressler, a former FBI behavioural scientist, "Health problems, such as a discovery that the individual found out he had Aids, could send him

Donatella Versace, the dead man's sister, and Santo, his brother, arrived by private jet from Milan yesterday to arrange for the funeral.

into a frenzy."

Into the darkness, page 13 Rachel Campbell-Johnston.

Brown to reopen debate on EMU

By PHILIP WEBSTER AND CHARLES BREMNER

GORDON BROWN will launch a national debate on European economic and monetary union today in a move that will revive the fiercest political controversy of the past five years.

The Chancellor believes that Britain cannot afford not to weigh up the benefits and pitfalls of membership -- even though it is unlikely to join in the first wave in 1999. And to get the debate going, he is to issue a Treasury guide for business on the practical im-plications of joining or staying out, and to set up a group to give business and public sector organisations advice about

He is also to announce publication of a 22-page report by Lord Currie, professor of economics at the London Business School, to promote "bet-ter informed and more reasoned discussion".

Eurosceptics will claim that the move is a sign that Brand survival, page 29 ministers are moving towards the single currency, but Mr Brown will tell the Royal Institute of International Affairs that the Government is concerned to have a serious debate "because whether Britain is in or out, it will have prfound implications for British business and the British economy". There should be informed discussion "about where Britain's national inter-

The Chancellor's aides deny that his speech will mark any change in the Government's stance on the single currency. Like John Major and Kenneth Clarke before him, Mr Brown believes that Britain cannot afford to stay out of the EU negotiations and he accepts that formidable obstacles remain to British membership

Mr Brown, who has been one of the Cabinet's leading Continued on page 2, col 7

> New EU, page II Leading article, page 19

Pensioner suffered 20-year power cut

By PAUL WILKINSON

AN 86-year-old woman has spent 20 years without electricity after thinking her supply was cut off because she used too little power.

She has used candles and oil lamps for lighting and gone without television and other appliances. Yesterday the Sheffield woman, who was too embar-home from shopping one day and some electricity board workers were digging outside. We have not had any electricity since. I remember a letter saying I didn't use much electricity so we thought we had been cut off because we weren't very good customers. "Over the years we just got used to it and cooked by gas. Obviously, we never knew a didge, or any modern gadgets."

alerted Yorkshire Electricity. They had assumed that the old lady was an eccentric and preferred a life without electricity. But after her husband died and she became more frail, they decided she needed some 20th century comforts.

The company checked its records and could find no indication of non-payment. Yesterday a spokeswoman said: "It appears the supply to the house was accidently cut off in the Seventies, At that It was earlier this year time, when bills were sent out.

the words 'Low user' were printed on them. This old lady obviously thought we did not regard her as a good customer and believed we had cut off her supply because her bills "As soon as we were alerted of her plight, we sent an electrician to her home, but because she had been without electricity for so long, her home needed rewiring before we could reconnect the supply."

The work was carried out free of charge.

Hague's changed a bit since she last saw him"

Esquire GREAT SUMMER ISSUE THE SHARPER READ FOR MEN EVERYTHING YOU NEED TO KNOW THIS SUMMER IMPRESS WOMEN PLUS FREE BOOK:

JACK KEROUAC'S

NEW ISSUE ON SALE NOW

THE NATIONAL MAGAZINE COMPANY LIMITED National Magazine House, 72 Broadwick Street, London, WIV 28P Edephone: 0171 479 5000 Facultate 0171 479 5454 A Substituty of The Hearst Corporation 1910

Gritty Frank rides a one-way ticket to Darwinian dead-end

pected pleasure of Belgium as a tourist destination is Antwerp Zoo. Situated near the station in a drizzly region of Flanders, this boasts one of the world's finest collections of Central African fauna. At its centre is a small herd of okapi.

The okapi is growing rare. With the markings of a faded zebra, the body of a stunted giraffe and the long tongue of an anteater, the beast is perfeetly adapted to lick termites off high branches in the Congo rainforest. Sadly it is not longside chips with equipped for much else. Its mayonnaise, an unex-coat no camouflage outside the sun-dappled forest floor, and hunted almost to extinction by pygmies, the okapi is — frank-ly — on a one-way ticket to

> Except Antwerp. Here history's last okapi huddle in the Belgian mist, an expression of infinite pathos betraying some half-sensed animal intimation that they are at a Darwinian

They are okapi and they are not ashamed. They could and would not be anything else. But they know that being an okapi is no longer where it's at, and that soon there may be no okani at all. Railway trains shunt and whistle in the distance, mayonnaise-flecked school parties giggle and goggle through the wire, and the okapi of Antwerp peer into the drizzle, remember a happier epoch when there were trees and sunshine and termites. and brace themselves for extinction.

Watching Frank Dobson at the Commons yesterday, I was carried mentally to Antwerp Zoo. The Secretary of State for Health is a socialist and he is not ashamed. He cannot and is on a one-way ticket to would not be anything else. But he knows that being a socialist is not where it's at in Tony Blair's new Labour Cabinet, and that soon there may be no socialists at all. Hunted almost to extinction by the tabloid newspapers, his ideological markings no longer any camouflage, even in Camden, he knows his career. nowhere.

Tories giggle and journalists goggle and Mr Dobson shakes his beard and rises at the dispatch box, his gritty gaze betraying some half-sensed animal intimation that he and his kind are at a Darwinian dead-end.

He remembers a happier epoch when there was red flag flew over Camden against GP fundholding alto-Town Hall ... And braces himself for extinction. But not

Dobson knows the knives are out for him but he is damned if he is going to give explain his plans to unpick the "two-tier" system by which GP tages for their patients. Mr Dobson had not however, come to abolish GP gether. He could tell from the cheers and jeers behind him that many Labour backbenchers still hold that view, and believe he shares it.

You could sense from Dobthe Cabinet butchers the ex- son's body language that he is cuse to sack him. Yesterday he anything but an enthusiast for had come to the Commons to fundholding. He described Tory NHS reforms as having been based "largely on the fundholders secure advan- advice of a heroin addict and fraudster". Backbenchers but to abolish fundholding

Clause 4 and the GLC, and the course old Labour was encourage them. They were Mandelson wields a mean blowpipe. Mr Dobson stuck doggedly to his brief. While there were termites left, even in this barren new Labour terrain, he would lick them. And when the pygmies come for him, as he knows they will, he will go with dignity into

> A collection of Matthew Parris's Parliamentary Sketches, I Couldn't Possibly Comment, is published by Robson Books.

Lab tests prove BSE can pass to human tissue

By NICK NUTTALL, TECHNOLOGY CORRESPONDENT

humans beings. British scien-tists have found. The research shows that infectious proteins. or prions, from contaminated beef can, in laboratory tests, transmit to human tissue to trigger brain infections. The findings may also have implications for lamb infected with scrapie.

The researchers have found that the proteins involved with scrapie can also infect human proteins. James Hope, who led the research at the institute for Animal Health in Newbury. Berkshire, said yesterday: We have shown that change in a particular human protein can be induced by the bovine infectious agent.'

However, he said the findings should be treated cautiously. To extrapolate this to say that bovine spongiform encephalopathy has been, or is being, transmitted to humans discounts a lot of other factors that are involved in cross-species transmission," he said. The scientists, whose work has been approved by the Ministry of Agriculture and is published in Nature, also found that scrapie can be ger a change in proteins. However, scrapie can be traced back 200 years, yet there is no evidence that infecting human proteins. "So you might actually infer that since the sheep and the bovine material convert the human ones at similar efficiency, BSE is not a risk factor for the disease. That would be the positive message," said Dr Hope, who is funded by the government's Biological and Biotechnological Sciences Research Council. A more pessimistic conclusion is that scrapie-infected lamb is a threat to humans and should be treated in a similar way to beef. "It really depends on whether you wear rose-tinted or doom-laden glasses," Dr Hope said. He pointed out that outside the laboratory a multitude of additional factors - such as the dose, strain, and route of infection - would affect transmission.

Beef infected with BSE is thought to have triggered a new strain of Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease, which strikes people at a much younger age than the normal version, causing symptoms of dementia ment of Health has recorded 19 confirmed and probable cases of "new variant" CJD. The patients are thought to people eating lamb have been have become infected in the BSE can be transmitted to humans beings. British scientists have found. The research and BSE were equally good at late 1980s, before strict controls came in to stop BSE-infected beef entering the human food chain.

Because of the disease's long incubation period, experts do not know if this is just the start of an epidemic that may kill thousands of people. Whether there is a serious epidemic will depend largely on how easily BSE can jump the species barrier and infect humans.

Brain diseases such as BSE, scrapie and CJD are thought to be caused by alterations to the molecular structure of proteins called prions. Nor-mally harmless prions become defective, and cause other prions with which they come into contact to alter in the same way, thus setting up a chain reaction of infection.

Dr Hope and his team showed that prion proteins from both BSE and scrapieinfected animal brains were able to convert human prion proteins into the dangerous form. But the efficiency of this reaction was much lower than the conversion of human prion protein by the defective prion associated with normal C/D.

Dr Hope said: "We have shown that there is a molecular barrier between cows and humans, but it's not an absolute barrier. It's just a question

Bernadette Martin: "She was such a special girl"

Let her be the last victim, says Ulster father

By NICHOLAS WATT, CHIEF IRELAND CORRESPONDENT

THE father of a Roman Catholic girl shot dead by a loyalist gunman issued an impassioned plea yesterday to re-publicans not to avenge her. Laurence Martin wept as he voiced the hope that Berna-dette, 18, would be the last victim of sectarian violence in Northern Ireland.

Speaking at the family home in Craigavon. Co Ar-magh, he said: "We do not want any repercussions or people claiming reprisals. If her death is the last death in this country, then maybe it is worth something and we can live in peace."

The RUC said yesterday that it was working on the premise that the killing in the early hours of Monday morning was sectarian. Miss Martin was shot four times in the head at close range as she lay asleep at the house of her Protestant boylriend in the staunchly loyalist village of Aghalee, Co Antrim. The gunman entered through an unlocked back door about 4am on Monday. Miss Martin died later that day in hospital in Belfast. Two men were questioned by police yesterday.

The victim's father said that he could not understand why anyone would murder his is hard to believe she really is gone. Whoever did that, I have forgive them, but God might never forgive them."

Mr Martin's wife, Margaret, was so devastated by the killing that she had not moved from her daughter's coffin since it arrived at the family home late on Monday night. Bernadette's boyfriend, Gordon Greene, is also devasta-

Mr Martin said: "We have spoken to him about what happened, but nobody is really making much sense at the minute. It's a hard time for everybody."
A stream of friends and relatives yesterday visited the Martins' house, on a mixed housing estate in the new town of Craigavon, to offer condo-lences. The Martins are a devout Catholic family, but the wellwishers included many of Bernadette's Protestant friends from the food factory where she met her poyfriend. Rodney McCaffrey, the personnel manager at Avondale Foods, said people were in a trance-like state". He added: "She was a very beautiful young girl, a very bubbly, popular young girl, very outgoing, a great lover of life."

The murder was initially thought to have been committed by the Loyalist Volunteer "She was such a special girl, group founded by renegade we loved her so very much, it members of the Ulster Volume teer Force. However, the LVF issued a coded statement last no feelings for them. I can night denying responsibility.

Sinn Fein will be able to join substantive talks simply on the basis of an IRA ceasefire.

The two Governments have said that the IRA would not have to begin decommissioning until progress has been

The Úlster Unionists have a more moderate position. Mr

Trimble says decommissioning must begin "at the commencement" of the sub-stantive talks. This means that as soon as Sinn Fein entered the talks, the IRA would have to start decommissioning.

All the parties who walked out yesterday will return next

Wednesday to vote on the Anglo-Irish paper. The DUP and the United Kingdom

Unionists will vote against the paper. This will be a setback, but the talks will not collapse unless the UUP rejects the paper. Ministers will be hoping that Mr Trimble's moder are stance indicates that he will accept the Anglo-Irish plan, although they accept that he needs guarantees that disarmament will take place.

made in the negotiations.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Alcopop sales to be curbed

will be announced today after growing concern about the scale of under-age drinking. The Government's action fol-lows the drinks industry's strengthening of its code of practice to restrict the promotion and packaging of drinks that appeal to children. Shops and pubs will be urged to boycott any alcopop that is in breach of the strengthened code, which will cover all drinks over 0.5 per cent alcohol and will regulate colour, consistency and labelling. A Government source said it was the industry's last chance to make self-regulation work.

Contest for new Scots assembly

The first Scottish Parliament in 300 years is to be the subject of an international architectural competition, the Scottish secretary Donald Dewar announced yesterday. The new Parliament building will be in Edinburgh and several sites are being considcred, including a number of greenfield locations. The competition will be launched later in the year, with a winner announced early in 1998.

Teachers setting more homework

Teachers are responding to government initiatives and already setting more home-work and raising their expec-tations of pupils, David Blunkett said yesterday. In-spections had found that primary schools in particular were making renewed attempts to raise standards, the Education and Employment Secretary told the annual conference of local authority leaders in Bristol

Heart-attack man sues for stress

In a test case that could establish an employer's legal liability for stress-related iliness, the manager of a shop in Taunton, Somerset, is suing his former employers claiming overwork brought on two heart attacks in nine months. Aidan Downing, 47, has been awarded legal aid to pursue his claim for £250,000 from the convenience store chain after the heart attacks left him unable to work

Lord Chancellor plans open house

The Lord Chancellor wants to make his official residence available for public tours if a 1650,000 refurbishment is approved Lord Irvine of Lairg. QC, has been criticised by Tory MPs over the proposed work although it is part of a conservation programme at the Palace of Westminister. His department said that the tours would appeal to people with a "genuine interest in historic buildings and art".

Unionists walk out of talks over disarmament plans By Nicholas Watt, Chief Ireland Correspondent Irish paper because London and Dublin have agreed that in protest at Government plans for disarming terrorists. The Democratic Unionists and the small United Kingdom Unionist Party left when a Northern Ireland Office minister refused to answer questions about an Anglo-Irish paper on disarmament. David Trimble, the Ulster Unionist leader, also left. He said, however, that he had not joined the walkout because he still hoped to amend Anglo-Irish plans on weapons.

Mr Trimble immediately telephoned Downing Street to ask for an early meeting with Tony Blair to demand that firm guarantees are written into the Anglo-irish paper to ensure that terrorists disarm. The Unionists left after Paul Murphy, the Political Dev-elopment Minister, read aloud an Anglo-Irish paper which clarified a document on disarming terrorists agreed last month by London and Dublin. Mr Murphy declined to answer a question from the Democratic Unionists because

UNIONISTS walked out of talks on the future of Northern Ireland at Stormont yesterday

he said that the paper had clarified the thinking of the two Governments and he did not have time to consult his

Peter Robinson, the deputy leader of the Democratic Unionists, who is firmly op-posed to the Anglo-Irish plans, waled out in protest. The MP for East Belfast accused the Government of refusing to answer his question because the Anglo-Irish paper had been cleared with Sinn Fein. The DUP rejects the Anglo-

Trimble sought early meeting with Tony Blair

Service to create a Department of Corrections. One ways in which the better integration of the two services could improve their performance and effectiveness and

Probation and jail services may merge

By Richard Ford, home correspondent

THE Probation Service could all options for reform includlose its independence in a merger with the Prison Service under a review of its operation ordered yesterday.

Jack Straw, the Home Secretary, began moves towards a shake-up of the criminal justice system after growing unhappiness at the Home Office about the record of the Probation Service.

His announcement came only two weeks after the Home Office infuriated the Probation Service by publishing figures showing that convicted criminals under the supervision of probation officers were being charged with murder at the rate of one a

The review, to be completed by December, will consider increase public confidence.

ing a merger with the Prison example being looked at is Sweden, which has a National Prisons and Probation Joyce Quin, the Prisons and Probation Minister, is to visit wants Britain to take a leading role in achieving that. Sweden shortly to study the system. She will also see how

The Chancellor's move on: EMU comes as Europe conwidespread tagging of offendfronts the need for drastic ers has allowed the country to changes in the way it is run cut its jail population and with the decision to begin the start closing some jails. process to admit Cyprus and In a written Commons anfive former communist counswer. Mr Straw said the Government would look at tries into the EU.

Britain is one of the most enthusiastic supporters of the enlargement of the Community and Mr Cook said yesterday that it was "a historic opportunity to enhance sec-

Debate on EMU

Continued from page T suporters of the principle of out Europe". Britain takes the single currency, has disover the rotating EU presidencussed his speech with Robin cy in January in time to lead Cook, the Foreign Secretary, and other ministers say that, the opening of negotiations with Poland, Hungary, the Czech Republic, Slovenia Eseven privately, he is not arguing the case for entry at tonia, and Cyprus.

The Commission's choice of the five countries must first be But he clearly wants to use the EMU discussions in endorsed by EU leaders at a Europe to push the case for December summit in wider economic reform and he Luxembourg

The expansion will be ac-companied by radical spending reforms to absorb the cost of taking in the five relatively poor former Eastern bloc countries. Britain will use its presidency in the first half of next year to push ahead with proposals to reform the Common Agri-cultural Policy which takes nearly half the current EU.

New EU, page 11 Leading article, page 19

SUMMER SALE.

50% DISCOUNTS. Now Available.

LARGER SIZE SUITS - FURTHER REDUCTIONS.

LONDON: NO. I SAVILE ROW WI, 18 LIME STREET EC3. HARRODS KNIGHTSBRIDGE SWI, SELFRIDGES OXFORD STREET WI. BATH, CHELTENHAM, CHESTER, WINCHESTER.

No.1 Savile Row, London

JENNERS OF EDINBURGH.

Women tried to seduce me, says professor police that a student did a mock striptease and kissed her friend in front of him in a calculated attempt to seduce him, a court was told

NAME AND ASSESSED.

Alcopop

sales to be curbed

· • Ø interest

海流す ふん

19 19 10 13

133.15

27.90

, 545€.../

The pair, having failed in their attempt to "humiliate, seduce, or set him up", decided to concoct a story that he had indecently assaulted them, Reading Crown

Court was told. John Cottingham, 54, claimed in that he had discussed the Marquis police interviews that he was the victim of a sexual "power ploy", when the students, aged 21 and 23.

taped interview played to the jury police. Nor had he fondled the in which he denies indecent breasts of both of them at the same time. "That is completely untrue." assault, he said: "They were trying to get a kick out of trying to seduce The idea that I could somehow simultaneously assault two grown or entice a respected professor." Professor Cottingham, head of women against their wills is absophilosophy at Reading University lutely ridiculous." He told police that after 25 years' teaching at the university, he was sufficiently aware of the possible consequences not to allow young women into his room. But when the canes, or the possibility that the pair asked at the garden party if they could see his books, he about my Oxford education and Descartes," he told them, obviously any possibility of impropriety simply did not enter

An academic accused of indecent assault claims he is the victim of a sexual power ploy, reports Lin Jenkins

As he tidied his paperwork, he turned round to find one had removed her tights. "I obviously registered astonishment, and she looked at me with a very knowing. slightly mocking expression, as if she was giving some sort of — I don't know -- challenge or come-on of some kind."

He said she stood up, turned to her friend, and said, "We have had hundreds of men, haven't we?" and her friend concurred. "She did a kind of mock striptease or a vamp, if you like. She pulled down the straps of her dress and took off her bra. Then she went up to the other girl, and sort of hugged her, and actually kissed her, and said, 'We do everything together, don't we?" At that point, he said, he was thinking that they were disturbed, or suffering from personal problems — possibly stemming from their complicated relationship. Another possibility was that their actions were a power ploy to seduce latter seemed to me the most likely explanation for this behaviour," he

while in the

"I said quite firmly, 'I'm sorry, don't think this is appropriate. I need to go home." They then left giggling and whispering that they needed to go to the lavatory. He was expecting them back to collect their things, but five minutes later a security porter arrived.

Professor Contingham said he was happily married with a 20year-old son at university and a 17-

evening, he had three drinks, and was not drunk. "In hindsight, I. made an error of judgment," he said. "It is a complete pack of lies, and that is very distressing and very damaging, and completely

They had done it "to humiliate,. seduce, and set me up in some way". Their likely aim had been to test him, or put him in a difficult situation. "Having failed to do that, they may have been alarmed themselves that they would get into trouble, and therefore decided to make a fuss," he said. The hearing continues today.

Eiffel Tower shut by the height of bad manners and a leading authority on Descartes, denied the students' claims de Sade or mentioned whips and

FROM BEN MACINTYRE IN PARIS

THOUSANDS of tourists were turned away from the Eiffel Tower yesterday when employees went on strike over the sacking of an official tour guide after a violent altercation with a holidaymaker suffering from vertigo.

Christine Harvey, a bestselling American writer who runs a marketing company in West Drayton, west London, claimed she and her friend, Hilde Bartlett, were "physically abused" by a rude and aggressive employee at the Paris landmark on June 17.

Mrs Harvey had become scared on the way to the second level, which is 150 metres high. She had tried to get out of the lift as the doors were about to close and asked the guide to let them stay on the first level. The 60 year-old tower worker, who is specifically employed to welcome. visitors, had refused and then allegetly berated and man-

"When we tried to ask him. about staying on the first level, he physically grabbed us by the shoulders and shoved us a distance of one. metre while shouting at us." Mrs Harvey wrote in a letter

the tower when she returned. shaken, to the Concorde-Lafayette Hotel

The tower management launched an investigation into the incident and, after obtaining further evidence from eyewitnesses, sacked the employee on Tuesday. The worked at the tower for 13 years, was given two months' pay and an additional sum to "take into account his personal situation".

His fellow workers promptly held a meeting to discuss the sacking and yesterday more than 50 of the tower's 180 employees went on strike, preventing access to the tower. The strikers claimed the guide had been the victim of unfair dismissal and insisted the incident had been Hugues de Bailliencourt. assistant secretary-general of the New Eiffel Tower Commanages the tower, said yesterday. "This was a very serious act by this employee. It was quite unacceptable. There are limits. Does someone have to commit a strangu-of complaint to the director of lation before they can be sacked? It was entirely up to Mrs Harvey if she wanted to stay on the first level. That was her choice."

Mrs Harvey has written five books on international business which have been translated into 20 languages. The latest, Secrets of World's top Sales Performers, sold 150,000 copies in America. Speaking from a hotel room in Los Angeles she declined to comment on the incident, saying: "It is all in the letters I wrote to the Eiffel Tower management."

Yesterday, unhappy tour-ists milled around beneath the tower as the boutiques selling souvenirs did a roaring trade. "It's a disaster," said Anne Wilkes, a teacher from Holly Lodge High School in Sandwell, near Birmingham. Miss Wilkes was accompanying 48 children from the school, who were left sweltering in the midday heat as she tried (and failed) to obtain an on-the-spot refund for pre-paid tickets to the tower. They're terribly disap-pointed. This was going to be the climax of the holiday,"

Tourists had to make do with a snack in the shadow of the Eiffel Tower yesterday

Homeless may beg for questions as tourist guides

BEGGARS who have been accused of blighting the centre of Bath could soon be employed to help visitors to find their way around it. The city's environmental task force wants to transform six homeless people into "streetwise" guides, giving them each a alary, a uniform, a mobile phone and a comb.

Their salaries of £10,000 to £14,000 would be met from the Welfare to Work programme under the plan to be considered tomorrow by officials and Labour members of the city's hung council. Dozens of beggars are drawn to Bath each year by its 4.5 million tourists, and some beggars are already rumoured to be making up to El00 a day.

Del Herod, leader of the Labour group on the newlyformed Bath and North East Somerset Council, said of the plan: "The jobless and homeless are suited to this job for a number of reasons. They are available, and many of them have a quite detailed knowledge of the city.

They could direct people to the best places in which to sit out in the sun, and give advice about the best nightclubs. They would be more switched on than the more traditional guides."

A spokesman for the environmental task force promised that recruits would, after rehabilitation and training, be required to "conform to the highest possible standard of presentation" with "clean, combed hair". Approaches are being made to possible partners from private enterprise. and it is hoped the guides will be at work by Christmas.

However, Malcolm Hanney, leader of the council's Conservative group, said: "It is nonsensical to think this could be running by Christmas. It seems to me to be a half-baked idea." Graham Iles, president of Bath's Chamber of Commerce, said: "While the underlying idea is highly commendable, I have serious reservations as to how realistic

Change of tune

Field sports parents halt school visit | Toast was premature for molester GP

By SIMON DE BRUXELLES

A VISIT to a deer sanctuary by a group of primary school children has been cancelled after objections from parents who support field sports.

Some parents of pupils at Dulverton First School, on Exmoor, refused to allow their children on the trip to the 225-acre deer reserve run by the League Against Cruel Sports. A letter about the outing for 61 five to seven-year-olds arrived last Thursday as some parents were at the Hyde Park rally to protest at government lans to ban field sports.

Charles Pope, head teacher of the 115pupil school, said: "Many objected and indicated they would withdraw their children for the day. To maintain the school's impartiality in this issue we decided to change the venue. We regret that sensitive political issues have been introduced into a school event with an educational purpose." The pupils went instead on nature walks.

Graham Sirl, of the league, said: "The children are not brought into our offices or shown the gory photographs of hunting or bombarded with propaganda. They go straight to the sanctuary to see the deer and visit the wildlife area. We do not promote the league, just the wildlife." Mai Treharne, of the British Field Sports Society, said: "The League Against Cruel Sports is a political organisation and delivers a political message. I can well understand parents returning from the magnificent rally in London and not wanting their children to visit."

NEWSPAPER photographs of a family doctor raising a glass of champagne to toast being cleared of sex charges prompted other patients to complain. Yesterday Regi-nald Myint was jailed for nine months for indecently assaulting one of them. Five women patients who felt that they, too, had been assaulted by Mynit at his practice in Stockport com-

on allegations made by a third woman.

February Myint was convict-ed of indecent assault of one, cleared of charges against a second but had to be retried Police began investigating

Yesterday at Minshull Street Crown Court, Man-plained to police. All claimed that they were molested by Myint, 54, during intimate examinations carried out between 1978 and 1987. Last chester, the retrial jury - who were not told of the other conviction - acquitted Myint of the last charge. They were asked to leave the court shortly before Judge Jonathan Geake sentenced the doctor to nine months' imprisonment for indecently assaulting a woman now aged 50. Myint now faces being struck off.

Myint in March 1994 when

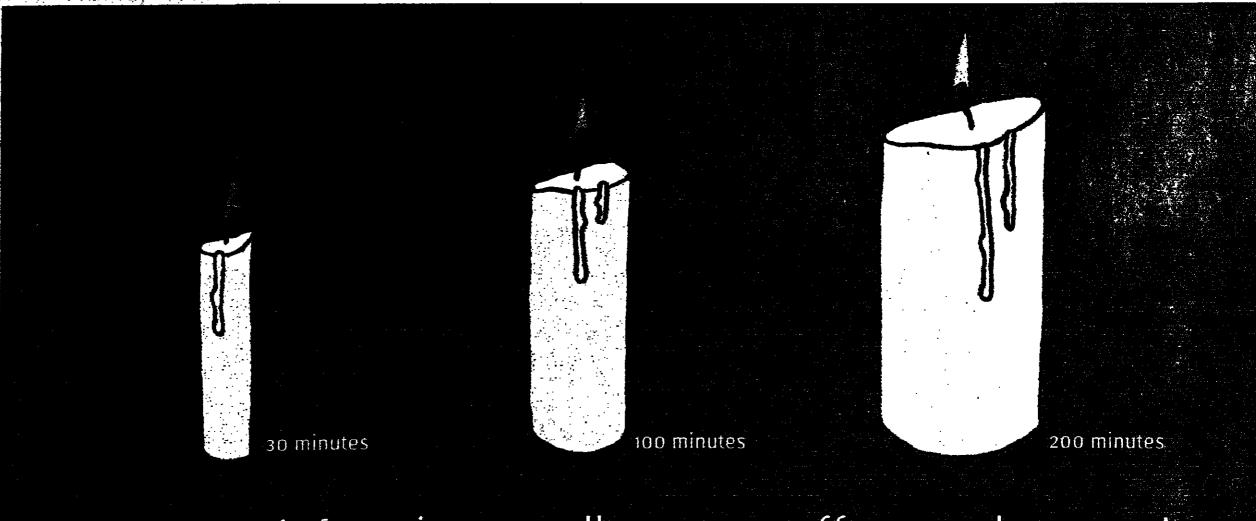

The Crown Prosecution Service decided not to press charges, but Myint was brought before a disciplinary hearing of the General Medical Council in January 1995

where he was cleared of serious professional mis-came forward to claim that he had indecently assaulted with so much free time to talk, no-one offers you better value

Whoever you want to have a One 2 One with, no other mobile phone service offers you more. For just £17.50 a month, vou get 30 minutes of free time. Or for £29 a month, you get 100 minutes of free time. And, for only £40 a month, you get a massive 200 minutes of free time. Or, if you prefer, you can still have free local calls all weekend. You choose.

Int details up local calls and free time recour swhy should you have a One 2 One with One 2 One?" leaflet. Prices quoted assume payment by direct debit.

one 2 mg 0500 500 121 the people to have a one-2 one with

THE TIMES THURSDAY JULY 17 1997

blong Kong

madend for Bowles

عِلَدًا مِنْ الْأَصِلُ

Judges tell vexatious priest: pray be silent

clared a vexatious litigant yesterday after launching legal proceedings 14 times in three years in his campaign to stop the ordination of women

On an application brought by the Attorney-General, two High Court judges barred the Rev Paul Williamson from starting fresh proceedings or continuing existing ones with-out High Court permission.

Although the judgment means the English and Welsh courts may have rid themselves of a turbulent priest, the Church of England was warned that it had not heard the last of him.

Mr. Williamson, 49, who has accused the Archbishop of Canterbury of treason and the General Synod of heresy, said after the hearing: I will pursue this matter with every fibre of my being while there is mortal breath in my body, ad nauseam, ad infinitum, ad eternum. St. Thomas à Becket lost his life standing up to the King for what he believed. The blood of martyrs is the seedbed of the Church, I commit my cause to my Lord and Court bar put on opponent of women priests, reports Michael Horsnell

Saviour Jesus Christ," He was refused leave to appeal against the judgment of Lord Justice Rose and Mr Justice Jowitt but said that he would take his case to the European Court of Justice.

Mr Williamson, priest-incharge of St George's Church, Feltham, west London, was backed in court by the Rev Ian Paisley, leader of the Democratic Unionist Party. Mr Pais-ley said he believed that Mr Williamson had put to the courts a valid question involving the legal standing of the Coronation Oath

"He was not being vexatious, but was trying to pursue answered." Mr Paisley said. Mr Williamson, a single man from Caithness who was ordained 25 years ago, owes £22,000 in legal costs. The Church of England is understood to have spent more than £60,000 on its costs. He maintains that the ordination of women breaches the Coronation Oath. He says it was "an abuse of the Oueen's assent and signature to procure a so-called validity for the measure and canon purporting to legalise heretical stesses in the Church of England".

lan Burnett, representing the Attorney-General, said Mr Williamson first launched proceedings in February 1994. The Archbishops of Canterbury and York had been accused of treason, and the Bishops of Southwark, Willesden and Bristol had also been

Most recently he sought to overturn the appointment of the Rev Lucy Winkett as a minor canon at St Paul's Cathedral. Despite repeated court defeats, rebuffs and warnings from judges that his actions were becoming "repet-itive and abusive", he had remained undeterred.

abuse by the vexatious and Mr Williamson told the persistent litigant." High Court judges: "I have not The Church of England sought to make myself obnoxremit. "He has now reached the end of the road as far as the courts are concerned. He has lost the legal battle. Unfortunately he will not accept this.

access of others to the courts.

and the courts are entitled to protect their procedures from

"Mr Williamson delays the ious. I have come with fear and trembling to these courts, with no legal training. I have had to organise my life as a parish priest while at the same time sitting up through the night reading Halsbury's Statutes. I have done this out of sincere belief and I find this case against me very hurtful. He said he had the greatest respect for the Queen and would be meeting her next week at a garden party. Giving judgment, Mr Justice Jowitt said he accepted the sincerity of Mr Williamson's beliefs about the ordination of women, which were shared by many others. But the courts could not express any view on because it was outside their

Ian Paisley at court with the Rev Paul Williamson

Andrews claims fiance's family upset her in court

By Joanna Bale

TRACIE ANDREWS, accused of the murder of her fiance, Lee Harvey, broke off from giving evidence yesterday to complain that his family were making remarks about her from the public gallery.

While answering questions from her lawyer, Ronald Thwaites, QC, Miss Andrews interrupted and said: "I'm sorry, I wan't put up with

Mr Thwaites said he had not heard anything and asked what she meant. She indicated Mr Harvey's parents, Ray and Maureen, and relatives sitting in the front row of the public gallery. Mr Harvey's family have reserved seats in the public gallery, which has been packed throughout the trial.

The judge, Mr Justice Buck-ley, said he had not heard any remarks but said anyone who would be asked to leave.

Miss Andrews, 28, of Alvechurch, Hereford and Worcester, finished giving evidence at Birmingham Crown Court yesterday. Later the court was told that a key defence witness had a string of convictions, including an attempt to pervert the course

Stephen Rodenhurst, owner of a demolition company, said that he had been involved in a road-rage incident earlier on the day of Mr Harvey's murder, a few miles away. A man had threatened to stab him in the neck.

Mr Rodenhurst said he had contacted Miss Andrews's solicitors after seeing an E-fit of a man allegedly involved in Mr Harvey's murder. David Crigman, QC, for the prosecution, said that Mr Rodenhurst had convictions dating back to 1979, including assault. He had served prison sentences and had been arrested and brought to the court yesterday after refusing to give evidence. Mr Rodenhurst said that he had been unhappy with the approach of Miss Andrews's solicitors, but stood by his account of the road-rage incident.

Miss Andrews denies mur

Crossroads may be dead end for Parker Bowles

TODAY Camilla Parker and who lives near by. The Bowles celebrates her fiftieth birthday. An essentially insignificant milestone on the route of the average woman's life may turn out to be more of a crossroads for the close friend of the Prince of Wales. The highlight of the celebrations happens tomorrow, when the Prince hosts a private but well-publicised party for Mrs Parker Bowles and a select group of friends at Highgrove, his Gloucestershire home. The event is the first firm acknowledgement of their relationship since the Prince's public confession of adultery on television.

Guests are expected to include the small circle of acquaintances who are in touch with both parties: the Earl and Countess of Shelburne, the Earl and Countess of Halifax, the Palmer-Tomkinsons, and nossibly Mrs Parker Bowles's sister Annabel, and her two children, Laura, 18, and Tom, 21, the latter now an undergraduate at Oxford.

However, no member of the Prince's family is thought to have been invited, certainly not his sons and not even his sister, the Princess Royal, to whom he is reasonably close imbalance only serves to underline the fact that the couple's relationship remains essentially undercover.

There has been some speculation that tomorrow's party will mark an end to secrecy, and that Mrs Parker Bowles will henceforth be seen and mentioned in public as the Prince's de facto companion. Sources close to the Prince deny any such thing and play down any suggestion that the couple's relationship may be placed on a more public footing. The Prince's senior staff are said to be terrified at the prospect.

Nor is there any real evidence, as has been suggested. of a concerted campaign by Mrs. Parker Bowles's few close associates to make her more publicly acceptable, alnow leads an impossible life.

"Constant attention from the paparazzi means she cannot go shopping, or take a walk, or any other normal activity. She has had to learn how to go to ground," one source said yesterday. "She is at a crossroads in her life, she is divorced, associated with a man who probably cannot and will not ever marry her, and her prospects are not at

Mrs Parker Bowles is acknowledged by those who know her as a notably tough. character, a trait inherited from her father, Bruce Shand, a tough old warrior now aged 80, who won a double Military Cross and demanded a hip replacement in his late 70s so that he could continue to ride to hounds.

For all her toughness, Mrs Parker Bowles may find that, as she reaches the crossroads today, all the obvious options may turn out to be blind alleys. Parker Bowles: party for selected friends Princess plans charity

DIANA. Princess of Wales, is gala evening to raise money to pay a private visit to Hong for the Society for the Promo-Kong in September to support a local hospice charity, making her the first member of the Royal Family to visit since the handover to China (Alan Hamilton writes).

The announcement was charity. made by her office at Kensingher sons continued their holiguests of Mohamed Al Fayed. the former colony, the Prin- given the trip their full cess will attend a dinner and approval.

trip to Hong Kong centre for the charity. On route she will attend a function in Singapore for an Aids Her Far East trip is regardton Palace as the Princess and ed as entirely private and she will not be representing the day in the South of France as British Government. The Foruests of Mohamed Al Fayed. eign Office and Buckingham During her two-day visit to Palace are understood to have

COMPREHENSIVE OWNERS £105

Low Cost Insurance for Peugeots Tel: 0117 929 4971 NOW! or Phone your Nearest Branch at the Local Rate on 0345 123111

Ask for a quote on the internet; http://www.hhh.co.uk. Hill House Hammond Over 250 Branches Nationwide

The new Deskpro. Now with an Ultra fast Hard Disk.

ource: IDC European Research Group Q1 1997 Unit Shipments. The Intel Inside logo and Pentium are registered trademarks and MMX is a trademark of intel Corporation.

COMPAQ DESKPRO - THE UK'S NO.1 DESKTOP PC* - NOW HAS EVEN MORE

pentium TO OFFER.

THE DESKPRO 4000, FOR EXAMPLE, COMES WITH A CHOICE OF PENTIUM® PROCESSORS WITH MMX™ TECHNOLOGY AND AN ULTRA ATA HARD DISK WHICH CAN TRANSFER TWICE AS MUCH DATA PER SECOND THAN BEFORE. SO YOU GET MORE POWER, MORE SPEED, MORE FEATURES.

AND MORE FOR YOUR MONEY.

FOR MORE INFORMATION, VISIT US AT www.compaq.co.uk or call us today on 0845 270 4270

COMPAQ COSTS YOU LESS THAN CHEAPER COMPUTERS

NEWS IN BRIEF

Spielberg

film extras

catch chill

Irish soldiers employed as extras in a recreation of the D-Day invasion for a new film directed by Steven Spielberg have become unwell, two with suspected hypothermia. More than 50 men were exposed to the elements of the Irish Sea

for up to two hours as scenes were being shot for the £45 million epic Saving Private

Most of the men, playing

American GIs, suffered chills, colds and sore throats but two were admitted to hospital in Wexford with suspected hypothermia. They were treated for exposure and released

Death damages

The family of a woman who died after a hospital needlessly gave her drugs to delay labour was awarded £226,000

Ryan, starring Tom Hanks.

Police fight for more cameras as road deaths fall

By Arthur Leathley, transport corresponden

MINISTERS were in conflict £8 million collected in fines as with senior police officers and motoring organisations last night over a Government refusal to let speeding fines pay for more spy cameras on dangerous roads.

The first detailed research into the impact of the speed cameras suggested yesterday that they contributed to a 70 per cent fall in deaths and marked reductions in the number and seriousness of accidents. Launching London's 400th camera site, near Ealing, west London, Gavin Strang, the Transport Minister, said: "Enforcement cameras have given a major boost to road safety. To those who say that speed in itself is not the cause of accidents, I urge you to look carefully at the

However, he insisted that a direct result of the cameras must be paid into the Treasury, and could not be retained by police to expand the network. The money for extra cameras would have to be found from existing budgets.

Police acknowledge privately that growing pressure on frequent maintenance of cameras and to moving them less often among the 1.800 sites. Industry sources say that only one in eight sites houses a working camera. "The trick is to know where the seven are," said an electronics expert.

Ministers argue that a fixedpenalty system in which fines are paid to police forces rather than central Government effectively decriminalise speeding. The Treasury is also reluctant to

FATAL ACCIDENTS DOWN TWO THIRDS

THE report published vesterday gives the most detailed analysis of the accident rate busy roads before and after the introduction of speed cameras.

The Highways Agency looked at ten west London roads, comparing three years from October 1992 with the previous 36 months. It found that after cameras were introduced the number of fatal accidents was 19, against 62 record speeding and traffic light and junction offences.

LISTENING to music in the car makes people better drivers - but only if the Researchers have found that people who drive to the accompaniment of pop and rock music have better reaction times and can avoid hazards more skilfully than those who drive in silence. But those who drove with the volume turned up braked far slower when objects such as a child running out into the street came into view.

Psychologists at the University of Sydney decided to study the effects of

in the previous three years. The number of serious accidents fell by more than a quarter, from 666 to 483.

There was a less marked reduction in minor accidents. from 3,074 to 2,832. Overall, the number of speed-related accidents dropped by nearly two thirds, from 470 to 166.

There are now 400 cameras on the capital's trunk roads to heavy bass.

music and driving after pulling up at response to arrows that appeared without traffic lights next to car shaking with a warning, according to New Scientist.

give up its power to collect fines centrally, fearing it would set a precedent for other penalties imposed by courts.

The cameras cost about £30,000 to buy and install, with a further £8,000 a year in maintenance. The research suggested that, even in the small survey area, they had saved about £60 million on accident costs, such as hospital treatment and insurance payouts for deaths.

There are almost 2,000 camera sites across Britain, installed by the Highways Agency and local authorities, and maintained by the police. Forces now have the power to install cameras themselves, but officers admit that they do not even have the resources to keep changing the film. Up to two thirds of cameras are not loaded to take photographs. Chief Superintendent Brian

Mackenzie, of the Police Superintendents Association. said of the report: "This is remarkable evidence. It's certainly something we'll be tak-ing up with the Home Office, and I think chief constables will redouble their efforts."

The AA said that cameras could be put to greater use, and called for better locations and greater resources. Andrew Howard, its head of road safety, said: "Cameras are there to cut speed and reduce accidents, not just to generate

"ghetto-blasting" stereo system with a Tracking the disc proved no problem for quiet music.

Chasing speed led to slower traffic

By Our Transport Correspondent

THE flashing camera that brings motorists out in a cold sweat owes its infamy to a driver intent on breaking any vulnerable speed record. Maurice Gatsonides, a Dutch racing driver, is the inspiration behind the camera, nicknamed the Gatso in his memory.

Gatsonides, a past winner of the Monte Carlo rally, developed the 'Gatsometer" in 1953 to give him accurate information on his practice times. Although his system failed to help any of the "drivers". But under the loud and quiet music they braked at a red light

50 milliseconds faster than when no music was playing. The scientists point out that this could mean a difference in braking distance of a couple of metres.

One of the biggest differences was between people hearing loud music and those hearing quiet music. In response to objects intruding on their peripheral vision, those people hearing the loud music were about 100 milliseconds slower

at braking than than those listening to a version that could be used to combat speeding.

Gatsonides, now 88, oversees a business that has exported the cameras to more than 20 countries, including the America. However, he is unable to claim responsibility for the original idea. An anonymous Parisian in 1900 was anxious to prove that road speed was a growing danger. Using a complex sequence of photographs and timings, he sent evidence to the Prefect of Police of vehicles reaching speeds of up to 10mph.

successful in recording his lap times that police in Amsterdam asked him to design camera, although from 1987 cameras were used to spot traffic-light offences. the first being installed in Nottingham. The passage of the 1991 Road Traffic Act enabled the introduction of speed cameras in 1992, the first being installed on the A316 Twickenham Bridge in west London.

> Serco, a Gloucester-based company that provides a range of public sector services, is the British agent for the Gatso, whose use to catch speeding drivers is expected to increase dramatically during the next five years. human or farm effluent.

Sleepy drivers 'like drunks'

By Our Technology Correspondent

day before the first night shift,

PEOPLE deprived of sleep for a couple of nights behave as if they are drunk drivers, scientists have found.

Researchers at Queen Elizabeth Hospital, in Woodville. South Australia tested 40 people. One group was given increasing amounts of alcohol and the other progressively deprived of sleep. They were then tested on skills such as group without sleep behaved

equivalent to 0.10 per cent. Some experts have voiced concern over a link between accidents among shift workers. and sleeping patterns. As hand and eye coordination.

After 17 hours, those in the about 50 per cent of shift like people with a blood alco-hol level of 0.05 per cent which and levels of fatigue on subse-quent night shifts can be even quent night shifts can be even higher, our data indicate that is equal to the drink-driving limit in many countries. After the performance impairment 24 hours of "sustained wakeassociated with shift work could be even greater than reported here," the scientists fulness", their coordination dropped to an alcohol intake say in Nature. The researchers, led by Drew Dawson, at the hospital's centre for sleep research. believe that their findings will allow sleep deprivation to be workers do not sleep on the expressed as a blood/alcohol at the High Court. West Kent Health Authority admitted treating Debbie Coram, 20, of Rainham, negligently. IRA charges Two men were charged in Dublin with the murder of postal van last year. Jeremiah Sheehy, 36, and Michael O'Neill, 46, were also charged with membership of the IRA.

Jerry McCabe, a policeman shot during an IRA raid on a Lake health alert Bathers and watersports enthusiasts have been barred from Lough Leane, one of the Lakes of Killarney in the west of Ireland, because of a potentially lethal blue-green algae. helieved to be caused by

Raid victim ill

A 94-year-old man was in hospital after having a heart attack while burglars ransacked his home. Kenneth Fisher, of Redcar, dialled 999 but the thieves fled before police arrived. A clock was

Baby's escape

Nine-month-old Jade Lindsay escaped with minor cuts after being thrown through the passenger window of a car. still strapped into her safety seat. She landed on a traffic island 20ft away after the

THE DIRECT LINE SAVINGS CHALLENGE

Keeping cars in tune is safer

By NICK NUTTALL, TECHNOLOGY CORRESPONDENT

The researchers recruited 60 men and women aged between 20 and 28 to see how they fared on simulated driving tests

under three noise conditions: silence, rock music played at 55 decibels and the same pigs were asked to sit in front of a simulator with a steering wheel and accelerator and brake foot-pedals. They had to track a moving disc on screen, respond to traffic lights, and brake in music blaring at 85 decibels. The guinea-

Do the Woolwich, Halifax and Alliance & Leicester match our savings rates? nswe See below.

	£1- £4,999	£5,000- £9,999	£10,000- £24,999	£25,000- £49,999	£50,000- £99,999	£100,000+
Direct Line Instant Access Account	5.15%	5.50%	6.15%	6.25%	6.50%	6.60%
Halifax Solid Gold (30 Day Notice)	3.50% [†]	4.25%	4.65%	5.00%	5.10%	5.10%
Woolwich Premier 90 (90 Day Notice)	N/A	4.50%	4.75%	5.50%	5.75%	6.00% ^{tt}
Alliance & Leicester Prime 90 Share (90 Day)	4.40%	5.10%	5.80%	5.85%	5.90%	6.15%
All rates are gross*, based of Rate effective from £500.	From £200,00	ment of inter 0 rate is 6.50	rest and correct. Rate effe	ct at 8th July i	997. Source: 100.	Moneylacts.

- As the table shows, the Direct Line Instant Access account beats these notice accounts.
- And with Direct Line you get high returns without locking your money away for up to 90 days.
- The more savings you have the higher our rates get.
- You can pool your savings with family or friends for even higher returns.
- · If you want your savings to grow quicker than they are in the Woolwich, Halifax or Alliance & Leicester, call Direct Line.

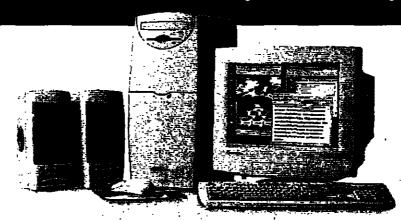

0181 667 1121 LONDON

0161 833 1121 MANCHESTER 0141 221 1121 GLASGOW

CALL ANYTIME 8am to 8pm Monday to Friday and 9am to 5pm Saturday. Please quote ref. TT99 A Royal Bank of Scotland company. www.directline.co.uk

Savings are provided by Direct Line Financial Services Limited, 250 St. Vincent Street, Glasgow, G2 55H, which is a member weil: Protection Scheme established under the Banking Act 1987 (as amended). Payer photoe's total deposits subject to a maximum payment to any one depositor of £18,000 (or ECU 28,000 if greater). Further details of the Scheme are available on request. "The gross rate is the rate puld without the deducti All rates shown are subject to variation. For your aided security telephone calls may be recorded and the record telephone calls with the aim of improving our service to you. Direct Line and the red to are the trademarks of Direct Line Insurance pic and used with its permis

You Get More For Your Money At Gateway 2000!

The Gateway 2000 P5-200SP multimedia system gives you great looks and great sounds at a great price.

Check out what we've packed inside this PC -- an Intel 200MHz Pentium Processor with MMX technology, huge hard drive, loads of memory, great sound system, excellent graphics, 15-inch CrystalScan monitor and top-notch voice/fax modem. And that's just the hardware!

All Gateway 2000° systems also come with Microsoft Windows 95 and the MS Office 97 Small Business Edition Plus suite of software pre-loaded. When your PC arrives, just pash a button and you'll be computing in no time!

At Gateway 2000, we care about you. That's why we offer you award-winning service and support, including free telephone technical support on all our hardware and software for as long as you own your PC. You also get a 30-day noquibble money-back guarantee (shipping costs not refundable) and Gateway 2000 warranties.

And the best part, the price! Gateway 2000 is the spot to buy a PC — give us a call today!

- Intel 200MHz Pentium® Processor with MMX™ Technology
- 16MB High Performance SDRAM ■ 512K 15ns Pipeline Burst L2 Cache
- 3.5" 1.44MB Floppy Disk Drive ■ Mitsumi 12X min/16X max 120ms CD-ROM Drive
- Western Digital 2.5GB 12ms EIDE Hard Drive ■ Ensoniq® Wavetable 32-bit PCI SoundChip
- Alteco Lansing ACS41 7W Speakers
- ATI RAGE II+ Graphics Accelerator with 2MB SGRAM ■ BuroViva 33.6K Fax/Data/Voice Modem
- 15" CrystalScare TCO-92 0.28dp Monitor
- ATX Tower Case: 5 External & 3 Internal Drive Bays
- Microsoft® Windows®95 105 Keyboard ■ MS® Windows 95, MS IntelliMouse
- MS Office 97 Small Business Edition Plus 3 Year Limited Warranty
- £1149 (£1384.15 inc. VAT & Delivery)*

Drop by the Gateway 2000 Showroom, 10 Bedford Street, Covent Garden, London WCZE 9HE. You'll be glad you did!

Showroom Hours of Business: 12.30 pm - 6.30 pm Mondays 9.30 am - 6.30 pm Tuesday - Friday 10.00 am - 4.00 pm Saturdays Closed Sundays and Bank Holidays

*Limited stocks only. Don't delay - call today!

Cateway 2000 • Cloushaugh Industrial Estate • Dublin 17 • Ireland.

Port staff to be charged over Sea Empress

Errors highlighted in report include communication failures and lack of equipment, Arthur Leathley reports

CRIMINAL charges are to be lished yesterday prompted the brought against senior har-bour managers over the Sea Empress oil disaster last year: A string of errors and communications failures led to serious delays in trying to catch chil

Spielberg *

stem the flow of 72,000 tonnes of crude oil from the stricken ship. Huge stretches of the South Wales coast were

A highly critical report pub-

Andrews: was on duty during the incident

Environment Agency to take the rare step of prosecuting both Mark Andrews, the harbourmaster who was on duty during the incident, and Milford Haven Port Authority. The decision to bring criminal charges underlined the severity that the Environment Agency attached to the spillage, which killed or injured more than 7,000 seabirds. The penalty for conviction under the Water Resources Act is a maximum of three months in prison and a fine of £20,000 if the case is heard by magistrates, or a two-year sentence or unlimited fine if the case goes to a control the spillage Friends of the Earth, which is still considering bringing a private prosecution against the Government, called for former ministers to be brought to court to explain the reason for shortages of equip-

Crown Court. The charges

allege that public nuisance

was caused by failures to

The Sea Empress, which ran aground in February last year, spilling 72,000 tonnes of crude oil into the sea off Milford Haven. Thousands of seabirds were harmed ment. It took six days to rescue Haven. There were insuffithe ship after it had been removed from rocks but ran

With 4 valves per cylinder and

The car's performance is matched

With 4 valves per cylinder and the car's performance is indicated with 4 valves per cylinder and not a car that you would SUFFIN ALFACARE variable valve timing you'll benefit from only by its safety. It features AB5 is just $13,845.48 for the 1.6 16V and not a car that you would SUFFIN ALFACARE variable valve timing you'll benefit from only by its safety. It features AB5 is just $13,845.48 for the 1.6 16V and not a car that you would SUFFIN ALFACARE

Valida shows: Alia Roman 145 1.8 Their Sports. On the med prior includes $595 for delivery to declar, number plates, $40 and 1200 for the vehicle not have been prior included with first mentality payment. "Option to return vehicle and not pay Final Payment vehicle and not pay Final Payment vehicle and not prior includes $250 for the result of the vehicle not have the agreed artisage of 12,000 miles per assume and being in good condition. Final Payment includes $250 fortion fine. Minimum deposit 10% of cost, prior. The Figures shown are correct at time of printing Jone-August 1997. Strange available to suppose aged 18 or over, subject to states. A governoon and/or independs suppose aged 18 or over, subject to states. A governoon and/or independs payment are correct at time of printing Jone-August 1997. Strange available to response aged 18 or over, subject to states. A governoon and/or independs payment are correct at time of printing Jone-August 1997. Strange available to response aged 18 or over, subject to states. A governoon and/or independs payment are correct at time of printing Jone-August 1997. Strange available to response aged 18 or over, subject to states. A governoon and/or independs payment.

Without a contract of the response aged 18 or over, subject to states. A governoon and/or independs and payment are correct at time of printing Jone-August 1997. Strange and the response aged 18 or over, subject to states. A governoon and/or independent and payment are contract and payment.

Without a printing and a subject to states a subject to states. A governoon and/or independent and payment are contract and payme improved driving fluidity in town along with all round disc brakes that are with Preferenza, Alfa Romeo's personal want to pass you by.

aground a second time.

that there were widespread failures, starting with mis-takes made by the pilot guid-

cient tugs of the right power and manoeuvrability, and a lack of full understanding of Yesterday, the final report the tidal currents in the area, the report concluded. by the Transport Depart-After the initial stages of the ment's marine accident investigation branch made clear accident in February 1996. "the incident was outside the scope of Milford Haven Port Authority's emergency plans". ing the tanker into Milford the report said. It added that onshore management "became too large and unwieldy to cope with a rapidly moving salvage incident and suggested that the Government should have been advised by a commercial sal-

The 147,000-tonne Liberianregistered tanker had sailed from Scotland and was being guided into the port by John ford Haven were unsatisfactory. The investigation branch keep the vessel in the deepest also said there was a "confronpart of the middle channel tational relationship between the authority and the pilot" and this could not be "conduleading into the port, it added: The pilot's error was due in part to inadequate training

The report said that the standards of training and examination of pilots at Mil-

cive to the safe operation of the and experience in the pilotage Mr Pearn was found guilty of incompetence at a Milford Haven Port Authority inquiry last year and was demoted.

dealer. This, after all, is 3-YEAR against the decision and was able to resume working with large tankers.

The long-term damage caused by the Sea Empress oil spillage is still being evaluated, but conservationists generally agree that it has not been

Dolphins in wild use sponges as tools

BY NICK NUTTALL ENVIRONMENT CORRESPONDENT

DOLPHINS may be even brighter than scientists had supposed after the discovery that, like people and apes, they use tools in the wild.

American scientists have spotted dolphins using sponges as tools in Shark Bay. Western Australia. The researchers believe animals employ the sponges to ward off attackers or to find food. Five female dolphins were observed carrying sponges around on the tips of their

The researchers from the University of Michigan believe the sponges may protect dolphins searching for food on the seabed from the hazardous spines and stings of creatures such as stonelish and stingrays.

They may also help them find food. They may be dragging the sponges along the scaffoor to stir up prey, said Rachel Smolker, who led the research. The observations, published in the journal Ethology, are thought to be the first evidence of practical use of tools by dolphins in the aceuay 2001.

ş...;.2-1----# 1 172 7. 5.

Mark Simmonds, a marine scientist at the Whale and Dolphin Conservation Society in Bath, said the findings were extremely interesting. In captivity, dolphins could be. taught to balance objects on their noses or pull levers. In the wild they had been seen playing with floating seaweed. plastic or netting.

Of the new study, he said: The important point is that seems to be serving some

A day out with all the fun of the queue

CORRESPONDENT

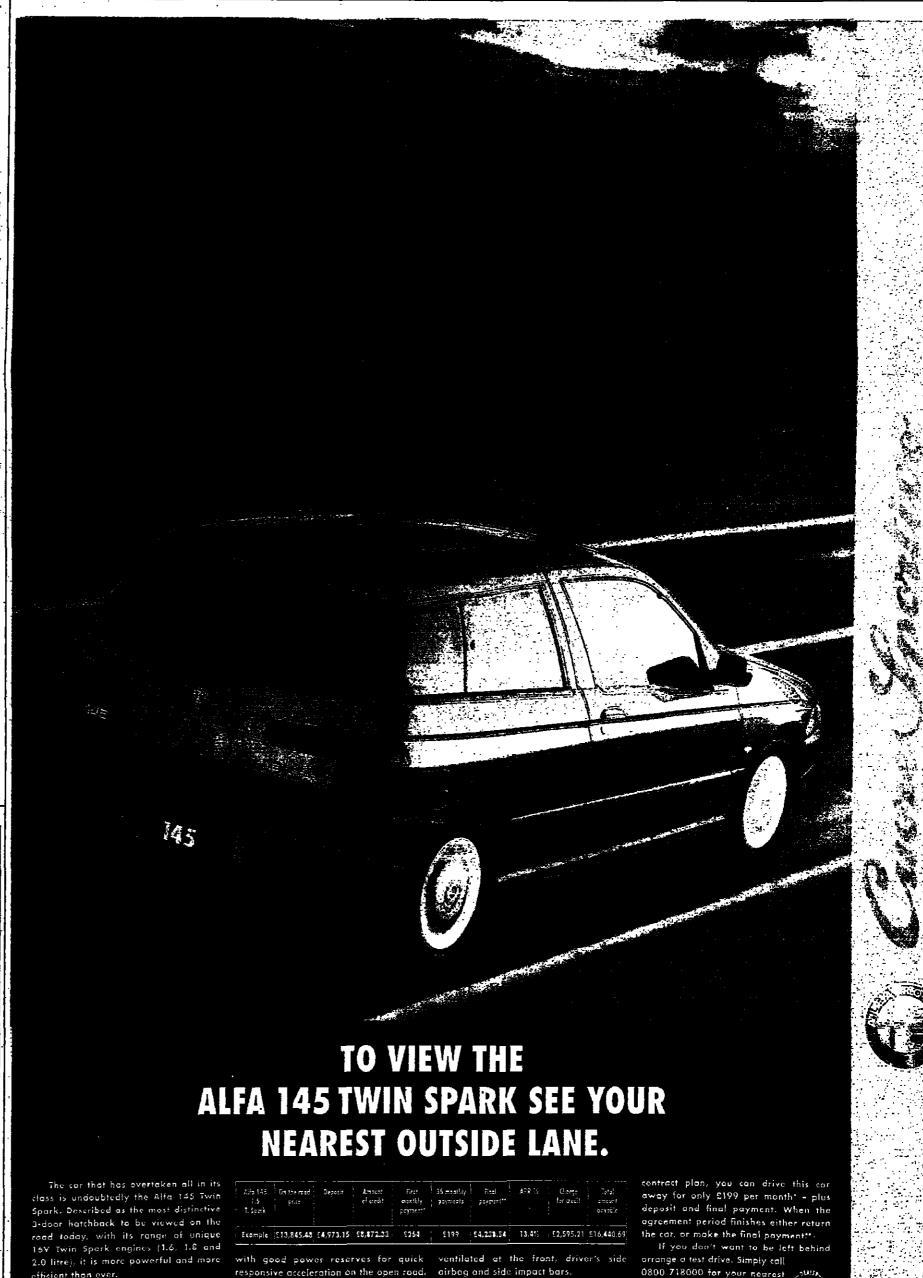

THE noble and patient British pastime of queueing was given a new lease of life yesterday. It seems that people can actually be per-suaded to enjoy it.

Researchers in a study of fairground rides at Alton Towers, Staffordshire, found that queuing could enhance the enjoyment of a visit. A report in New Scientist magazine said: "So successful is the queue system that neak visitors will wait up to an hour to get on the star attraction, the Nemesis Ride, and hardly

The trick was to manipulateperceptions about the length of the queue and whether it was worth the wait. A queue must twist "this way and that, making its true length impossible to judge". It must be designed so that those waiting were exposed to these who had come off the ride, to raise the level of

Closed-circuit cameras picked out queue jumpers. and stopped them just as they got to the top of the queue. Dr Robert Mathews of Aston University said: "Transgressors are allowed to get away with their actions all the way up to the ride, before being stopped and invited to go to the end again."

The result is that people actually prefer to wait rather than get on a ride immediately, Liz Greenwood, a spokesman for Alton Towers, said: We found that quiet days. when people can get straight on the rides were scoring lower enjoyment than busy days when people have to wait 15 to 20 minutes."

Clark mends his 'monstrous' ways for Tory TV series

By Carol Midgley, media correspondent

ALAN CLARK promised yesterday that his television history of the Tory party will spare his colleagues the kind of "monstrous" treatment he meted out in his political diaries.

Mr Clark, who became MP for Kensington and Chelsea at the general election after a five-year break from the Commons, ends his BBC2 series with the Tories' landslide defeat on May I. But the former Defence Minister, who called Kenneth Clarke a "pudgy puffball" and Michael Heseltine "that dreadful charlatan" in his acerbic diaries, said that he would not be beastly to his fellow MPs this time. The programme was intended as a serious chronicle of the party. "I have written about my colleagues in the most monstrous way and they have welcomed me back, for which I am most grateful." he said at the launch of BBC2's £75 million autumn schedule. "This is totally different from the diaries, which were an instant recall of things in an uninhibited way. It is not a post mortem."

His approach appears not to have been influenced by any desire to rejoin the Tory party's front bench, which he said was like "the Latvian Government in 1943". During the Second World War Germany occupied Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania, rendering their governments impotent.

Mr Clark denied that his return to the Commons created a conflict of interest. "No-one has ever accused me of not being objective history of the Conservative Party from which people will have to draw their own conclusions. It is up to people to decide what they think of me as a TV presenter." The first part of Alan Clark's History of the Tory Party covers 1922-39 from Stanley Baldwin's emergence as leader of the divided party to Neville Chamberlain's appeasement of Hitler and Winston Churchill's entry into the Cabinet. The second claims to shed new light on Churchill. Mr Clark repeats his controversial views that Churchill broke the bank, lost the empire and neglected domestic affairs and politics to the detriment of his party. Part three includes the decline of Tory fortunes under Edward Heath and the challenge mounted by Margaret Thatcher. The final episode charts Mrs Thatcher's leadership years to the catastrophic election defeat this year.

assessment of John Major's tenure as Prime Minister because the series was based on a book, due out this autumn, for which he had not yet negotiated the serial rights.
The autumn schedule also features two former Tory Cabinet ministers. Michael Portillo presents a programme next month in which he reports on Tory inlight-

ing in the 19th century and the Tory wilderness years. In November Douglas Hurd presents The Search for Peace, a reflection on

TAKE A TRIP TO

HALFORDS FOR

major wars this century.

Mr Clark declined to reveal his

THE EXPERTS IN TOURING

EQUIPMENT

NEW

ONLY £29.99

ONLY £39.99

2 Cycle Carrier

NEW

NEW

Cvcle Carrie

letitine board

No need for separate

SAVE £20

Halfords 450L Roof Box (Mastrated) Was £149.99

ONLY £99.99

Roof Box

3 Cycle Carrier

How Blair can benefit from gesture on PR

RIDDELL ON POLITICS

ony Blair is helping himself as well as Paddy Ashdown in deciding to press ahead with legislation for proportional representation in the European Parliament elections in 1999. The use of first-past-thepost for Euro-elections has been increasingly anomalous. This is not merely because Britain is the only country to retain the system in face of pressure for a uniform elector-al approach throughout Europe based on PR. The Tories successfully deflected these calls after direct elections were introduced in 1979. This was based on a defence of single-member constituencies. as well as the familiar conservarive argument of the "wedge" — the fear that conceding PR for the European elections would increase the pressure for it at Westminster. The winner-take-all nature of first-past-the-post exaggerates the impact of shifts in votes, as we saw on May I when Labour won 63 per cent of the seats on nearly 44 per cent of the vote. This leverage is even greater with the Euroseats, which include seven or eight Westminster seats. In the European elections, the Tories won 60 out of 78 seats in Britain in 1979 on just over 50 per cent of the total vote. By 1994, the tables had been turned Labour won 62 out of 84 seats (again excluding Northern Ireland) with 44 per cent of the vote.

In David Butler and Martin

Westlake's British Politics and European Elections 1994. John Curtice and Michael Steed estimate what the outcome would have been then if a regional list system had been used. This would allocate seats proportionally according to voter preferences within 11 regions. This still helps larger parties compared to a national PR system. Although Labour would have 18 fewer Euro-MPs than now, the party would still have 44 seats, or 52 per cent, 8 percentage points more than its share of the vote. So a switch to a regional list system would mean fewer Labour MEPs. However, under first-past-the-post Labour will almost certainly lose seats in June 1999, near the mid-point of the Parliament. If Labour is as unpopular then as previous governments have

Reserve Account* £100,000+

Charity TESSA*

£50,000+

TESSA*

£50,000-£99,999

£20,000-£49,999

Three Month Reserve Account*

£25,000-£49,999

£10,000-£24,999

7 Day Notice Deposit Account'

£250,000-£1 million

£100,000-£249,999

£25,000-£99,999

£10,000-£24,999

exceeds £5,000.

at the prescribed rate.

Deposit Accounts for Business Clients

£5,000-£19,999

Coutts & Co

Notice of Interest Rates

for Private and Business Clients

effective from 17th July 1997

Current and Deposit Accounts for Private Clients

Deposit Accounts for Private and Business Clients

Reserve Accounts for Businesses/Charities/Societies*

Interest is paid quarterly finterest is paid half-yearly

Interest is road only on the portion of the cleared balance which Interest is payable on Reserve Account balances below the minimum level at a gross rate of 1% p.a. (Gross C.A.R. 1%).

Interest will be paid after deducting tax (where applicable)

• The gross compounded annual rate is the rate where grass interest payments are retained on the account

We are also able to place sterling and other currencies in the Money Markets. All rates are subject to variation.

Current Account with Cash Management Option* and been in their mid-terms, it might paradoxically have more seats under PR than it would have as a result of the exaggerated swings produced by first-past-the-post. So PR may be a cushion to the inevitable swing against the Government.

A regional list system would give power to the party leadership which controls the lists. Some existing Labour MEPs have been distinctly off-message in their willingness to challenge Mr Blair's approach and to express their "old" Labour views. Few tears would be shed in Millbank Tower at a culling of the

The uncertainty about the Bill has been all rather odd since Labour has been committed for some time to changing the electoral system in 1999 (most recently in its joint statement with the Liberal Democrats) and everyone has known the need for rapid action in view of the tight timetable. The Liberal Democrat leadership is pleased with the Government's move, not least because it vindicates Mr Ashdown's decision not to make a public fuss and trust that Mr Blair would deliver. what is primly known as "constructive opposition". The two leaders talked on their visit to Hong Kong two weeks ago, particularly during a refuelling stop in Siberia.

he next stage is the proposed commission to produce a PR alternative to first-past-the-post for Westminster, to be put to a referendum later in the Parliament. The Liberal Democrats are not banging the table and setting deadlines. Mr Blair remains very cool to PR for Westminster, so an announcement is unlikely before the autumn. But, for the moment, Mr Blair has made a friendly gesture, albeit one that helps him too.

PETER RIDDELL

IN PARLIAMENT

interest compounded rate p.a. annual rate

4.55%

3.75%

3.25%

7.00%

6.30%

6.125%

5.00%

1.00%

4.10%

3.95%

3.75%

(C.A.R.)

4.62%

3.80%

3.29%

7.18%

6.45%

5.09%

4.57%

1.00%

4.00%

3.80%

3.13%

BRITAIN'S BIGGEST CHOICE

when you trade in your old bike

SAVE £50

Carrera Mirage Shimano Acera X, 21 speed bike. Gripshift MRX170 gears. £299.99 TRADE-IN PRICE £249.99

18 speed indexed gears with gapshift. £179.99 TRADE-IN PRICE

SAVE £15 Apollo Avio Men's Mountain bike for leisure cyclists.

TRADE-IN PRICE £114.99

ONLY £199.99

@r-ess Café erfect for everyday cycling. Maintenance free 4 speed Nexus hub gears.

SAVE £5 Raleigh Jungle

Suitable for 3-5 year olds. Was £64.99 £59.99

BUY NOW PAY 1998 WHEN YOU SPEND OVER £199 ON BIKES AND CYCLE ACCESSORIES

Snell approved, £29.99

Choose from a buge range

SAVE £10 TRADE-IN PRICE £19.99

FROM £2.99 of water bottles

Was £3.99 NOW £2.99 Turtiewax Original Was £4.99 Turtiewax Wheel Clean Was £4.99 NOW £3.74

SAVE £2

NOW £7.99

Was £14.99 NOW £12.99

SAVE 25%

Zipwax 750ml

on Turtlewax Cleaning

5 Littre Was £9.99

SAVE £2

SAVE 18 25% Cockpit Shine Was 53.49 NOW £2.49 Turtiewax Renew Was £3.99 NOW £2.99

NOW £3-74

SAVE £3

SAVE £5

SAVE £2

Wes £19.99 NOW £16.99

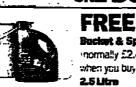

s OS 4 Litre

Was 224.99 NOW £19.99

BRITAIN'S NO.1 FOR OIL & CAR CARE

OIL & CAR CARE

Was £11.99 NOW £9.99 SAVE £2 when you buy Halfords Colour Polish compared to normal history price of Color Magic ONLY £6.99

Bucket & Sponge nomally 52.48) when you buy 25Litre Halfords Advanced Car Wash at $4.99

WE'RE ABOUT CARS & BIKES

ONLY £79.99

SAVE#£10 on Halfords Roof Bars Haifords Roof Bar B 1/las £54.99 NOW £44.99

£129.99

Erde 121 Trailer Was £249.99 NOW $199.99 SAVE £30 Erde 101 Trailer Was £199.99 NOW £169.99

FREE (normally £9.99) with any Halfords

FROM £2.99 Newspaper Sunshade £4,99 Parrot Sunblind £5.99

NEW Halfords First Aid Kit ONLY £12-99 Specifically designed for the motorist

FROM £9.99 Fire Extinguishers

Guardian 800g

ONLY £12.99 SAVE £2

on Motal Petrol Cans 5 Litra Was £11.99 NOW £9.99 10 Litre Was £12.99 NOW £10.99

440 Strand, London WC2R 0QS · Telephone: 0171-753 1000 LIGHT TO LIKE OF IN THE CLOBAL INDICATE BANKING ARM OF NATWEST CRICK!

مِلَدًا مِنْ اللَّصِلُ

ordable althcare

W Blair can THE TIMES THURSDAY JULY 17 1997 Fundholder patients must join the queue

QUEUE-JUMPING by patients of fundholding doctors is to be stopped from next April, when hospitals will have to admit people for treatment solely on the basis of medical need:

MIS THE WAY

enefit from

sture on PR

STORIL ON POLITICS

THE ME SEA

Salatin Land

A Management

Train state of the same

Maria of Carling

Grand the control of the control of 養婦・女性となった。

Maria .

2 (A)

· ·

10 10 mg

ing the state of t

41.5 Teach

Marie C

Menistra same

47

The Prime Minister, announcing an end to privileged treatment for the 60 per cent of patients who have fundholding GPs, told the Commons: "It is based on two simple ideas rebuilding the NHS and fairness, neither of which the Conservative Party understand."

Answering an emergency question, Frank Dobson, the Health Secretary, said the fundholding system created by the Tory Government was "unfair to patients, repugnant to the doctors and nurses who had to apply it, and cost a fortune in extra paperwork.

At the general election we promised to restore lairness to the health service. end the two-tier system and ensure that access to treatment is based on need and need alone. We pledged to change the system so that no patients and no GP practices suffered any longer from the unfairness introduced by the Conservatives."

He said that all NHS trusts must operate a fair waiting list for urgent admissions regardless of who is commissioning the care. The waiting time standards will, nevertheless, vary between health authorities with each of them setting its own maximum

Hospitals will admit authorities adopt the principles of only on basis of need,

Ian Murray reports

waiting time standards common to all residents. Within these common standards, admission of residents for nonemergency treatment must be on the basis of clinical priority, regardless of the GP.

Trusts will not be able to offer preferential admission to patients of GP fundholders, and fundholders will not be able to press for faster treatment except on clinical grounds.

The change will not always be to the detriment of fundholders' patients. This is because although 60 per cent of health authorities have shorter waiting times for the patients of fundholders, 37 per cent have shorter lists for non-fundholders' patients.

Clive Parr, general manager of the National Association of Fundholding Practices, said that he welcomed the change. The only thing we want to ensure is that this provides a genuine levelling up and not a levelling down of the service," he said. "It must not be the case that care is levelled down in order to make this possible.
"This can only be done if health fundholders. Authorities cannot continue to buy a block of treatment for unnamed patients but will need to track each patient to ensure each person gets the care they need. Block contracts can be cheaper, but it is impossible with them to tell if the care is going to the right person or if the bill is correct."

The British Medical Association also welcomed the Government's statement but said that equity for all must not mean equity at the lower end of the scale. We want to see that patients of non-fundholding GPs have the same opportunity for enhanced treatment as those from fundholding practices," Dr Ian Bogle, chairman of the association's GPs' committee, said. "This is an opportunity for levelling up, not levelling down.

Philip Hunt, chief executive of the NHS Confederation, which speaks for all health authorities and hospitals, said that the principle of equitable treatment was clearly right but that health authorities and GPs would need to work together to sort out priorities. "It will be essential to ensure that GPs have an important role to play in influencing the quality of treatment to be given to patients, he said.

Leading article, page 19

Femme assise dans un fauteuil, painted by Picasso in 1913

A dozen Picassos released for sale

By DALYA ALBERGE ARTS CORRESPONDENT

A DOZEN spectacular paintings by Picasso are to be sold as part of a collection described as the most important private holding of 20thcentury art offered at auction.

More than £80 million is expected to be paid for 115 paintings, drawings, sculptures and prints that also include more recent modern masters such as the Pop artists Jasper Johns and Robert Rauschenberg. The highlights are Picasso's poignant Femme assise dans un fauteuil of 1913, regarded as one of the most powerful nude depictions of the early 20th century, estimated at £12 million; and Le Rêve, one of his exquisite portraits, estimated at £20 million.

The collection was put together by a New York couple, Victor and Sally Ganz, who made their fortune in costume jewellery and championed artists long before they were known. The works will be sold by Christie's on Novem-

house worth? Do estate agents really know? weekend

London's health care 'near | increase in collapse'

By Ian Murray

LONDON's health system is in danger of collapse unless there is much better co-operation between its 68 hospital trusts, 16 health authorities and 32 boroughs.

The health warning comes in a report by the King's Fund, the leading independent think-tank on health policy. Dr John Pattison, of University College Medical School, and vice-chairman of the fund, says London's diversity has created defensive parochialismi and destructive competitiveness among health providers. Plans to rationalise ward in the Tomlinson Report five years ago, have stalled "institutional

The fund says that apart from the difficulties in providing suitable hospital services, primary care is under great. strain, mental care is less well provided than anywhere else in Britain, and large areas of inner city poverty create enor-mous problems of their own.

The Covernment is conducting its own review of London's health needs, but the report does not call for a new system, rather better co-operation between the existing health providers. It suggests health and social service budgets should be pooled to help to spread the available resources. It calls for a public health strategy covering the capital to improve living conditions, the environment, transport and hygiene. Most important of all are the provision of more facilities to look after the mentally ill and ageing populations.

Drink toll blamed on divorce

BY OUR MEDICAL.

A RISE in deaths from drinkrelated diseases is probably. linked to Britain's divorce rate, which is the highest in Europe, a leading specialist in alcohol dependency said

Up to 30 per cent of male admissions and 15 per cent of female admissions to surgical and medical wards are for alcohol-related diseases. The UK Alcohol Forum, set up by doctors and health-care professionals, decided that guidelines for doctors were needed because of the relative lack of medical training in identifying heavy drinkers.

They tell a doctor how to assess alcohol dependence by asking a series of questions. Based on this information, the doctor can decide whether to ask for laboratory tests to find out how seriously the yesterday. Launching the first guidelines to help doctors to identify and to treat heavy drinkers. Dr Jonathan Chick, a consultant psychiatrist and senior lecturer at Edinburgh University, said that alcohol was increasingly a problem among single parents and people living on their own.

Alliance & Leicester Car Purchase Plan

CORRESPONDENT

The number of people diseases has doubled in Britain in the past decade, whereas the rate has fallen in America and many European countries: A partial explanation of this seems to be that Britain has the highest divorce rate in Europe, with a growing proportion of people living alone," he said.

addiction has affected the patient's health.

Unlock the future of car buying

> Borrow up to £15,000 = with reduced monthly repayments

If you change your car regularly, Car Purchase Plan provides you with an affordable way to finance your purchases.

Whether it is for a new or used car, the Car Purchase Plan allows you to reduce your monthly payments by deferring repayment on a percentage of the amount you've borrowed until the end of the loan term. This gives you the choice of either driving a bigger, better or newer car than you thought you could afford, or simply paying less each month. One phone call is usually all that is needed. Call now for further details or to arrange your loan today on 0990 77 44 22.

See how much lower your monthly repayments could be £285.94 24 £,5,000 ₹,10,000 £209.84 The table also compares the monthly represents for Car Purchase Plan compared to of

Get on the move! Call today for details

1991774422

£471.14 12.7%

Affordable

Free. Speech. With a WorldCom Freephone osoo number there's no W) RLD connection fee and no cancellation fee. There's no implementation charge either, not even a monthly rental charge. You only pay for the WORLD CLASS TELECOMMUNICATIONS calls you take. Call free. Freephone

₁₀ Fleet Piace, London EC4M 7R6

0800 0 18 18 18

or fax 0171 750 3210

vaice - Data - Interne

Typical Example: if you were to borrow £10,000 with a deferred amount of £4,000 (40%) over 36 months, repaid by direct debit, you could either make 35 monthly payments of £239.83 plus one final payment of £4,239.83 giving a total amount psychle of £12,633.88 (12.7%APR), or you could make 54 repsyments of £239.83 plus a final psyment of £84.49 giving a total amount psychle £13,035.31 (12.7% APR). The right to decline any of is reserved. Loans are not available to applicants under 18 years of age, and are subject to status. Allience & Leicester Personal Finance Ltd Company No. 2486611. Registered Office: Heritage House, 61 Southeater ester LEI SRR. To help improve our service and for your security, we may record or monitor calls to und from Alliance & Leicoster. Written onotations grafitable on record

Publisher takes a £750,000 shine to GCSE failure

By DALYA ALBERGE ARTS CORRESPONDENT

A WOMAN aged 25 who twice failed GCSE English has reportedly signed a publishing deal worth E750,000 for her first three books.

Keri Beevis. who writes bloodthirsty horror stories on a computer in her bedroom under the pen name Keri Leigh, has been taken up by the publishers Buckley-

Peter Willis, her agent, said: "Although Buckley Bennion specialise in sports books, when the first novel came on their desk, they saw gold dust there. She's going to be a very wealthy girl."

While the publishing industry expressed surprise at the size of the deal. Andrew MacLachlan of Buckley-Bennion said: "We saw her great potential and knew she had talent." He added: -£750.000 would seem a lot for one book, but this is for three.

She's worth it." The publishers said Ms Beevis took up writing at the age of 12, after her father, an entertainment agent who used to run a video shop in Norwich, left a video of the The Shining lying around at home. The Stanley Kubrick film, based on the book by Stephen King and starring impression on his daughter. She said she used to wake up at night screaming, imagining that Nicholson, who played a psychotic hotel caretaker, was in her room.

Nicholson: inspiration in the film The Shining

It was her father who sent Ms Beevis's manuscripts to Buckley-Bennion in Huntingdon, Cambridgeshire. Two of her three novels are about serial killers. The first, When the Pen Writes, is about two friends who write horror stories only to find their fiction becomes reality when a serial killer copies the murder storylines from their books.

first book would be published this month and Mr Willis claimed that film rights were being negotiated. It will be a new departure for Buckley-Bennion: their other publications involve the agriculture industry and a rugby book that W.H. Smith said it was

Ms Beevis said she was such a daydreamer at school that she managed to pass only one subject at GCSE - art. "I've just found my old report card," she said yesterday.
"They said how rubbish I was at English. They said I was a big disappointment. I failed it at school and thought, how dare they fail me, it's my favourite subject. I retook it at college and failed.

considering for the rugby season.

Ms Beevis said: "It will shock people. I don't hold back on anything."

She added: "The main inspiration for me was all sorts of horror films. I am a big fan of Hitchcock and I would have married him if I could. But it was The Shining that really hooked me on horror. I loved the atmosphere of the film, the music, the drama, and most of all Jack Nicholson. To be honest. I always had a sick

Buckley-Bennion said the wealth, Ms Beevis said she would not be giving up her day job at a travel agency in Norwich. Although she joked about buying the agency, she insisted that her life would not change and said she would continue to live at home with her parents. Her agent said that her workmates inspired many of the twists in her tales. They had also been her most avid readers. Mr Willis explained that every week Ms Beevis wrote another chapter for her colleagues. They're all youngsters. She takes in copies. They when they work on Mondays. The whole department reads them. At first, they were told, 'Get on with your work'. But now everyone comes in and wants to read the next chapter on a Monday."

Buckley-Bennion said in its ress release about the publishing deal that Ms Beevis "tested the water with three major UK publishers and each time, without exception, received a positive reply. They were all quick to realise that here is a major talent who can not only tell a good story but can tell it using mainly

A wave splashed against Jordan's face. Her mouth filled with salty water. She choked and spat it out. She longed to wipe the water from her stinging eyes. Unable to though, she closed them tight as another wave hit

The man stood watching her for a minute.

"Please don't leave me," she begged. The water was already up to her mouth. Jordan tried to

The man shook his bead and smiled to himself. "So long Jordan Presley."

He began to walk away. "Wait, come back. Don't leave me here!"

The man disappeared out of sight.

Deal is a good one for starters

ner m nemb

By Erica Wagner

THE reported £750,000 deal for Keri Beevis's three horror povels is remarkable but not unknown for a first-time au-thor. Arundhati Roy received £160,000 from HarperCollins for the British rights to her first novel, The God of Small Things. She has made more than £600,000 from the book.

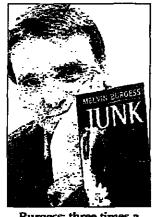

Martin Amis notoriously received £480.000 for his last novel. The Information, but he is an author with a literary track record. The thriller writer Michael Ridpath received £250,000 for his first two

In the world of big-time commercial fiction, however £750,000 can look like small change. Stephen King raked in £23 million for his latest four-book deal, while John Grisham sold film rights to The Firm and The Chamber for £2.5 million before he had written a word of them.

Carolyn Mays. Stephen King's editor at Hodder and Stoughton, said that these were established authors whose works have moved into the mainstream. King got £2,000 for his early novel

Ms Mays said: "For someone to have done this for their first book is extraordinary. It will be very interesting to see how they publish it, because it will have to reach a bigger audience than just the horror market to earn that

Story of teenage heroin addict wins prize for children's books Education campaigners are dismayed by Carnegie judges' choice, reports Jason Cowley

Burgess: three times a runner-up for medal

A NOVEL about a teenage girl who becomes addicted to heroin after running away from her dysfunctional family won the 1997 Carnegie Medal yesterday for an "outstanding book for children". Junk, by Melvin Burgess, was praised by Lesley Sim, chairman of the judges, for its narrative drive, moral complexity and subtle characterisation.

Seaton, chairman of the Campaign for Real Education, is one of the most trenchant, were less impressed. They complained that a distinguished children's book prize ought not to honour works that included scenes of violence and depravity

"I don't think it's right to encourage children to read about all these very depressing aspects of life," Mr Seaton said. It's no wonder children feel depressed about life and people are going up."

Ms Sim dismissed his remarks as unworthy of serious consideration. Critics of the book, of whom Nick Most of the people who criticise Junk haven't actually read it," she said. "The novel is not intended to be read by young children: because of the extremity of the subject I wouldn't recommend it to anyone under the age of 14.

"And yet, it deals with a very difficult, complex subject with real

insight and sensitivity. There is nothing depraved in it. Burgess seeks not to glamorise drug-taking but to confront. It is a problem that that suicide rates among young cannot be ignored. People should remember that many of the classics read by teenagers, such as Hardy and Chaucer, are full of violence."

Melvin Burgess, whose brother was a heroin addict, was born in London in 1954. After leaving school at 18, he trained as a journalist and published his first novel, The Cry of the Wolf, in 1990. Junk, published by Andersen Press, is his eighth novel: he has been a runner-up for the Carnegie on three occasions. He and £1,000 worth of books to be donated to a charity or institution of his choice at a ceremony at the South Bank Centre in London.

Burgess said of the book: "I was pretty sure if it was going to work, it would kick up some sort of fuss. I didn't sit down to write a warning but the story tells its own cautionary tale. It's depicting what can happen with heroin. Any book about it is a warning in itself."

That the Carnegie offers no prize money does not detract from the value of a prize first presented in 1937 to Arthur Ransome for Pigeon

Post; the tangible rewards come from the consequent fillip to hardback and paperback sales. Penguin Children's Books report, for instance, that Flour Babies, by Anne Fine, enjoyed a sevenfold increase in paperback sales after winning the prize in 1992

Miranda McKearney, of the Li-brary Association, which adminis-ters the award, said: "That there is no prize money matters less than getting on the shortlist, since sales are where its real worth lie." The list of previous winners reads like a rollcall of great children's books and authors, and include C.S. Lewis,

Walter de la Mare, Mary Norton and Eleanor Farjeon. The prize was established in 1936 to mark the centenary of the birth of Andrew Carnegie, a Scottish-American entrepreneur and philanthropist whose wealth helped to build almost 3,000 libraries, including 660 in

This year there were 54 entries read by 13 judges, all of whom are librarians and members of the Youth Libraries Group. The Tulip Touch (Hamish Hamilton, £4.99) by Anne Fine, and Johnny and the Bomb (Corgi, £3.99) by Terry Pratchett were highly commended.

> Leading article, page 19 Teenagers' verdicts, page 35

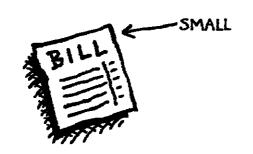

> > ere's no dis

Moblem toe

MERCURY

SAVE PAPER

GUARANTEED CHEAPER CALL BILLS OR DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK.

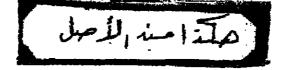

With Mercury you can enjoy great savings on the type of calls you make most. Whether your calls are mostly national or international, you'll make savings against BT. In fact, we're so confident that you'll save money on your call bill (even against PremierLine and Friends and Family), that if you don't, we'll refund double the difference. So if you'd like tiny, little bills - call the number below. Double quick.

Mercury FreeCall 0500 500 366

Price Pledge terms apply on Menury SmartCall and UK-Call call bill, only compared against BTs base rate, and discrete whomes including line tental and temperary promotional office. Not available on Calling Card or business painage.

The UK's Best MMX best Buy With rulismedia PC for home and business users. It comes complete with trief's best selling 166MHz Pentium" processor with MNX" technology; a mas Confidence 32Mb of RAM memory and an enormous 3200Mb hard disk, receive a FREE 33.6 modern and a FREE massive pre-loads nous 3200Mb hard disk, Order early and From Time high street PC, we are confident that you will agree that at the new love price of just £966+VAT, this is by far the UK's best 166 M&X PC offer. MX'" Multimedia Special You Will Not Find A Better PC Deal! / 166 MMX 16 MAX (25-9CH 47-9 64-bit Grames are upo (V /33.6

Santer maps out new 21-member EU and key spending reforms

the state of the s

THE map of a rw 21-member European Unin, with borders reaching the Russian frontier, was id out to EU states yesterdy along with radical spendig reforms in-tended to limitie burden of absorbing five elatively poor former Commist states and Cyprus into th Western bloc.

MIN THE REAL PROPERTY OF THE PARTY OF THE PA

en's books

Dealis
a good *

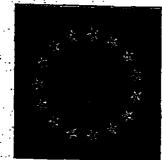

Britain hails the "Agenda 2000". plan, unnounced by Jacques Santr. President of the European ommission, as the opening of a new chapter." in the history f the European

"We must easp this historic opportunity > enhance security and property throughout Europe, "tobin Cook, the Foreign Sectary, said. "We now have anyportunity both to end the little control of the lit to end the livisions which have scarre our continent since the laswar and to shape new policiewhich will bring benefits to a our citizens."

Britain, ne of the most enthusiastisupporters of ex-panding the U to the former Soviet bloccountries, takes over the rosting EU presiden-cy in Janury in time to lead the openig of negotiations with Polad, Hungary, the Czech Regolic, Slovenia, Estonia and lyprus. The Commission's hoice of the five Europeanountries must first be endors! by EU leaders at a Decembr summit.

Only oce in the EU's 40year hisry have govern-ments cerruled the Commission's choice for new member: That came in 1963 when Fince vetoed Britain's first appeation to join.

Cypru whose prospective membership is already draw-ing threts from Turkey, was promise an automatic place at neguations in 1995. The EU wats the breakaway Turkishart of the Mediterranean jand to be included in accessin talks. Intense diplomacy : under way to resolve the 23 ear-old division with the (reck-Cypriot Government of Cyprus. Turkey, which as been trying to join the El for a quarter of a centu, was given a consolation pize yesterday of a prom-

Britain would also use its presidency to forge ahead with the Commission's proposals to reform the common agricul-ture policy (CAP), which swal-lows nearly half the EU budget, and the system of regional aid which takes 40 рет cent. Mr Cook said. "То be affordable, all existing member states will have to accept a lower level of receipts in the next century," he said. Britain will, however, resist any attempt to reopen the question of its rebate on its contributions to the EU budget, won by Margaret Thatcher after a five-year battle in the 1980s. The Commission yesterday raised the prospect of ending the arrangement if the costs of expansion rose beyond its

The Commission's tightlybudgeted plan prompted scepticism among members of the European Parliament in Strasbourg, where Mr Santer presented it. Many voiced doubts about the Commission's optimistic assumption that the economies of the 15 would grow by 2.5 per cent a year until 2006 and the Eastern applicants' by more than 4

This will be necessary to keep the EU's overall spending below the EU's current 1.27 per cent ceiling of GDP. Mr Santer, who is staking his reputation on the "Agenda 2000" scheme, promised to keep the cost of expansion below that ceiling, which would apply to the EU's next spending programme, from 2000-2006.

Mr Santer and the Commission's 1,200-page package were reticent about predicting the likely date for the biggest and most politically challenging expansion in the EU's history. "Around about 2002," the closest Santer

The lack of deadlines reflects the widespread qualms among EU governments over embarking too quickly on an

per head: £1,202

per head: £1.534

per head: £2,268

per head: £4,706

CZECH REPUBLIC

POLAND Pop: 38.6m GDP

Union that will inevitably end its days as a cosy club of prosperous nations. France and other founder nations are banking on the launch of monetary union in 1999 as the key to ensuring the existence of a close-knit core of members who will resist the dilution of the European enterprise. None of the successful Furnpean applicants passed the full entrance test, which requires a functioning democracy, market economy and ability to assume the responsibilities of the single market. monetary union and all other EU rules. The Commission urged all to make more effort. Estonia, the Baltic state that led the breakup of the Soviet Union, must integrate the stateless Russian minority of its population, the Commission said. Poland, the biggest tackle its huge farm sector. The Commission took pains, however, to insist, that it was keeping the door open for later entry by the five other applicants which it had ruled out as unready for EU membership: Bulgaria, Romania, Slovakia, Latvia and Lithuania. Their cases will be re-

of the new entrants, must viewed annually. Mr Santer also called for a new inter-governmental conference, or IGC, to start within little more than a year, to tackle the reforms to the EU's decision-making machinery that EU leaders failed to settle at Amsterdam last month.

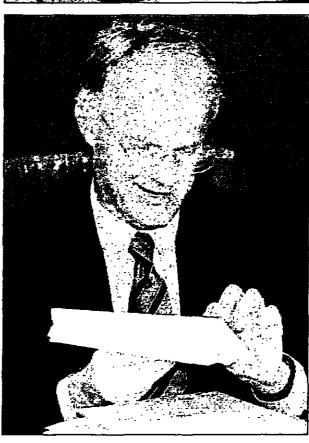

Mr Cook said Britain also supported the Commission's proposals to help to pay for the Central and Eastern European countries to complete their transition from statecommanded economies to democratic market economies. Calling for a veritable Marshall plan". Mr Santer esti-mated that £50 billion would be needed to help to integrate

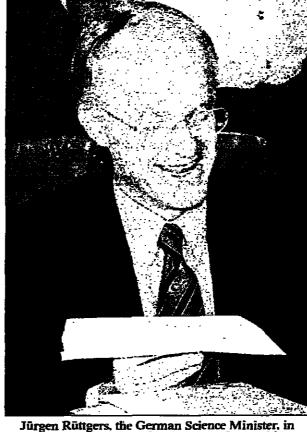

The figure testifies to the far more complex nature of join-ing the EU compared with the relatively low-cost entry to Nato, which embraced Budapest, Warsaw and Prague.

Leading article, page 19

doil in tild

holiday mood before the summer's last Cabinet meeting yesterday in Bonn, making a paper plane

Tarmers hail wider market for exports

CHARLES BREMNER

BRITAN'S farmers are experiod to weather without unductifficulty the chabit ifficulty the shake up in fair spending caused by the whole it will be r the United King-a senior EU farm said. "Britain sells

one of the big changes will be an end to curbs on exports

Despite the positive gloss cy (CAP). British farmers will evitably have to learn to live with less as the EU proceeds with long overdue reforms to a system which devours half the annual budget of £65 shake-up is to make a further leap away from the system of pouring money into supporting prices at levels far above world levels. A continuation of the last reform launched in 1992, the new approach aims to end beef mountains and wine lakes created by overproduction and the buying in of crops by the EU to simply keep prices steady. But Brit-mental groups voiced disappointment, saying the reform could be more costly than the existing system and no less damaging to the countryside. The National Consumer Council, which calculates that the CAP now costs the average family of four about £20 a week through a mixture of extra taxes and artificially high food prices, said the oposed reform was a "step in the right direction" but did not go nearly far enough.

The Council for Protection of Rural England and the Royal Society for the Protec-tion of Birds said a great opportunity had been missed to attach environmental conditions to farm subsidies.

There's no disguising problem toenails

Thick, brittle, discoloured toenails may be caused by a fungal infection. For a free leaflet Manufesto and advice on how they can be cured write to STEWISE, FREEPOST PAM 6610, Dept AT, PO BOX 5314, LONDON W6 OBR, or call FREEPHONE 0800 200 210.

FREEPHONE 0800 200 210

MORTGAGES

NOTICE OF INTEREST RATE VARIATION ON MORTGAGES FROM BANK OF SCOTLAND BRANCHES

The following interest rates will apply from 17 July 1997 for loans not yet drawn and from the first payment date on or after 17 July 1997 for existing Bank of Scotland Branch Customers.

Home Loan Rate

8.19% per annum.

Premier Flexi Mortgage

Rate

7.70% per annum.

The following interest rate for mortgages provided by Centrebank, a Division of Bank of Scotland, will apply with effect from 17 July 1997 for both new and existing borrowers.

Centrebank Mortgage Rate (Variable)

8.19% per annum.

Head Office: The Mound, Edinburgh EH1 1YZ BANK OF SCOTLAND a friend for life

Weird on the outside. Clever on the inside.

"Amazing! An interior blessed with a multitude of ingenious concepts." Or "Hells bells! Did you see that?" Whichever reaction you prefer, you're likely to experience both with the new Daihatsu Move.

Weird. The Move's unique Tall Body sign Clayer Loads of headroom Loads of legroom. 5 doors. And 4 seats which recline to make - wait for it - a double bed.

Weird. Narrower than a mini, but only inches longer. Clever. It's a doddle to park and manoeuvre.

Weird. 5 tall door openings and high seating positions. Clever. Easy to enter. Easy to exit. With driver's airbag as standard.

Weird but probably deverest of all.

All this and a three year unlimited mileage

warranty from just £7200 on the road.

For more information contact your local

Daihatsu dealer or phone 0800 618 618.

Price correct at time of going to press and includes number plates, delivery and

Stars take lesson in survival tactics Murder is boost for manual on how to Per stall-

Murder is boost for keep stalkers at bay

FROM BRONWEN MADDOX IN WASHINGTON

Versace has given an even bigger boost to a publishing phenomenon of the summer: a self-help manual on how stars - and ordinary people - can protect themselves from stalkers and assassins.

Gavin de Becker, "security consultant to the stars", who has worked for Elizabeth Tayfor and the O.J. Simpson prosecution team, has topped the bestseller lists with the lecture Americans were waiting to hear: The Gift of Fear: Survival signs that protect us from

Fear of murder needs no explanation in modern America. To that has increasingly been added the fear of unwanted, threatening, attention; according to US government estimates, one woman in tion to your intuition, that 20 will be stalked at some time in her life. Public anxiety has been

6 People stirred further by high-profile afraid to cases, such as John Hinckley visit Egypt President Reaare in more gan in 1981 to danger at obsession with film star Jodie home 9 Foster, or Mark Chapman, who shot John Lennon in 1980. But de Becker's rate warning of danger: vicmessage is that those who share the fatalism of President John Kennedy, who famously said that no assassin can be stopped because "all anyone has to do is be willing to trade his life for the President's", are wrong. "Assassination not only can be prevented, it is prevented far more often than it succeeds." he says. Violent crime is less random than people choose to think; they prefer to feel fatalistic rather than protect themselves - and there is a lot they can do.

His Los Angeles based company. Gavin de Becker Inc. has advised on 20,000 cases; while he will not name his clients, his book credits Cher, Joan Rivers, Jeff Goldblum traordinary friends whose les-

THE MURDER of Gianni sons run throughout this book". He also advises the Government on threats to officials, judges, and abortion clinics, and helps companies with threats from angry

Most danger comes from people you know, particularly spouses or lovers, he points out. But he argues that even serial killers, such as that played by Sir Anthony Hop-kins in The Silence of the Lambs. are understandable and predictable. He quotes research by legendary FBI behavioural scientist Robert Ressler as suggesting that 100 heen ahused as children, either with violence, neglect or humiliation". De Becker's basic lesson is simple: pay attenniggling sense that something is not quite right. He warns against chronic anxiety: "many Americans who wouldn't travel to see the Pyrabeing killed in Egypt stay home, 20 times greater". But he argues that fear is a normally accutims of the Unabomber mused "do you think this is a bomb?" before opening the packages that killed them.

For ordinary life, he gives unremarkable but useful rules such as: "Don't get into a lift with a man who looks at you intently; don't accept help with groceries in an underground car park; don't jog with Walkman headphones on." But to people in public life, his message is blunter; they should all expect unwanted attention.

Given the near-certainty that a star will attract at least one disturbed fan. he argues that security arrangements are staggeringly lax. He directs particular passion against the security at the Citizen Cup in Hamburg for the "negligence" that led to the stabbing of Yugoslav-born tennis star Monica Seles, at the height of the conflict in her former homeland in 1993, when security should have been tighter than ever.

Celebrity targets: John Lennon with Yoko; Jodie Foster, subject of a gunman's obsession, and below, Brooke Shields, advised by Gavin de Becker

But his greatest anger is directed at the Los Angeles police for failing to act on signs that Nicole Simpson-Brown was likely to be killed by her former husband O.J.

Among other sobering lessons, de Becker warns his star clients against putting com-plete faith in security guards. a profession which "gave us the Son of Sam killer, the assassin of John Lennon" as well as thousands of arsonists and rapists. Nor should they put much faith in court orders to restrain a violent partner studies suggest in half of the cases, they may provoke more violence. The core of his job is in deciding when the threats are becoming serious. He took it seriously when a man sent a client a dead coyote, killed because it was beautiful like

As he reminds his clients, doing nothing is often the best option. "If you tell someone 10 times that you don't want to talk to him, you are talking to him - nine times more than you wanted to."

it may be impossible to follow all the de Becker lessons and still go out to a 24hour store to buy your papers. as Versace did, let alone to become a figurehead and friend throughout Miami's gay milieu. But in the wake of his murder, the de Becker lessons are likely to get more

FROM JON PHILLIPS

AS Italians mourned the shooting of sami Versace yesterday, ommentators questioned wether his siblings. Donatea and Santo. will be able t maintain the empire's mony-making capacity without is creativity.

Newspapers such as La Repubblica pid tribute to Versace for tuning a small family firm i his native Calabria in thempoverished South into aninternational group with an dimated turnover last year (1,700 billion lire ($1 billin). "Gianni Versace Spa i a company typical of Italia family capitalism," the laily said. "Versace's development was dizzy, irrevered and even disorganised: th brand was used on perfume furnishing, carpets and porcain."

His family dichot immediately disclose wither he had made a will. But le financial daily II Sol 24ornoted that, whatever the pressions, the firm would remin under family control: Ginni had a 45 per cent holding in the main company, bohis brothwhile his sister. Donatella, had 20 per cent. However, financi experts said Versace's deh might delay plans by anto, the financial wizard of le trio, to float the company. le aimed to double the group consolidated turnover by te end of the millennium.

The group is the second largest Italian fashid exporter after Giorgio Armai, with 80 per cent of the 16 turn-over coming from verseas markets.

Il Sole 24ore said Dnatella was the "natural fir" of Gianni, in that she is an established designer n her own right throug the Versace subsidiary cupany Versus that markets her distinctive designs. Doatella "showed a good die of talent", said the Mila business daily, adding the she had overseen designings the company when Giand was incapacitated by a mystious illness variously reporte to be a tumour or Aids.

BT's ISDN lines can send a document direct to another computer, so you don't have to waste time printing it out. Why not change the way we work?

Call Free fone 0800 800 800

A mortgage quote in 10 minutes flat. No wonder it's called a hotline.

Make a quick call to TSB PhoneBank for a free mortgage quee.

Because you'll save yourself a lot of time by finding out exally how much you can borrow before you go house hunting.

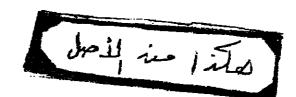

So if you want a free quote in ten minutes flat, ring SB PhoneBank on the number below and simply ask for it.

it's where extra

oil sole price

sunday

Double future Gigolo serial killer's house the descent into darkness bill descent into darkness From Tunkul Varadarajan in New York California: his Eurasian fail supe a former naval officer y

STUNNED by the killing of Gianni Versace, America is asking itself one question: how could Andrew Phillip Cunanan, the wellbred son of a wealthy stockbroker and a Roman Catholic mother, have grown into a serial murderer now on the FBI's Ten Most Wanted* list.

As a boy, Cunanan wanted for nothing. He lived in a loving. supportive home, went to the best school in town, and was given a sports car on his sixteenth

Yet the 28-year-old Cunanan. who went on to become a homosexual gigolo, is now accused of four murders beside Versace's, all between April 29 and May 9.

The first was of Jeffrey Trail, 28, a former lieutenant in the US Navy. He was found murdered in a Minneapolis townhouse his bloody body wrapped tightly in a rug. His head had been bashed in with a claw-hammer. Trail is thought to have been one of Cunanan's many lovers, as was the man in whose house the body was found.

He was an architect named David Madson, 33. Five days after Trail's murder, Madson's body was found in a derelict farmhouse, his body riddled with bullets. In the days before the murder, friends report that Cunanan gave Madson a gold Cartier watch. This gesture, they say, was typical of the suspected killer.

Cunanan next stole Madson's Jeep and drove to Chicago. There, on May 4, he is believed to have claimed his next victim, a 72-yearold property tycoon named Lee Miglin. He was found in his own garage, his throat cut with a saw, his chest punctured with pruning shears and his head bound tightly

The four other men believed to have been killed this year by Andrew Cunanan, clockwise from top left, Jeffrey Trail, David Madson, William Reese and Lee Miglin

in masking tape. In what was becoming a pattern of ghoulish car swaps, the Jeep was abandoned and exchanged for Miglin's expensive Lexus car. Cunanan drove several hundred miles east, to New Jersey. There, at the Finn's Point National Cemetery in Salem County, he is believed to have picked his next victim at random. William Reese, 45, the cemetery's unremarkable - and hetero-

in the head. His body had been tossed into a shallow grave. Cunanan abandoned the Lexus here and took Reese's red pickup. This is the vehicle police that was found near the scene of Versace's Cunanan's descent into darkness is both remarkable and disturbing. He was born into an

was a former naval officer who turned to stockbroking. His mother was deeply religious and took young Cunanan to Mass.

At school he flaunted his homosexuality, often boasting to his classmates that he was being "kept" by a number of wealthy "sugar daddies". He was popular, and in his graduation year was voted the boy "least likely to be Chillingly, the caption Cunanan chose for his school yearbook picture was après moi, le déluge after me, disaster.

Disaster struck Cunanan in 1988, when his father fled to the Philippines with every last cent in the family's bank account. This was the turning point in his life. The sudden impoverishment of his lifestyle led him, still only 19, to seek work as a male prostitute.

He was very successful. He made an attractive companion for older Californian homosexuals. An acquaintance has described him as clever, quick-witted and polyglot, "not your average buffed nale bimbo on the make".

Unsurprisingly, he appears to have earned the disapproval of his religious mother, who left California shortly afterwards to eke out a modest existence in Illinois. She has not seen her son for years.

FBI investigators believe that he might have contracted Aids and that a combination of panic, anger and resentment may have driven him to "avenge himself" on other gay men. Days before Trail's murder in April, he told friends he was going to Minneapolis to "settle some business". He invited a select few to a last, lavish supper - for which he paid — and left the same night on a flight out of Los Angeles. Andrew Phillip Cunanan, suspected of a cross-country killing spree culminating in the Versace murder

Fear strikes gay bars after 'Renaissance prince of South Beach' is slain

FROM TOM RHODES IN SOUTH BEACH, MUAMI -

THE fear was tangible in the gay bars of South Beach. Bodybuilders at doors, muted music and anxious faces provided the most telling signs of how the murder of Gianni Versace has already affected the American Riviera he helped to

At Twist, a gay nightclub fre-

Cunanan, the alleged killer, could his Italianate palazzo the previous strike again. FBI photographs of the serial murderer were passed silently around the bar as its patrons analysed them in disbelief.
"He looks very attractive. It's very frightening for us," said Scott Wilson. 36, a former model. "The gay party scene down here is very drug orientated. People out in clubs or getting high are apt to do things they would never consider if they were sober. We are an easy target for this guy."

day has cast the deepest shadow over this community, a gay enclave in the United States rivalled only by the Castro district of San Francisco. His high fashion, glamour and exuberant taste had inspired hordes of young men to leave the dull plains of the Midwest and the metropolitan districts of the East Coast for the new bohemia of southern Florida.

He had been one of the pioneers who helped to create an internaour President, almost a god," said Mark Brye. 31. "The man held the

At The Casa Casuarina, the mansion in front of which Versace was shot dead, he would host cosy dinners for the celebrity elite, from Madonna to Sylvester Stallone. Visiting kings and queens of fashion and Hollywood would never escape his attention or that of Antonio D'Amico, his long-time companion and personal trainer.

Miami's elegance in the Thirties. Employing an architect from Washington and designers from Italy, he bought and renovated the building in 1992. He spent $3.7 million (£2.2 million) alone razing ered throughout the night. Beautia neighbouring hotel to make way for the Italian garden and frescoed swimming pool. For his fidelity to the Italian Gothic and Classical Renaissance. Versace had won a board of the Florida Trust, It was, could relax and feel safe, an irony not lost on the hundreds who held vigil outside the property yesterday. Flowers, candles and simple messages of love had been deliv-ful bronzed women held hands with gay men in tearful tribute to a man they regarded as the Renaissance prince of South Beach. He would regularly walk alone down Ocean Drive, stopping at the News preservation award from the Café to buy newspapers and juice. On the day he died. Versace had taken his regular stroll and, stopping at the café, had spent $15 on a typically wide selection of magazines, ranging from Vogue and People to The New Yorker and Business Week. He used to say he enjoyed reading Proust and Dostoevsky, the author of the favourite Versace epithet: "Beauty will save the world."

BT's ISDN lines let

Ron McLean, the cafe's manager. said Versace "epitomised everything that people love about the

it's where there's an extra 10% off

all sale prices

from thursday 17th july.

it's the habitat sale.

and it ends on sunday 20th july.

you meet face to face without having to travel office to office. Why not change the war we work? Call Free fone 0800 800 800

gage es fla ider led ne.

Koreans exchange border fire

Troops cross truce line as North reaches flashpoint

By TIM HAMES AND OUR FOREIGN STAFF

kind in many years, North Korean troops yesterday penetrated the military demarcation line with South Korea that has marked the border since the end of the Korean War 44

North Koreans also fired artillery shells at a Southern guard post.

The two Koreas accused each other of provocation on the heavily fortified border. the world's last Cold War flashpoint. Pyongyang said several North Korean soldiers were wounded. About 37,000 American troops are stationed in the South but no US forces were involved.

Pyongyang said North Ko-rean soldiers were carrying out normal reconnaissance when South Korean troops opened fire. "From this attack, several soldiers were injured and several guard posts were destroyed," it added.

Western analysts would like to hope that this was an isolated incident. However, there is a significant chance that optimism will prove misplaced. North Korea is in a state of terminal decline. Any assessment of the world's most secretive society must be tentative, but the signs are that it will prove impossible to maintain the status quo.

Seoul accused the North of heightening border tensions with serious provocations. "We strongly warn that we will never tolerate any provocation." Lieutenant-General Joung Young Moo said.

General Joung said the incident began when seven Northern soldiers crossed the military demarcation line that runs through the middle of the

IN the worst incident of its 24-mile-wide demilitarised zone. Southern troops fired shots in the air after broadcasting warning messages by loudspeaker. North Korean forces responded with about 80 rounds of riflefire at two guard posts, which returned a similar burst of fire.

Yeo Sook Dong, chief spokesman for South Korea's Joint Chiefs of Staff, told reporters that North Korean forces then fired ten artillery rounds that landed near a Southern guard post.

South Korean troops re-sponded with one round from a recoilless rifle.

Two years of floods have destroyed a North Korean agricultural sector that was already extremely weak. Signs advanced malnutrition have been witnessed and official rations have fallen to 100 grams (less than four ounces) of food per day.

Conditions are thought to be worse in the mountainous northern provinces. Grass and bark have become part of the national diet. Starvation

Kim Il Sung: struggle

on a vast scale is possible this

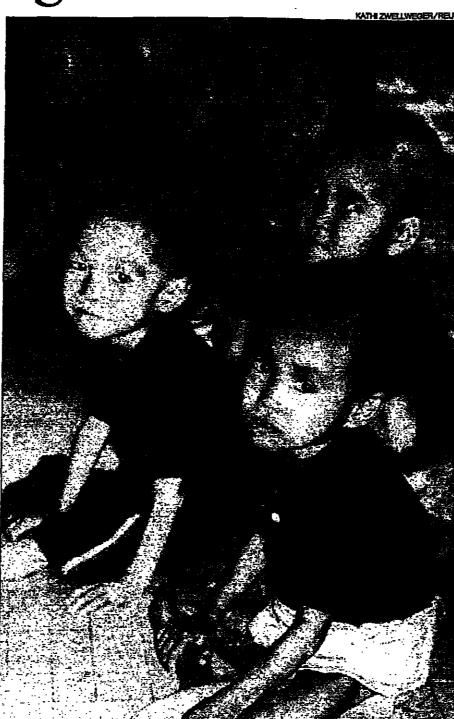

The industrial sector is in a similarly disastrous state. Starved of resources by the late dictator, Kim Il Sung, who diverted all available funds to his pursuit of nuclear weapons, the factories that remain are thought to be operating at barely a quarter

Political uncertainty compounds the present crisis. Last week saw the third anniversary of Kim II Sung's death. It had been thought that the end of this official mourning per-Jong II, formally elevated to the posts of head of state and General Secretary of the Korean Workers' Party. The silence from Pyongyang suggests a

The country would appear to face three unattractive choices: War with South Korea and by extension the United States; a negotiated peace that would require the retraction of five decades of party propaganda; or complete economic and political collapse with South Korea absorbing what remained. Few believe that the North could hope to win any serious military encounter although sheer force of numbers might allow it an initial advantage.

Collapse would appear the most likely scenario. North Korea's leadership has probably made the same calculation. Its best chance lies in postponing that moment. A programme of escalaring belligerence, stopping just short of war, might seem the best means of extracting concessions - food and aid - from the outside world.

North Korean children suffering from malnutrition at a nursery in the town of Huichon. Of the 80 children aged between one and five, 20 are orphans

NEWS IN BRIEF

Kazakh crew flew 'too low'

Deihi: An investigation into the world's worst mid-air disaster, in which 349 people were killed, has blamed the crew of a Kazakh airliner for the collision. The Press Trust of India, quoting official sources, said the inquiry led by a senior judge concluded that the Kazakh Ilyushin 6 was not at its assigned level of 15,000ft and came down to the flight level of 14,000ft resulting in the crash with a Saudi Boeing 747 on November 12 near Delhi. (AFP)

Hun Sen's man

Phnom Penh: Hun Sen, Cambodian Second Prime Minister, tried to legitimise his ousting of Prince Ranariddh, Pirst Prime Minister, by putting Ung Huot, Foreign Minister, in his post (AP)

Lethal injection

Shanghai: Two Chinese criminals have been executed by lethal injection, the first time China has used the method as an alternative to the firing squad, the Xinmin Evening News reported (Reuter)

Moi for talks

Nairobi: President Moi of Kenya will meet opposition leaders seeking reforms next week. Campaigners said the talks were not enough to abandon plans to put pressure on the President. (Reuter)

Turtle dilemma

Munich: Bavaria is looking for homes for 1,300 eight-inch American turtles seized from traffickers. They cannot be released as Europe is not their natural habitat. The US has refused to take them. (AFP)

Novelist attacks toleration of racism

FROM DEBORAH COLLCUTT IN FRANKFURT

GÜNTHER GRASS, the German author, has accused police and prosecutors in the northern town of Lubeck of failing in their duty to find the perpetrators behind a series of neo-Nazi attacks on churches in the area.

In an interview in today's Die Woche newspaper, he accuses Manfred Kanther, the Interior Minister, of encouraging racism by refusing to reform either the asylum laws or ancient citizenship rules for children born to foreigners.

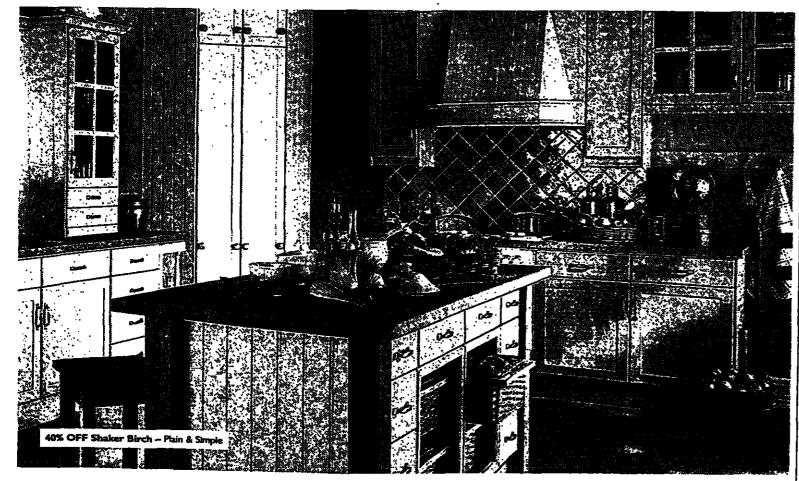

Herr Grass, who lives in Lübeck, said by continually introducing new conditions for deporting asylum seekers. Herr Kanther had "set the guideline for what had happened in towns like Lübeck". where over the past month churches and rectories have been attacked Investigators conclude that they were all racially motivated. Herr Grass, 70, whose office was recently defaced with swastikas, described police attempts to track down those behind the xenophobic attacks as "disgraceful".

Grass: office has been defaced by swastikas

HALF PRICE SUMMER SA

Picket fences painted white. Foxgloves in the borders. Roses around the door. Shaker Birch in the sale.

In the Magnet Summer Sale, all cabinets in 50 kitchen and bedroom ranges are reduced in price, most by 50%.

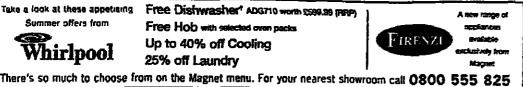

Whirlpool

Free Dishwasher' ADG710 worth $5590.99 [PRIP Free Hob with selected oven p Up to 40% off Cooling

ASK IN-STORE FOR DETAILS OF THESE AND MANY MORE OFFERS

Discounts are off prices charged between 28th May and 25th June 1997. "When you spend £3,250 or more on a wichen purchase (excluding cista Applies to lutcher purchases only delivered before 26th September 1997 when you spend £1 000 or more on cabings

25% off Laundry

Rameses the Great finds refuge from dirty Cairo

By Christopher Walker, middle east correspondent

PHARAOH Rameses II is Cairo, the landmark 60-tonne rose granite statue of the great warrior-king is to be returned to its original base in the tranquil village of Mit Rahina, site of the ancient Egyptian capital of Memphis.

The decision was announced by Farouk Hosni, the Culture Minister, after years of heated debate about where the 30ft colossus should be transported to escape the damaging surroundings outside Cairo's central railway station, where it was transported in 1954 on the orders of President Nasser. The imposgoing home. After years of ing statue had stood in front of being battered by the fumes of a temple for more than 3,000 years before Nasser, who had overthrown the monarchy, ordered its relocation as a symbol of ancient Egyptian

Mr Hosni announced yes terday that within three months, the torso - already cracked from pollution and encased in a metal frame to avoid damage during transport. For years the Government has dithered about choosing a new site, with officials joking that suggestions about a location were as numerous as the Pharaoh's wives, said to have totalled 66. One Egyptologist proposed putting the statue on an island pyramids.

Rameses II. also known as Rameses the Great, ruled Egypt for 66 years, ending in 1224 BC and brought the country great power and wealth. erected more buildings and colossal statues than any other Pharach.

At Mit Rahina, Rameses will find a quiet village at the edge of the desert rimmed with date palms and swaying

Why get mortgage protection from your lender...

For Zorich Moridina ?

LIFE INSURANCE

0800 147

PLEASE QUOTE REF: LTM1707

Civil Servants

Town Hall Employee

Teachers

Lecturers

Post Office Staff

NHS Staff

Police

Nurses

Fire Service

Prison Officers

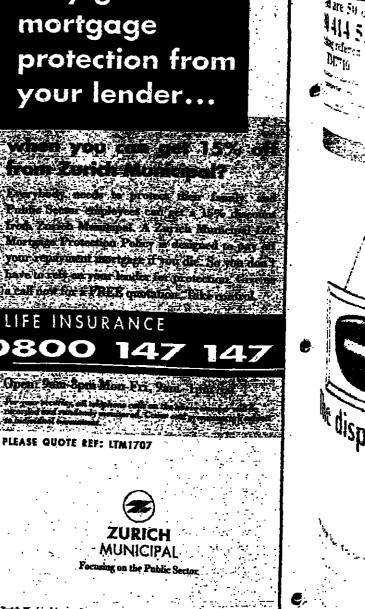

Ambulance Service

MUNICIPAL

e Serb raid

geh deny fil

htsover

beil in lite

Dealis Jospin retaliates Jospin retaliates Starten for Bastille Day Attack by Chirac attack by Chirac

From Ben Macintyre in paris

A BARELY civil war of words broke out yesterday between the two most powerful men in France, when Lionel Jospin. the Prime Minister, sternly reminded President Chirac to stick to his constitutional role and the head of state, equally sharply, told M Jospin that he would continue to express his views at will.

M Jospin's veiled warning came after strong criticisms of the Socialist Government's policies made by the President in his Bastille Day television interview this week.

"Following the statements of the President on July 14, the Prime Minister recalled in Cabinet the prerogatives which constitutionally are those of the President and Prime Minister," M Jospin's spokesman said, in reaction to M Chirac's statement that he had "a pre-eminent role, the

The Elysée Palace promptly shot back, stating that "the President of the Republic will continue to tell the French people, when he judges it necessary, what he thinks about the important issues for the future of France." The conservative President and left-wing Prime Minister have been locked into a difficult and ill-defined "cohabitation" since the centre-right Government was ousted in parliamentary elections six weeks ago, but the relationship has soured even more rapidly than expected. While both President and Prime Minister invoke the French constitution, and M Chirac repeatedly insists he wants a "constructive cohabitation", the constitution is vague on precisely where the power of one leader ends and

In his Bastille Day address,

Boston Beer 4 x 440ml Cans Pack

Britons injured in Spanish bus crash

FROM GILES TREMLETT

TWENTY-SIX British tourists were injured yesterday when their bus overturned on a tight bend on mountains above Barcelona.

Police said that two of the Britons were seriously hurt one suffered head wounds, the other a broken collar bone. The driver was also badly hurt.

Several children and elderly people were among those injured. The tour group was on its way to see a castle and the stadium where the 1992

Olympics were held. The remaining 20 passengers were taken back to the cruise liner Sapphire in which they had travelled to Barcelona.

Deta crackdown: Supporters of the Basque separatist group Eta will be forbidden from shouting "Viva Eta!" and painting slogans under proposed laws to penalise those who defend terrorism or take part in violent protests. The move follows the murder of Miguel Angel Blanco.

Carling Premier Lager | Budgens Cool Bag

Buy 2 Carling Premier 4-Pack

Get a Budgens Coo! Bag

Variety/Ready Salted/Cheese & Onion

7 For The Price of 6 Packs Only! 7 Pack

Stowells Vin de Pays du Tarn White Wine 3 Litre

£12-69 SAVE £2.70 £9.99

Typhoo Tea Bags 80 Pack

£1.65 SAVE 10p £1.55

ESCAFE

Brugens And it

FREE (Save £3.99)

4 x 440ml Cans Packs | £3.99 Each

Walkers Crisps

£1.05

Mission Peak Wine

£2.49 SAVE 50p £2.49

White/Red 75d

£4.39 Each

French deny rift with US over more Serb raids

FROM IAN BRODIE IN WASHINGTON

A TRANSATLANTIC squabble blew up yesterday over a report that France had objected to Nato plans for a second raid to round up accused war criminals in Bosnia as too

The French Government insisted there was no basis for the report on the front page of The New York Times that France had declined to take part in the proposed

In Washington, Clinton Administration officials did not directly rebut the report, saying they could not comment on possible future operations. They did say there was no rift

According to the report, America has been pressing Nato allies to arrest promi-nent Bosnian Serbs charged with war crimes, many of whom live near Pale, the Bosnian Serb capital, an area patrolled by an international force under the command of of Radovan Karadzic, the former Bosnian Serb President, and Ratko Mladic, former military commander, undermined efforts to build a durable peace. The sources declined to say if the pair were targets of the proposed operation.

According to American and French officials, Paris was not opposed to the arrest of promiment Bosnian Serbs wanted for war crimes, but felt the plan was too risky. American officials believed the French decision might not be final, as they have "gone back and forth" about future operations in their sector, the newspaper

There is validity to the argument that a follow-up raid would be hazardous. given that the capture of one accused war criminal by British troops and the killing of another had tipped Nato's hand, presumably prompting Bosnian Serbs to reinforce security.

Yesterday's tiff, caused by American officials apparently portraying the French as balk-The newspaper quoted se when Franco-American in American officials as tions are already rather strained Disagreements suring at another raid, comes and in Madrid where France wanted Romania admitted to Nato but Mr Clinton refused.

leader of the Opposition.

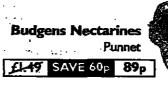

occasions of François Mitter-

and a Socialist he remained."

KP Skips Prawn Cocktail Snacks † 6 Pack 996 SAVE 20p 79p

Arthur's Cat Food (All Varieties) 390g/400g 465 SAVE 7p 39p

Budgens Baby New Potatoes 500g

996 SAVE 40p 59p

Budgens Italian Style Salad (Serving Suggestion) 100g

Budgens Fresh

Large Eggs 6 Pack

Budgens Fresh

Chicken Breast Fillets

Plus 25% Extra Free! 500g

£5.39 SAVE £1.00 £4.39

986 SAVE 39p 59p

795 SAVE 20p 59p

Budgens Fresh

West Country Beef Topside/Silverside/Top Rump

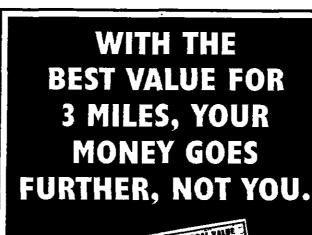

£2.99 SAVE £1.00 £1.99

£6.59 SAVE £2.20 £4.39

Homepride Potato Bake Cheese & Bacon/Bolognese 430g/450g

£H5 SAVE 30p 85p

£1.39 SAVE 40p 99p

If you can purchase an equivalent product of the same quality on this advertisement for less locally, we will refund double the difference. No arguments.*

These are just a selection of the 125 products you'll find on special offer in Budgens at any one time, throughout the year.

McVitie's American Dream Banoffee Pie 420g 12-49 SAVE £1.00 £1.49

Budgens Chocolate Chip Muffins 4 Pack

995 SAVE 20p 79p

Budgens Cheese & Onion Quiche 6 Inch

Heinz Baked Beans

& Sausage Pizza 400g £1.99 SAVE 50p £1.49

Budgens Fresh Peeled

Instant Coffee

200g £3.95 Each

Buy 3 SAVE £2.75

BUDGENS QUALITY CORNER

BUDGENS

WHERE YOUR MONEY GOES FURTHER. NOT YOU.

Heritage Wafer Thin

Smoked Turkey 200g

11.49 SAVE 50p 99p

OFFERS VALID 3.7.97 - 16.7.97. "Equivalent products of the same quality must be on sale in a competitor within a 3 mile radius of Budgers and within 7 days of Budgers product purchase. Applies only to products where you see the 3 Mile Price Promise sign inston

£1.69 SAVE 70p 99p

Dr Thomas Stuttaford on research into a skin disease; a heart warning; creaky knees; a baby bonus; and an old remedy

The pain and shame of psoriasis oriasis, the skin disease in which new skin is created ten times faster in some areas of the body than is usual, results in raised, dry, red and scaly patches. It affects 2 per cent of the population and has a tendency to form at points where there is constant friction or minor trauma, such as on the elbows, knees, the front of the legs and on the scalp. Psoriasis is also a nuisance where clothing is right and the skin is tender, such as beneath the belt around the navel and in the genital and peri-anal area.

When psoriasis attacks the fingernails, the condition is all too obvious as the nails become thickened, pitted and raised from their beds. One in ten patients with the disease develops a form of arthritis similar to rheumatoid arthritis, and for these people psoriasis is not only a cosmetic problem, but one that causes pain and disability.

From biblical times until after the late Middle Ages, doctors did not distinguish between psoriasis and the skin manifestations of leprosy. Sufferers were then treated like lepers, the public was warned of their impending presence, and they had to take Communion separately, discreetly hidden away at the side of the chancel so that their blotchy, scaly faces and hands could be kept out of sight of the healthy congregation.

When the disease became too widespread, patients with psoriasis were incarcerated in hospitals for

However enlightened most people are nowadays about disfigurement, a minority is still repelled by any skin disease, particulary if it affects the face, and patients with psoriasis become acutely conscious of their appearance. Not surprisingly, this self-consciousness affects their sex lives. Research from the University of Western Ontario, recently published in the International Journal of Dermatology, found that more than 40 per cent of patients with psoriasis said that it affected their libido, particularly those whose patches were widespread, affected the groin, or where the disease was complicated

Only one in four of the patients whose sex life was blighted said that this was the result of their partner's reaction to the disease.

Patients whose love life had suffered because of psoriasis were those who were also more likely to be depressed and to drink heavily. In these cases it was difficult to know whether the loss of libido was the result of the skin disease or whether it was a manifestation of the heavier drinking and change in mood.

Although the cause of psoriasis is unknown, other than that the disease is in part familial, it has been shown that it is worse if the patient drinks too much alcohol, is anxious or depressed. It is also worse in patients who take beta-blockers to treat their high blood pressure. All these factors may not have been taken fully into account in the survey.

Psoriasis is improved by exposure to sunlight or by a change of mood. The effect of both of these factors provides a possible, logical explanation for some of the miraculous cures of leprosy which have followed a pilgrimage. The combination of exposure to sun while walking to a shrine, coupled with the sense of relief derived from worshipping, whether at Walsingham or Lourdes, in those who have previously been tormented by their anxieties could well have accounted for the occasional miracle

The late playwright Dennis Potter, pictured with actress Gina Bellman, suffered from psoriasis

Psoriasis may not be curable by traditional means but it can be treated, and this treatment is constantly improving.

Newer preparations such as bovonex. Calcipotriol and Curatoderm tacalcitol are less staining than coal tar products or Dithranol in Lassar's paste. Micanol, which should be applied only to tough skin, is less messy than Dithranol. Light treatment with narrow band UVB is a simpler procedure than the old-style PUVA

Topical steroids may be needed in some cases, but the skin is likely to become resistant to them.

Dr Malcolm Rustin, a consultant dermatologist at the Royal Free

Hospital in London, which continues an active research programme into psoriasis, says: "The outlook for patients is constantly improving. New products are being developed which are not only more effective but more pleasant to use. Even so, we don't neglect old remedies and are just starting a clinical trial to determine the value of extracts of native British herbs in the treatment of their inevitable appointment with the grim reaper should not only beware of butter and rich sauces, but should also be eating their asparagus. broccoli and lentils; choosing liver rather than harnburgers and, so long as they are dining later in the day, drinking large quantities of orange or other fruit juice.

Why folic acid is good for the heart

A preoccupation with the level of cholesterol is no longer enough, for homocysteine is every bit as important a factor in the battle to defeat heart attacks and other cardio-vascular diseases. It has taken 20 years for doctors, and the general public. to become convinced of the importance of maintaining a low blood cholesterol level in patients at risk of heart disease. One reason why there have been so many sceptics is that statistics show that high levels of cholesterol only account for a comparatively small proportion, about 20 per cent, of heart attacks or other vascular disasters. One of the important influences on the cardio-vascular system which is now being thoroughly investigated is the level of homocysteine. The higher the level of this amino acid. the greater the chance of

Dr Christopher Schorah, senior lecturer in chemical pathology at Leeds University, who has spent many years investigating homocysteine and the role of folic acid in cardio-vascular disease, says: "It has been found that homocysteine is an even more important risk factor in cardio-vascular disease than is raised cholesterol, and it is an independent factor in the determination of the likelihood of someone having a heart attack, a stroke, or suffering obstruction of a peripheral artery such as those leading to the legs or feet."

High levels of homocysteine may be the result of a hereditary deficiency in the enzymes involved in its metabolism, kidney disease, or a lack in the diet of folic acid, vitamin Bl2 or vitamin B6. Folic acid is found in nature in fresh fruit, vegetables and liver or these sources can be supplemented by folic acid tablets found at any chemist. Except in absurd overdosage it has no side effects. Folic acid deficiency is a very important cause of raised homocysteine and the differences in the amount of folic acid in the diet may account for the wide disparity in the incidence of heart disease The higher found in different socio-ecothe level, nomic groups. A rich man's diet. despite the sauces and the greater the butter, may cause less heart chance of disease than would be expectdisaster ed because it is also rich in folates and the affluent will therefore have lower levels of homocysteine than the poor. Dr Schorah's research has shown that folate blood levels in the better off may be 40 per cent higher than in the less affluent.

s increased folate levels reduce homocysteine an obvious answer would seem to fortify common foods with folic acid. Already many breakfast cereals are enriched with the vitamin, and market research has shown that these are bought by more than 70 per cent of households. The next step, which has been firmly advocated in a leader in the British Medical Journal, written by Professor Nicholas Wald of St Bartholomew's Hospital and the Royal London Hospital, is for flour also to be supplemented with folic acid. Government approval for this is awaited.

THE SUNDAY TIMES Why Mr Kakimoto went 24 hours without sleep, spent $37m, and still wept with joy. In the Magazine this weekend THE SUNDAY TIMES IS THE SUNDAY PAPERS

A habit that was painful

SCIENTISTS have been studying the skeletons of monks that have lain beneath the crypt of St Stephen's monastery in Jeru-salem for the past 1,500 years. The British Medical Journal reports that the skeletons showed that most of the monks had suffered from osteoarthritis of the knee joints during their lives. The BMJ suggests that this osteoarthritis was probably the result of constant kneeling at prayers; presum ably a condition akin to the arthritis suffered by modern electricians who develop it when they are working in cramped conditions

while installing wiring. Other possibilities would be that the hard work in the fields and monastery gardens was too much for the monks' knees. A less charitable thought is that they might have been overfed in the refectory. Knees are seven times more likely than hips to be affected by obesity. Whatever the cause, the monks had to suffer the pain without any efficient antiinflammatory drugs. This pain may have made them miserable, but the absence of the drugs meant that they were spared the hazard of peptic ulceration or haemorrhage.

Both conditions, the most worrying of the side-effects of this invaluable group of drugs, are less likely if either Arthrotec, which contains the gastro-intestinal protective Misoprostol, or Mobic . which works in a slightly different way, are prescribed. Though more expensive, the difference in safety is striking and makes the cost worthwhile.

Constant kneeling can lead to osteoarthritis

THE Siamese twins who were operated on at Great Ormond Street Hospital in Twins can provide London are now home, and doing well, in Manchester. The operation was a great success, but it wasn't quite as simple as has been assumed. The babies were joined at the liver, which is comparatively easily divided and very quickly regenerates. But although the hearts were separate, the pericardial sac — the bag in which the heart lies — was shared between the cancer protection twins. A new sac had to be fashioned for one of the babies.

The mother now has two consolations. She has the pleasure of the company of pair of healthy babies, as well as the reassurance that having twins means that she is one-third less likely to develop cancer of the breast than other mothers. The Imperial Cancer Research Fund recently reported in the British Journal of Cancer that a study of 4,800 Swedish women showed that mothers of twins had an increased resistance to this tumour. Researchers from the Fund are now trying to isolate the factors involved in twin births which provide this protection, and also to find out whether the immunity is present equally in fraternal or identical

A foul-tasting memory

A DISTINGUISHED doctor who is now recovering from prostatic surgery was amazed when the nursing staff not only lacked a mixture of potassium citrate in the ward cupboard to alleviate his pain on urinating, but had never heard of it. Thirty years ago, the standard treatment of mild cystitis was to render the urine alkaline with regular doses of this foul-tasting mixture, which could just about be tolerated if it was combined with concentrated orange juice. In those days, ready-prepared Mist. Pot. Cit. was held in every ward in huge bottles ready for dispensing by the nursing staff. Now a course of antibiotics is prescribed. The most recent antibiotic regime to be introduced for the treatment of simple cysti-tis is Ciproxin, a small 100mg tablet taken twice a day for three days. This dose is usually enough to treat simple cystitis, commonly the result of infection with E-coli, so that the patient's comfort is restored, and the invading bacteria eliminated.

It is essential that a specimen of urine is sent for culture in the laboratory at the start of treatment so that if the infection does not clear, the sensitivity of any organism is known, and other tests to exclude a chlamydial or gonococcal urethritis, sexually transmitted diseases, may be undertaken.

while in the

Juay 11 Ty

10 egy gyz

-

.574

V.

وسفحه و

•

د کا او

wing.

الفيارية

برنساني فيسا

from
There are rules to decoration and they do not include Christmas trees or coloured candles. But if you live in the suburbs, flying ducks are fixed the designer David H suburbs, flying ducks are fine, says the designer David Hicks

Candles

should be long and never any colour but white

THE TIMES THURSDAY JULY 17 1997

aboos haven't changed Nancy Mitford in her essay written 40 years ago on U and Non-U was simply bringing back 18th-century ideas of behaviour, banishing Victorian affectation. The same rules apply in decoration.

People might accuse me of breaking colour codes, but I have only been looking at the most traditional users of colour. I found shocking pink. pure and scarlet in the robes of the Roman Catholic Church. Violet seats and scarlet walls were the result of seeing scarlet lipstick worn with a

Also, now that we mix old and new, the dictates of the time don't necessarily apply. My Louis XVI chairs are not covered in dainty woven silk but tweed. Obviously. Directoire chairs would not originally have had Thai silk on them, but does that matstarted using violet leather on chairs instead of damask. indecision is at the root of most bad rooms. Rugs laid on natural. At night, when lit, it carpet are irritating (they lack style) and they creep. Halftiled rooms are a sign of weakness, as are variegated plants or two-tone cars. My job is to help people who can't decide.

Three ducks flying above the mantelpiece (rather than the chimneypiece) is fine, as are cocktail cabinets, if you live in suburbia. Drinks should always be on a marble. or stone-topped table. Cocktails, like so many other things, are a dreadful import from America. My father, born in 1863, never would have contemplated gin. Framed reproductions of paintings are definitely taboo. One might just about get away with an Old Master drawing from a Christie's catalogue, properly line-mounted and Silver-framed photographs, even of the Royal Family, are taboo in a drawing-room but gilded silver is OK. Gilt is all right for objets de vertu, but they must be small. Silver is for the dining room and nowhere else.

I can't bear polished mahogany dining tables. They must be covered. I like small patterns or white damask table cloths. Bare tables came in in the 1920s - and for me are quite Out.

Candles, whether real or electric, should be long. One would only see short candles towards the end of the eveviolet silk dress. It may appear modern, but it is reimposing ning. One should never see the source of light; candles should always be shaded and never any colour but white. i hate cyclamen in pots and Christmas trees are be yond the pale. If you have to have something, bring in a wonderful branch. Paint it and put lights on it,

of those awful nee-

die-dropping trees

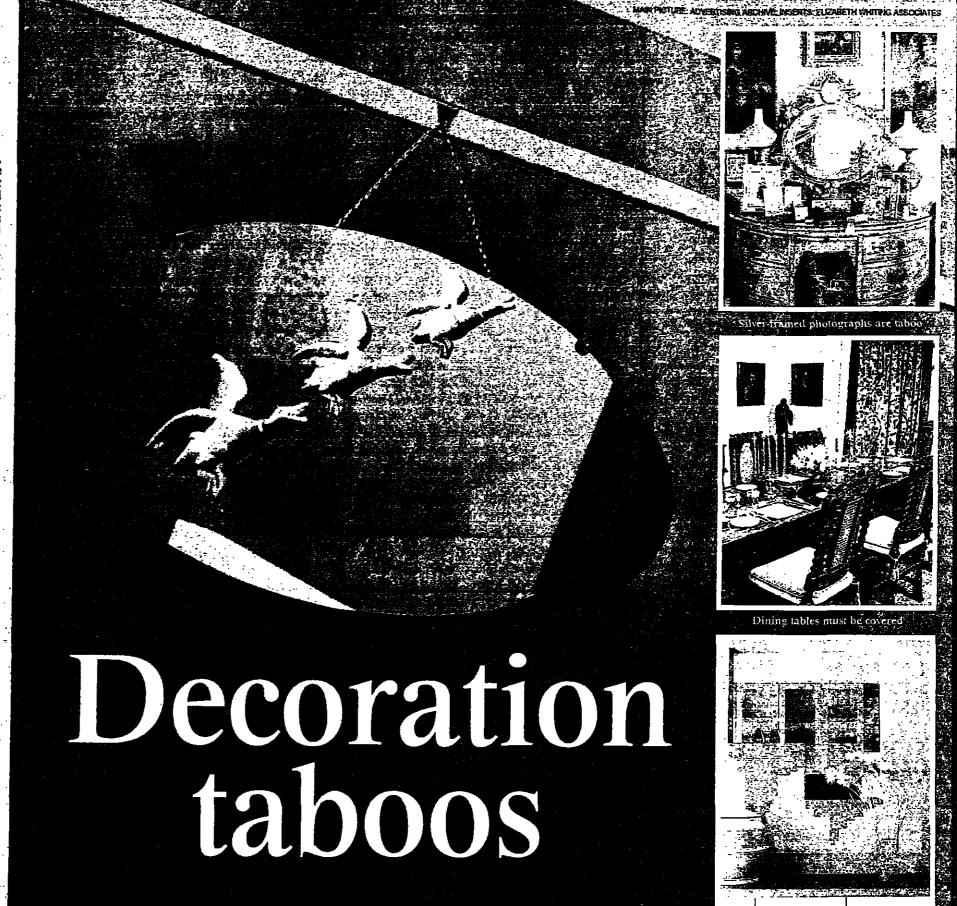

in the house. Bright blue swimming pools are vulgar. I have a black one as it looks most appears like a black opal. Don't have too much mown

The nouveau riche love wrought iron. I hate it except all that Tijoux metalwork at Hampton Court and Chatsworth. Picture rails are totally

... Men in the suburbs of remote places like Maastricht seem to have caught the habit of carrying handbags. I suppose it must seem terribly. exciting to them.

Cars should be black, white or grey, or possibly very dark green. Cars ruin everything architecture and country. The Duke of Wellington's resistance to trains looks very wise in retrospect.

Goodbye! Englishmen don't shake hands. • This article first appeared in ined, when I scattered my silver photograph frames careful artlessness around the sitting room of our flat in London, that I was decorating within the hounds of good taste. David Hicks. the interior designer, would disagree. Siver-framed photo-are taboo, he opines. To the list of things he can't. hogany dining tables; they . They are, according to Mr graphs in the drawing room

BREAKING THE RULES

should be covered with a table of time polishing it to make it cloth. Oh dear, mine is uncovered and what is more, I spend an inordinate amount even more lustrous. Candles should always be long and shaded. Mine surely cannot be long enough at six inches.

- But my worst fault must be that I love Christmas trees. Hicks, "beyond the pale". Mr Hicks would hate my flat, especially at Christmas when it smells sweetly of pine and the silver photograph frames glow in the guttering candlelight of my stunted candles.

The colour of your car can let you down, too. Black, white, grey or very dark green at a pinch. Mr Hicks has a

The owner of a British racing green Ford Capri presumably would be welcome to park outside the Hicks pile.

I expect he would find much to complain about in the houses I have visited for this newspaper's property pages. He abhors the bright blue swimming-pool. One house not only had a pool of the bright blue variety, it also had an image of a shark picked out in mosaic. A loft apartment broke the rule on no framed reproductions several times over. In an effort to fill the vast amount of wall space, the owners had covered one wall with a patchwork

Three ducks flying above the mantelpiere is fine - if you live in suburbia quilt effect of these prints. Another house that would have had him spluttering is the Duchess of York's former home. It had the lot: the blue pool, the polished table, the silver photograph frames in the sitting room. Mr Hicks states that even photographs of the Royal Family are banned in this respect.

I WONDER what he would have to say about the silver-framed photographs that Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother has strewn about her drawing room in Clarence House. I am pleased to report, however, that she has not sinned on the framed reproduction front

If I were to have imposed Mr Hicks's code on every house I have entered, they would nearly all have failed, like me. Also, like me, most owners probably don't much care about the rules and will continue to suit themselves. I stand by my hostas (variegated), which he deplores, my candles (stumpy) and I can't wait for Christmas when, after lunch at our shiny table, we sit around our abominable

> KATHERINE BERGEN

Bank of Scotland Mortgages Direct®

NOTICE OF INTEREST RATE VARIATION

The following rates for mortgages provided by Bank of Scotland. Mortgages Direct will apply as from 17th July 1997 for both new and existing borrowers.

> Bank of Scotland Mortgages Direct Variable Rate 8.49% per annum.

Bank of Scotland Mortgages Direct Preferential Variable Rate 7.49% per annum.

Bank of Scotland Mortgages Direct Personal Choice® Variable Rate 8.19% per annum.

BANK OF SCOTLAND MORTGAGES DIRECT

0800 810 810

Bank of Scotland Mortgages Direct. Personal Choice and 👯 are registered trademarks of The Concrace and Company of the Bank of Scotland

•Crystal Clear Connections ◆Free Instant Connection •Free Itemised Monthly Statements

I8p Germany 61p Bangladesh 60p France 67p Malaysia Kenya

all prices include VAT

New Zealand Ghana For full details and savings to hundreds of other countries call FREE on

•You Can Use Any Touch-tone Phone 'It's so much cheaper with OYSTEL!'

> Only Hovercraft ensures your Summer Channel crossing really flies by

With 12 daily crossings from 6.30am in peak season, check in and in no time you're off - flying the Channel in just 35 minutes.

With in-flight seat service all the way. And no hold-ups when you touch down either, thanks to our hassle-free unloading. So you're on your way to your holiday destination - while conventional ferries are still mid-Channel. 🕝

Call us today. And land this Summer's best value

Off peak fare. Supplements payable on peak and standard services. Prices valid until December 31st.

A day for Scotland's bravehearts

Magnus Linklater on the birth

pangs of an Edinburgh parliament

f the headlines are to be believed, this morning's . Cabinet committee to approve the final proposals for a Scottish parliament is the place to be. Lurid accounts of its meetings in recent weeks have told of seething rows. last-ditch battles, and bitter animosity between ministers. The "bravehearts", led by Donald Dewar, the Scottish Secretary, have apparently fought off vicious attacks from "English nationalists". headed by the Home Secre-tary, Jack Straw, Jack Cunningham, Frank Dobson and others have sought and won major concessions on the powers to be retained by Westminster. Frequently, it is said, Mr Dewar has slunk back to the Scottish Office after a long day of furious debate, his face gaunt and drained.

Since that is how Mr Dewar normally looks. I am not quite sure how the reporters were able to tell. But I have no doubt that there has been friction this, after all, is perhaps the most significant constitutional change in Britain since 1832. and next week's White Paper will reveal far-reaching plans which have lurked far too long behind anodyne statements of vague intent. Even Mr Dewar admits it will be "controversial". It is not surprising, therefore, that the press has detected evidence of ministerial turbulence.

What has been remain as unexpected is the hostility and even contempt directed against Labour's plans by newspapers that might have been expected to welcome them. The Scotsman. whose long history of support for devolution should by rights have placed it among the cheerleaders, has been virulent in opposing what it describes as "deeply flawed" proposals. "A bastard child of constitutional compromise was the phrase used by one of its columnists recently.

You do not, however, need to be blind to the problems ahead to adopt a more constructive approach. The key areas of contention remain what they have always been: tax, the ultimate sovereignty of Westminster, and the West Lothian question. Any one of these could, of course, be enough to scupper plans for a proper rather than a pretend parliament. Too much tax and you introduce a fiscal imbalance between England and Scotland which leads to instability. Too great a legislarive remit and you undermine Westminster's ultimate authority and thus the Union itself. Too many MPs denied the right to vote on Scottish matters, and you promote an English nationalist backlash. On the other hand, it is possible to go too far the other way in limiting the powers of a Scottish parliament, ending up with the "pygmy parlia-ment" that Michael Forsyth used to deride as Secretary of State. It would be hard to imagine anything more calculated to play into the hands of

The alternative, and the one I expect the White Paper to adopt, is to look at the powers ers; and to ensure that the Scottish Office - far greater over a range of policies than any single Whitehall departthem. But it is an autonomy exercised by civil servants behind closed doors. It needs to be exposed to genuine debate, to be rendered accountable and open, with MPs to challenge its assumptions as well as framing its legislation. A parliament armed with powers which could influence begin with at least, within the public funding formula which gives Scots an advantage of some 25 per cent per head over their English counterparts. That could not be guaranteed for ever, and since there has not been a proper review since the early 1970s, there would have to be some means of reassessing it. Tax-varying powers would be All the key included, but since these would be limcontention ited to 3 per cent on the basic rate of income tax, their effect would be at best marginal. And the West Lothian question? My bet is that it will simply be bypassed. The number of Scottish MPs at Westminster will be left intact, their powers over local constituency matters inevitably diminished, as will those of English MPs on Scottish issues: Sooner or later, I suspect, this situation will become untenable, and the numbers of MPs from Scotland will be ers limited. But I believe that it will be tackled in the pragmatic way by which the British constitution has always changed. No likely future Government will wish to destabilise a Scottish parliament, provided it is working

areas of

they were

f this new constitutional baby is to survive, it will require a large measure of goodwill, from opponents as well as faint-hearted supporters. It may not be the perfect creature that everyone wanted, but those who want to stille at birth should remember the fury this will cause among those who have waited so patiently for it to appear. Finally — and I have always wanted to say "you read it here first" - it seems as if the home for the new Scottish parliament may indeed be a brand new building rather than the cramped premises in the Royal High School on Calton Hill. as I predicted recently in these columns. Let us hope the result, when it is commissioned, is a truly imaginative building, a suitable home for what is meant to be a brave new institution.

held by the Scottish Office and to give them democratic form: to add limited tax-raising powparliament has strong crossparty representation. Few people, even Scots, are aware of the present autonomy of the ment, and the envy of many of the ability to make the laws of the land and with spending everything from health and housing to transport and educarion, could be a formidable engine for change.
It would have to operate, to Church of England report published These ideas are not Marxist, but they are socialist. They were developed in the Roman Catholic Church of the late 19th century as a middle way between Marxism and a then anti-clerical liberalism. In England they owe their origin to the Webbs, to the early Fabian Society and to the writings of William Temple, who was Archbishop of Canterbury in the early 1940s They hold that the State should take responsibility for major economic decisions in order to promote social welfare. Specifically, they recommend a full-employment policy based on high taxation to finance the state creation of jobs. David Sheppard has a personal view that the State is now exaggerating the priority of education; the socialism of the Christian Churches has more often shared that high priority for education.

Synod of the Church of England adopted an ecumenical report. An Inquiry into Unemployment and the Future of Work, which was presented by David Sheppard, who is shortly to retire as Bishop of Liverpool. He is a deservedly popular figure, has been an excellent bishop and is unquestionably a good man. The report represents views which are characteristic of the Roman Catholic hierarchy as much as of the Church of England. Much the same set of ideas was to be found in Faith in the City, a

This is a substantial intellectual tradition, and it deserves to be criticised as such, It is, however, coposed to strong modern trends of economic thought, on the Left as well as on the Right. It is strange that in July 1997 the Church of England should formally adopt the economic philosophy of old Labour. There are no doubt plenty of old Labour people still around, but it was new Labour, with its acceptance of open-market principles, which won the largest election victory of the century only two and a half months ago. Plainly the Church of England is out of sympathy with the open-market element in Tony Blair's thinking, however much sympathy he may have with Anglican social

It is Lionel Jospin, himself much influenced by Roman Catholic social thinking, whose vision the General

" SAY 'AAAAAAARGH!""

Bishops buy a job lot

The Church of England's support for old-style state intervention is a

William

sure route to economic damnation

Synod seems most closely to share. He believes that state intervention, the creation of jobs by the State, and the defence of jobs, even where that means accepting low productivity. are the best way to combat unemploy-ment. So does David Sheppard; so does the report.

For the Church of England to side with the French Socialist leader is understandable in terms of the Catholic social tradition, but is harder to justify when one looks at the level of French unemployment. After a decade and a half of French socialist policies, one person in eight in France is out of work, a much worse record It is not only the French example which suggests that socialism, even of the Fabian or Catholic kind, is not a successful way to raise the level of employment. In the 1990s there has been a worldwide pattern of economic success which has included low taxes, relatively high growth, low government expenditure and large job creation in the private sector. The countries which have conformed to this pattern have enjoyed low unemployment. There has also been a contrasting pattern of high taxes, relatively low growth, high public expenditure and little job creation in the private sector. These have been the countries with high unemployment

During the 1980s, Margaret
Thatcher moved Britain from the second group towards the first. Tony Blair made the historic decision to accept this part of the Thatcherite revolution. The General Synod thinks that Britain ought to move back towards the second group. What is odd is that they do so in the name of reducing unemployment, when the semi-socialist group of nations has snown a strong tendency for unemployment to rise.

Because this is a Church matter, it is natural to assume that it is also a moral issue. It is no such thing. It is an intellectual one. People like my-self, who want Britain to move further towards the open-market, low-tax group of countries, do so because we believe that will increase job opportunities; that it will not only create more jobs, but better ones. I do not disagree with David Sheppard's objectives of improving job opportunity and reducing unem-ployment. I fully share them. I do quarrel with his belief that the State can perform that function better than private individuals and businesses. All the current evidence is that the State does it much Church of England's policy on unemployment is that it would tend to increase unemployment, perhaps even to French levels.

That could just be an innocent error, but it is not altogether innocent. Bishops quite rightly criticise ignorant laymen who make theological pronouncements without having bothered to read any theology. Catholic bishops raise their eyebrows at journalists who think that the doctrine of the Immaculate Conception is the same as the doctrine of the Virgin Birth. Much innocent fun has been had from such theological blunders. But the bishops and the synod have failed to confront the intellectual case for open market economic theory. They denounce monetarism without knowing what it is. They think that Maynard Keynes is a good economist, but few of them have read The General Theory, they mistakenly think that Adam Smith is an out-ofdate economist, but hardly one of them has read The Wealth of Nations. Few of them have any idea that the Austrian school ever existed. It is entirely understandable that bishops are too busy to have acquired the knowledge needed to reach a pass in A-level economics, but they should hesitate to adopt dogmatic positions on technical questions of which most of them are almost entirely ignorant. There is a danger in the parochial-ism of the Church of England's view. The world is rapidly becoming a single economy, connected by individual personal communications via the Internet. Socialism puts economic responsibility on the national government; it assumes that the individual economy is a free-standing unit which its national government can more or less control. The Church of England now calls on the British Government to make economic interventions which obviously depend on effective power. As the global economy erodes the power of the national governments, they will not be able to carry out such policies, even if they want to. As in France, the attempt to maintain local autonomy may itself make whole industries non-

Already the world seems to be dividing between countries which understand the global economic towards protection. France is now more socialist economy than Russia; even the United States has a far higher tax regime than China. The atternot to protect local economic advantages is almost certain to fail. The popularity of French Socialism, on which Lionel Jospin won the French election six weeks ago, is this protectionism. The General Synod has taken the same protectionist view about jobs, and calls on the British Government to create and protect decent jobs for all". That is not possible, but the attempt could be disastrous.

owever well-intentioned. such a policy cannot pro-tect; it is building walls of sand against the ocean. It can, however, result in over-taxation and over-regulation which can make a whole society uncompetitive. The export of jobs from Germany and France is a warning of the harm socialist economic theory can do. when it reinforces the popular demand for protectionism. Perhaps fortunately, the General Synod has little influence on national policy. The danger is much greater in Europe. There, the same Christian social policies have shaped the thinking of whole political parties. Europe is falling behind in the competition of the global economy.

Versace and the panthers

Artists thrive on risk, says Rachel

Campbell-Johnston

gold Medusa's head was Gianni Versace's trademark. The reptilian gorgon glares from his designs - a mocking memento mori for slick socialites. But this emblem of gilded death attains a grislier symbolism in the light of the recent murder of Versace. This was a man who not only stitched his seams, but lived his life, along the extravagant razor's edge of danger.

Miami police are searching for one suspect: Andrew Cunanan. An embittered male prostitute with Aids and a leihal vendetta against his rich clients. Cunanan is no longer thought to have been a former lover of Versace's, though the fashion design-er was a promiscuous homosexual if it does turn out that Cunanan is his murderer, then Versace will join the long line of gay artists and writers who have suffered violence or death at the hands of "rough trade".

Examples are legion. Johann Jo-achim Winckelmann, the pioneer of art history and rediscoverer of the Greek ideal, met his fate at the hands of an inflammatory catamite in Trieste. More recently, the biographer James Pope-Hennessy was found appallingly butchered in his London flat. Pier Paolo Pasolini, who brought such bawdy adaptations as Il Decamerone to the screen, was bludgeoned to death by a passing piece of rough trade. Joe Orton. whose What the Butler Saw carried farcical traditions of threatened adultery forward into the murky realms of incest and violent sex, seemed to write himself into his own script. He too was brutally murdered by his male lover.

Homosexual artists such as Michelangelo Caravaggio, Christopher Marlowe, Arthur Rimbaud, Francis Bacon and perhaps — though the jury is still out on their talent — Robert Mapplethorpe and Derek Jarman had one thing in common: each broke down the boundaries of convention in his work. Versace too was a believer in fearless fashion. Mocking the world of pret a porter, he derived inspiration from prostitu-tion. He looked beyond the sensual and found the sexual instead — leather and later, body harnesses and studded skirts, spike heels and thigh length boots. Shorter, tighter, higher, deeper, became a motto. By sheer force of personality, he forced the richest and loveliest women in the Rimbaud suggested that the artist could become a seer, a visionary, only by a long and prodigious disordering of all the senses, a balking at the limitations of the norm. It was only by going too far that there was anything to be gained, said Bacon. This ethos extended from their art into their lives. Not for these men the neat mundarity of stable structures: instead a headlong flight into the realms of risk, into the underworld.

Many of the most inspiring works of art expose human vulnerability by laying bare the terrifying duality of man. As Edgar Degas wrote: "Art is vice. You don't marry it legitimately, you rape it." Dionysius casts a black shadow over Apollonian order.

The urge to create is intricately entwined with the will to destroy: Revolution feasts on violence and ruin. Many of our most powerful artists did not so much develop and perfect the styles and techniques of their predecessors, as shatter them. The new was built up on the wreckage of the past. Art became the sum of its own destruc-

The sadomasochism of violent homosexual encounters is a manifestation of this instinct for destruction. But it is also concerned with the tauming play of a power, with the forces of manipulation and control. With good reason, Versace was reticent about his own sexual inclinations and practices, but in his work his imagery was flagrant. Exulting in the success of his 1993 collection, he jeered at critics and customers alike:
They said these clothes belonged only in a leather bar," he bragged. "And now, last night, there were 200 socialites in bondage."

Such power play is perilous. The shadow-side of homosexual experimentation seems far from "gay" - it is driven and daemonic. The fight ends in the kill. Francis Bacon's lover, George Dyer, consumed by jezlousies and the sour depressions of drugs and drink, chose suicide as his means of revenge. On the opening night of Bacon's 1971 Paris retrospective, when adulating audiences lined the boulevards, he overdosed in his hotel room. Bacon's famous triptych depicting his lover's last hours show with mixed brutality and tenderness images of Dyer vomiting in a basin. stiding through shadows, and slumped on the lavatory pan as he finally passed away.

And so the fatal triangle of art, sex and death has claimed another victim. The ambitions of these destructive geniuses are symbolised by Christopher Marlowe's two great dramatic creations - Faustus, who sells his sout to the Devil, and and Tamburlaine, who tries to conquer the world. Like Versace, Marlowe was mysteriously murdered: whether a contract killing, or a quarrel arising from a homosecual, affair, it was a sordid death. Oscar Wilde liked to P-H-S speak of "leasing with panthers".

Panthers are not pussycats.

Re-lease me

$\text{S}$ million-plus to buy the freehold to Conservative Central Office, 32 Smith Square. London SW1, built in 1958 and home to the Tory party's headquarters since 1959, is being sold by Royal Sun Alliance. the recently merged insurance company which is tidying up its property investments.

The Tories bought the freehold the building in 1981 from Westminster council for £1,325,000: then, in a piece of financial legerdemain, sold it in 1982 for £3,750,000 to a group

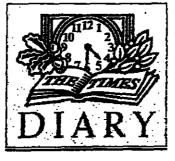

Tory Central Office: for sale

packed with Tory dignitaries called the Bourne Association, who promptly leased it back to the party for 250 years at a peppercorn rent. Poky, and representing the worst of late-Eighties grey, pink and blue corporate design, it is prehistoric compared with the Labour Party's Star Trek-style Millbank headquarters. On the other hand, the lease on it has been useful collateral when party chairmen, most recently Brian Mawhinney, have had to take out bank loans to fund election campaigns.

Lord Harris of Peckham, the former Tory party treasurer, was known to hate the place, and regularly advocated a move to a proper, purpose-built office block. William Hague's management consultants are likely to support him, particularly if the building is bought by someone unsympathetic to the Tories, say Mohamed Al Fayed. "It would be a relief to get out," says one of those still working there. It looks like a stale Battenberg cake and has all the atmosphere of an Ostend brothel."

♠ After my note on Saturday concerning the ever-more parky figure of Robin Cook, the Foreign Secretary, action seems to have heen taken. Lunch with Cook at the Foreign Office now consists of sandwiches and warm water - not a glass of wine or beer in sight. Meanwhile, the food at the Foreign Secretary's official residence. Carlton Gardens, is at an all-time low. Recent visitors describe meals of Dickensian meanness: no starter, boned lamb cutlets sliced as thin as the cucumber in a duchess's teatime sandwich, and peach halves with shaving foam cream.

Oh, crumbs

STARKLY differing accounts are emerging on the subject of the Prime Minister's diet. When in London, it seems wild horses could not keep him out of its flashy metropolitan restaurants: Le Pont de la Tour with Clinton, the River Cafe with Lord Rogers of Riverside. Granita in Islangton with Gordon Brown. Ask his Labour friends in the North of England and they tell you that Blair cannot get enough of the stortie, a sort of Geordie bap.

It fell to Ronnie Campbell, MP for Blyth Valley, to bring one to a athering at No 10 this week of Labour MPs from the North East. "As soon as Campbell walked in Blair was demanding his stottie." says Stephen Herburn, MP for Jarrow. "He eats one every night before bed." The tales of the PM's diet grew ever more improbable with the intervention of John Burton. Blair's constituency agent from Sedgefield. "Tony is certainly partial to a stottie, especially with his fish and chips when he comes

"It's not really going to frighten the EU away if they want to see your set-aside cheque" home." Presumably served up by Cherie slapping around in apron and silver mules.

• Still wallowing in his victory at the British Grand Prix on Sunday, Jacques Villeneuve, the racing driver, was smartly reminded of Britain's hard-won reputation as the joyriding capital of Europe when his moped and helmet were stolen from the Northamptonshire countryside. Police recovered the moped in the hideous Preston Court Lumbertubs area of Northampton. Five youths have been arrested and released on bail charged with the theft. The helmet is still at large.

Dear John

LIKE just another designer swimsuit, the pop singer Elton John has been cast aside by his friend Diana. Princess of Wales, The two had grown close through their shared interests in fashion and Aids charities. Close friends of John, however, say the pair have fallen out.

The sput originated in February when Diana withdrew her support from the Rock and Royalty Aids benefit ball organised by John. She objected to a racy book of photographs put together by the murdered fashion designer Gianni Versace to accompany the ball. As a a result. John called off the whole show. While planning the ball, John is said to have suggested to Diana that she might care to auction off some of her dresses to raise money. When Diana followed up the suggestion, however, she publicly attributed it to her son. Prince William, leaving one peeved John. All could have been saved when John wrote to the Princess recently expressing his sorrow about the turn their relationship was taking. Instead of an olive branch, he received a stiff, formal letter advising him to send any further correspondence via the Buckingham Palace postroom. "Elton used to be a great admirer of Diana," said one close friend of the singer's, "but now he just feels hurt."

Elion John: hurt not angry

(علدًا من الأصل

e vier piere The same of Market State The second second

ICAKTICTIO

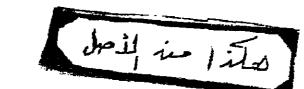

....

10 mg

يون پيدائي المان

Resp. Carry

THE REAL PROPERTY.

MESTING THE STATE OF THE STATE

Campbell-Johns

ARTES IN CO.

1 mg.

a a s

9 97

200 PR-10

编 1. 3-

- Selection of the -

Parties in the Con-

9 . .WE

100 To 100

Property of

Appende Sar ea

Carlo Contract

建

A THE

a stadio.

* * ***

Biranet.

AR. 35.

建. 多识 55。

EASTWARD, LOOK

The beginning of open warfare over EU enlargement

The European Commission has christened its fat tome on managing the eastward enlargement of the European Union Agenda 2000. This overworked millennial imagery has rarely been less apposite. No one expects the European Union to admit new members by 2000, and the Commission's own deliberately vague target of around 2002 is unlikely to be met. With the partial exception of Britain and the Scandinavians, enlargement is not so much on the back burner in most EU countries as clean out of the kitchen.

The retreat is most marked in Germany. once enlargement's continental champion. For all the warm words that Helmut Kohl lavished on Poland's Prime Minister this week between mouthfuls of pig-stomach, he was careful not to name the day; and in Austria last month Karl Lamers, his confidant and Christian Democrat spokesman, let slip 15 years as a probable timetable.

The main reason is not far to seek. The obsessive pursuit of economic and monetary union has warped what was once a clear political perception of the gains in security and economic dynamism to be had by embracing Europe's new democracies. The toll the EMU project has taken both on jobs and on trust between rulers and ruled has sapped the will of EU leaders to tackle the indispensable reforms of the EU's political structures, regional aids and calamitous common agricultural policy (CAP).

Creditably, the Commission has chosen to ignore the way the ground is heaving beneath its feet. That is no thanks to Jacques Santer, who in deference to Herr Kohl would have restricted the first wave to three of the ten European applicants - Poland, Hungary and the Czech Republic. But Sir Leon Brittan and Hans van den Broek won the argument that Slovenia and Estonia were as well qualified and that to be credible, the Commission must stick to the "objective criteria" laid down in 1993. Politically, that is the right decision now. But a caveat must be entered. The Copenhagen criteria require new members to take on board the entire shipload of EU regulations and to observe Maastricht's financial disciplines. Rigidly applied, this would impose on them economic, monetary and other restraints inappropriate to countries in rapid transition, stunting the growth which they need to catch up with the mature EU econo- ory will be secure if he succeeds; but Messrs mies. Only if the EU is flexible about these ... Blair and Cook will have their work cut out.

can the full economic as well as political potential of enlargement be tapped - and the costs of enlargement contained. But its bean-counting, unpopular politicians are in no mood to explain why the "tinfair advantage" of low-wage competition from these countries would be good for Europe's future competitiveness and economic health. Flexibility towards the East needs to be matched by radicalism at home, beginning with regional aids and agriculture, which between them swallow around 90 per cent of the EU budget. Unreformed, the costs of both would soar under enlargement. The Commission rightly wants to concentrate regional aid; it is absurd that 51 per cent of EU citizens now receive such benefits. But this will be so bitterly resisted, particularly by Spain, that if the issue is not to hold up enlargement indefinitely the wisest tactic for the applicants might be to say that they were content to do without such subsidies.

Even without enlargement, the CAP has become indefensible. It benefits most rich farmers who least need help. Of this Brussels is now persuaded. The trouble is that most of them are in France and Germany, which together pocket 40 per cent of all CAP payments. Their farm lobbies are denouncing Agenda 2000 as an "aggression". In fact the Commission's proposals, building on the 1992 reforms, are a brave further move in the right direction of weaning farmers off price supports, compensating with direct income supplements. But in terms of the Commission's ultimate aim, a policy that safeguards not just individual farms but the improved health of the broader rural economy, Robin Cook was right yesterday to call for "a still more radical strategy".

His valour in the coming battle will be tested soon enough, as will his optimistic assertion that the EU is at last "moving away from introspection about our institutions". The serious bargaining will start in January, when Britain sits in the EU chair. Speedy enlargement will be the cardinal measure of Tony Blair's claims about Britain's "leadership" in Europe. Can he break the logjams? Can he raise people's eyes to the really important horizon? Can he rescue the interests of the Central Europeans from the long grass into which they have been kicked? This Government's honourable place in hist-

DOBSON'S CHOICE

Labour elevates dubious equality over proven excellence

The Government's bearded Bourbon yesterday tried simultaneously to wrench the slock back to an imagined Utopia and Juspend the laws of supply and demand. Frank Dobson's decision to end GPs' "queue jumping" in the name of fairness may win easy populist cheers but it serves patients and the health service ill. The Secretary of State has a keen awareness of the dangers to the NHS of bureaucracy, which is why his decision to cripple the Tory reform which did most for efficiency is all the more regrettable. Mr Dobson invokes in his defence the shade of Aneurin Bevan. The NHS, he argues, was established to provide care on the basis of proven need, not ability to pay. It is an admirable sentiment, but it sits on Mr Dobson's lips like the Lord's Prayer on a child's, revered but barely understood. The ability of GP fundholders to secure better treatment for their patients is nothing to do with fat cats elbowing to the front of the queue, rather it gives GPs and their patients the whiphand over consultants and managers who previously ran the health service for their convenience. Fundholding has seen the many, the patients, empowered at the expense of the few, the professionals.

The "queue-jumping" which so exercises Mr Dobson was closer to queue-shrinking. By giving doctors the power to take their custom elsewhere hospitals were forced to smarten up their acts and cut waiting times. GPs did not need to exercise the power, and not all GPs needed to have it, for the threat to work. As Professor Rudolf Klein has pointed out in The New Politics of the NHS, the prospect of losing some patients has spurred all consultants to adopt new guidelines and protocols which define quality care, improving standards for all.

This can be caricatured as a "two-tier" system but the NHS has never been able to guarantee absolute equity. It has always been easier to secure, say, a hip transplant in Harrogate than in Hamilton. What fundbolding does is to use competition to drive down waiting times across the board. Some may wait longer than others but everyone will, ultimately, be better off than before. Professor Howard Glennerster, in his book Implementing Fundholding: Wild Card or Winning Hand? demolished the arguments for abolishing fundholding because it created a "two-tier" service. The Labour-supporting academic concluded that, "to argue for the abolition of fundholding on this ground is perverse. It is akin to the philosophical paradox that equality in human needs can best be achieved by starving everyone."

The collectivisation of GP practices into commissioning groups will, at least, still allow the providers of primary care a stronger voice than they had before 1991, but the most effective weapon GPs could wield on behalf of their patients has been decommissioned. Doctors are taught that direct surgical intervention should be resisted whenever possible; it is a pity that Mr Dobson ignores best clinical practice.

JUNK FICTION?

Finding out what one wants to read is a step in growing up

The Booker Prize of the playground has been awarded to a novel about teenage drugaddicts. Junk, by Melvin Burgess, has won the Library Association's Carnegie Medal. This tells the story of self-deluding teenagers who think that they can handle heroin but find that it has them in its frightening grip. Its principal characters are on a downward escalator through squatting, theft, drugaddiction, prostitution and pregnancy.

According to the judges, Junk is an extraordinary, ground-breaking book. But Mary Poppins it ain t. And already there have been ritual cries of outrage from the media (not all from the headless chicken end of the street) about the bleakness of the topics in the Carnegie shortlist. Besides drugs, these include arson, bullying and the death of a child on an operating table. It is the prerogative of the older generation down the ages to fret about what its young are reading.

But fairy stories are not sweetness and light. They have room for ogres, witches, annibalism and serial killers. The Grimm brothers collected horrifying folktales. Jack the Giant-Killer and Morte D'Arthur incharle burchery and serial adultery. And in the first story in English, Grendel's mother is an unsuitable role model. Freud and Jung is part of reading up and growing up.

could discover dark roots in the sunniest wonderlands. The imaginative shudder is as important a part of growing through reading as the peculiarly English coo over animal anthropomorphism. Stig of the Dump is popular because he is disgusting without the discomfort. Everyone Poops rather than Winnie the Pooh rides high on the bestseller lists because it treats an unmentionable body process which fascinates children.

It was a Romantic fallacy to suppose that childhood experience was a world of its own, and that children's literature must be didactic and improving. But once teenagers start to read for pleasure, they have crossed a write of passage into the grown-up world. Like adults, they will read about the things that they talk about in the playground. And there are no no-go areas in print. The schoolchildren who shadowed the Carnegie Medal shortlist for themselves this year showed more maturity than its critics. As we report on our Arts pages, one of them said: It's not books which corrupt people; it's other people." And the children voted unanimously for Junk as the winner. Children should be given a chance to think for themselves. They do, and they will. That

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

I Pennington Street, London El 9XN Telephone 0171-782 5000

abortion practice

From Mr Nicholas Beale, the Rev Dr J. C. Polkinghorne, FRS, and Professor Lord Winston

Sir, Although we differ about the circumstances, if any, in which they are allowable, we all agree that abortions should not be performed if there is no genuine substantial risk to the physi-cal or mental health of the mother or children. This is clearly what was intended by the 1967 Abortion Act. But it is also clear that there is, at least, a widespread perception that abortion is effectively available on demand in the UK, especially for those prepared to pay for it. The recent reports of so-called "lunch-hour abortions" for £285 (report, later editions, June 28) reinforces this perception.

An urgent review is needed of the operation of the Abortion Act to ensure that all clinics operate within the letter and spirit of the law. Public support for healthcare and the development of new treatments depends on public confidence that all doctors and clinics are operating to the highest ethical and legal standards.

Yours sincerely NICHOLAS BEALE, JOHN POLKINGHORNE, ROBERT WINSTON, c/o Sciteb. l Hay Hill, Berkeley Square, WI.

July 9.

Freedom's boundaries

From Mr Peter Le Cheminant

Sir. To me, as an ex-"Mandarin", the present controversy over "freedom of information" has a familiar ring (leading article, July 12: letters, July 15). Politicians so often think broad-brush and loathe being asked to define their proposals in detail. But the law has to be precise, and the devil frequently lies in the small print.

For instance, many advocates of freedom of information believe that the tax returns of ministers and MPs should remain private; yet the US Congress has no inhibitions about demanding, and publishing, this sort of information about candidates for high

Only ministers (and Parliament) can decide where the boundaries of freedom lie. Those in the Civil Service who ask awkward questions are only doing what they are paid for, and reasonably competent civil servants have nothing to fear from the opening

Politicians, on the other hand, are mostly petrified that their reasoning/motivation may be exposed to public gaze. It will be fun to see who

Yours sincerely, PETER Le CHÉMINANT (Second Permanent Secretary, Cabinet Office (Management and Personnel Office), 1983-84), The Reform Club, 104 Pali Mali, SWI. July 16.

A 'say' on Amsterdam

From Mr Nigel Lea-Jones

Sir, "That is why", concluded Michael Howard, now Shadow Foreign Secretary, in his letter (July 9), "the British people should be allowed their say on the Amsterdam treaty before it is

He will understand. I am sure, why the many people who campaigned so vigorously for such a "say" on the Maastricht treaty are hardly im-pressed by the lateness of this call. Coming from a leading member of the previous Government, such a stand of principle would then have been a substantial benefit in the cause of addressing our democratic deficit. Let him be in no doubt that it was the decisions of people of consistently Conservative principles that led to Mr Howard and his colleagues now being in Opposition, or out of Parliament altogether.

We have not solved Maastricht/ Amsterdam; but the supreme arrogance that thought we have no choice has been addressed.

Yours sincerely, NIGEL LEA-JONES, 48 Elm Park Mansions. Park Walk, SW10.

Versace's Italy

From Miss Antonia Lloyd-Jones

Sir, I was interested to learn from your obituary of Gianni Versace today that in Italy bourgeois Roman and Milanese girls flee to Calabria and Sicily in the summer with the express purpose of losing their virginity to the swarthy southern men". Eager to demonstrate my enlightenment in the course of polite office conversation I asked my Italian colleague, Stefania, who comes from a well-to-do Milanese family, whether she had fled to Calabria or Sicily for her own deflowering. Not only did she deny either location, she seemed offended by the question.

Could The Times be mistaken in its iudgment of these ladies; or perhaps is racist as well as sexist?

Yours sincerely. ANTONIA LLOYD-JONES, 82c Lakeside Road, W14.

Concern on ethical Broader debate on 'fat cat' lawyers lawyers, be they solicitors or barristers, in the conduct of commercial litigation are irrelevant to this issue.

Such fees are negotiated at arm's length in a free market and do not affect access to justice for those of mod-

If the cost of using the courts is such as to deter individuals or small businesses from pursuing or defending their legal rights, then the price is too est means.

Chairman,

Yours faithfully, ROBERT OWEN,

General Council of the Bar.

From Mr Jeffery McCann

would wholeheartedly agree.

for them (the clients).

Yours sincerely, JEFFERY McCANN,

From Mr Peter Durrant

rhyme about physicians:

Yours faithfully.

13 Coppice Way,

PETER DURKANT,

South Woodford, E18.

3 Linley Court,

I Crown Office Row, Temple, EC4.

Sir, The Lord Chancellor has berated

(a limited number of) QCs for earning

El million per annum. Were such earnings paid from the public purse I

Such, however, is not the case. They are almost invariably commercial silks whose privately paying clients

apparently consider the money well spent. The wisdom of this is a matter

Rouse Gardens, Dulwich, SE21.

Sir, The comments by Lord Irvine of Lairg are merely the latest example of such criticism to be expressed by a high-ranking lawyer. I suspect they are intended to fool us into thinking that something might one day happen to reduce these exorbitant charges,

aptly summed up by Hilaire Belloc's

They answered, as they took their Fees.

There is no Cure for this Disease."

From Mr Tim O'Flynn

Sir, The new Lord Chancellor's attack on the earnings of "fat cat" lawyers (report, July 15) should not be confined to those few specialised QCs who receive over £1 million a year. They should also address some of the more modest earners.

Those of us who practise in the family courts frequently see local authorities being unable to fulfil their statutory requirements to support and as-sist dysfunctional families through a lack of funds. We also see QCs in our own line of work putting in claims for tens of thousands of pounds for a few weeks' work in family cases.

Compare the cars that arrive in the court car parks. Out of the shiny new BMWs and Audis step the barristers to do a day or two's work. Out of the second-hand and battered Vauxhalls step the social workers who spend months and years working with these damaged children and families.

A redistribution of public funding from the legal aid fund to social services would not just help the alienated members of our society. It would also be iust.

Yours faithfully, TIM O'FLYNN (Barrister), 13 Dover Street, Ryde, Isle of Wight. July 15.

From the Chairman of the Bar Council

Sir, In May 1996 the Commons Public Accounts Committee heard evidence from the Lord Chancellor's Department to the effect that the drop in the total number of civil cases in recent years was due in part to the deterrent effect of High Court fees.

That was before the dramatic rise in court costs imposed by the last Gov-ernment in January 1997. For that reason the Bar Council opposed the rise and welcomed yesterday's debate in the House of Lords as to the validity of the policy which underlay the rise namely, the recovery of the full cost of running the civil courts from litigants. The substantial fees earned by top

Sir, I note that the Registrar for Data

Protection is to crusade against junk mail (report, July 14). I can discard Tackling junk

sion of privacy, please.

P. K. COLLYMORE,

Barrington Cottage,

Byworth, Petworth, West Sussex.

From Professor Barbara Goodwin

Sir. The junk mail problem is compounded when someone moves house or changes job. I did both last July, since when I have spent much time writing letters to organisations that continue to use my former home or business address for mailshots. Some of this mail is wanted - eg, publishers' catalogues - but most is unsolic-their mailing lists despite several requests. Some use out-of-date lists purchased from other sources for one-shot promotions and it is impossible

Many organisations do not update

Yours faithfully.

ited or junk.

a kitchen.

From Mr Peter Collymore

to track down the originator. Those who have to forward junk mail to new addresses and the Royal Mail, which transports forwarded letters free of charge, are involved in considerable waste of time or additional costs by junk mail in seconds. But I object to The direct-mail industry should be being telephoned out of the blue by compelled (either by a code or by law) someone trying to sell me windows or paid card which invites the recipient Can the registrar tackle this invato advise of any change of address and to state whether he or she wishes to continue to receive mail from that source.

these poor practices.

Yours sincerely, BARBARA GOODWIN (Professor of Politics). University of East Anglia. School of Economics and Social Studies. Norwich NR4 7TJ.

From Sir Bryan Askew

Sir. Any junk mail which includes a reply-paid envelope receives a request to delete my name from the sender's mailing list.

cathedral itself, accurately giving the

note for the Amen of the St Oswald's

His first and dramatic appearance was in the centre of the deanery pediment, where he remained ornament-ally motionless for several hours, an extra diversion for the diocesan clergy wives annual party. He later made his home in a yew tree near the east end of the cathedral, where he would respond in kind to the encouraging

Only those who feared for their small pets, or were kept awake at night in the Dolphin and Anchor opposite, failed to mourn his return to captivity after weeks of stardom. At least he survived — fewer pigeons, but hoots of passers-by in the know.

Yours faithfully. BRYAN ASKEW, 27 Golf Links Avenue Tadcaster, North Yorkshire. July 14.

Eve collect.

Ruling the roost From Mr Robert Wright

Sir, I was dismayed to read of the death of Paula, posthurnously Paul (reports, July 8, 12), the eagle owl living around St Paul's Cathedral. But since it was clearly viable, having apparently survived for two years at liberty, and lived on pests such as pigeons, rats and the occasional dog. why not introduce a breeding pair?

Yours faithfully, ROBERT WRIGHT, 65 Bouncers Lane, Cheltenham, Gloucestershire.

From Mrs R. T. Holtby

eagle owl to honour a cathedral precinct. Chichester people will remeniber Oswald, who for a brief period in 1988 before my husband's retirement as dean, took up residence in the

Sir, Requiescat Paula - not the first

Thrill of the chase From Mr Andrew King

Sir. You report (July 11) that Baroness Mallalieu told the Countryside Alliance rally: "Hunting is our music, it is our poetry, it is our art, it is our pleasure. It is where many of our best friendships are made, it is our community. It is our whole way of Did anyone overstate the case?

Yours faithfully. ANDREW KING, 32 Priory Street, Coichester, Essex.

July 11.

Letters that are intended for publication should carry a daytime telephone number. They may be sent to a fax number -0171-782 5046. e-mail to: letters@the-times.co.uk

Up the English

4 Hutton Hall, Huttons Ambo.

healthier surroundings.

York, North Yorkshire.

Yours faithfully.

MARY HOLTBY,

From Dr Kenneth Gullesord Sir, Simon Chapman is right to champion the cause of the English (letter. July 9) for surely we are the most repressed nation on earth. As an Englishman living in London I have just applied to Glasgow for renewal of my passport, and my tax affairs are dealt with in Cardiff. My business is likewise registered in Wales and now I hear that the "p" is to disappear from some of our postage stamps (report, June 28) because it signifies a word from the English language.

Scottish and Welsh nationalism has become respectable and Irish nationalists are entertained at the White House. It is time for the voice of the English to be heard in the land,

Yours sincerely, KENNETH GULLEFORD. 26 Wakelin Chase, Ingatestone, Essex.

Future of Radio 4 and 'right to fail'

From Sir Christopher Bland. Chairman of the BBC

Sir. Brenda Maddox's testy Media column today, "BBC Governors, please stand up for our rights", is wrong, premature and confused. She is wrong to distinguish Michael Grade's ritual attack on the BBC from the remainder of his interminable speech; it was just as boring as the

She is premature in encouraging BBC Governors to resign over a rumoured assault on Radio 4 - and whatever else she may hold against us, the charge of failing to understand the values of the "great mass of middle England that structures its day by Radio 4" just won't wash. Any changes in the Radio 4 schedule will be based on a careful, thorough process of internal and external discussion and analysis, and will improve the way in which Radio 4 serves its unique audience. Finally, she is confused when she attributes John Birt's recognition of two dramas as noble failures, in what was an outstanding year for BBC programmes, to an unwillingness to take risks. It is an important concomitant of the right to fail that we recognise those of our programmes that have not succeeded, and try to understand

In Brenda Maddox's jaundiced eye, the BBC is damned when it does and damned when it doesn't.

CHRISTOPHER BLAND,

Chairman, British Broadcasting Corporation, Broadcasting House, Portland Place, WI. July 16.

From Ms Margaret Quass

Sir, I read with mounting horror today's report on the plans of Radio 4's new Controller, Mr Martin Boyle, to axe or reschedule many of the station's most valuable programmes. However, I was much encouraged at finding Michael Gove (although not yet 30 and thus less than half my age) had perfectly expressed my views in the same issue (Don't play dumb with Radio 47.

I still miss Stop the Week on Saturday evenings and will find it intolerable to start the week on Monday mornings without the eponymous programme. Mr Boyle is presumably deserting his present listeners in the hope of attracting some hypothetical younger audience which does not exist. Others have done it before him with dire results. New, imaginative programmes are always welcome but they should be designed to stretch us rather than shrink us: to educate and inform as well as to entertain. Medium Wave, Quote . . . Unquote and Science Now are three examples, all apparently

Where is the transparency and accountability we were promised? Let us hope that the Governors are more in touch with Radio 4 listeners than Mr Boyle. If so, they will throw out his abominable plan and advise him to follow Michael Gove's prescription.

Yours etc. MARGARET QUASS. Flat 4, 113 Broadhurst Gardens. NW6.

From Mr Charles Pearmain

Sir, I am horrified - if not surprised at the proposed emasculation of BBC Radio 4's programme schedules. l regard Radio 4 as an invaluable

source of entertainment, but more importantly of information. It is already an entire magazine of programmes. offering a greater depth of detail and understanding than almost any other service. Earlier attempts to turn it into an ersatz Radio 2, such as Anderson Country and The Afternoon Shift, met with strong opposition from those who enjoy some depth to the programmes they listen to. They have done nothing to increase listening figures.

A few blemishes need correcting the dependence on 1950s humour and the obsession with "current affairs" and some plain warts need excising. The BBC should carry out corrective surgery by all means, but the latest proposals will leave the patient an empty husk.

Yours etc. CHARLES PEARMAIN. Michaelmas House, Moreton in Marsh, Gloucestershire. cpearmain@cix.compulink.co.uk

From Sir David Lane

Sir, Thank you for Michael Gove's brilliant article today,

If the rumours of proposed changes to Radio 4 are well-founded, let us hope that the BBC Governors will intervene to prevent yet another downgrading of British life.

Yours truly, DAVID LANE. 5 Spinney Drive Great Shelford, Cambridgeshire.

Virtually the same?

From Mr D. O. E. Butten

Sir, Is there a difference between virtual reality (letters, July 7, 8, 12, 15) and complete self-delusion?

Yours faithfully. D. BATTEN Christmas Cottage, Ridlington, Oakham, Rutland, COURT CIRCULAR

BUCKINGHAM PALACE

July 16: The Queen held an Investi-ture at Buckingham Palace this

The Queen and The Duke of Edinburgh were entertained to Lun-cheon this afternoon by the High Commissioner for Canada (His Excellency the Hon Roy MacLaren) and Mrs MacLaren at Macdonald House, Grosvenor Square, London

The Right Reverend Sir Paul Retves was received by Her Majesty and remained to Tea. The Duke of Edinburgh this morn-

The Duke of Edinburgh this morning opened a new computer suite at Bertey College, Belvedere, Kent.
His Royal Highness, President, this afternoon attended a Reception for the National Playing Fields Association's Schools Sports Award Winners at St James's Palace.
The Cheen was expressed by the Winters at $1 James's Palace.

The Queen was represented by the Lord Porter of Luddenham OM at the Service of Thanksgiving for the Life of the Lord Todd OM which was held in $1 Margaret's Church Westminster Abbey, London SWL, today.

The Duke of Edinburgh was represented by $1 and year Living. nted by Sir Andrew Huxley Own.

July 16: The Princess Royal, Patron.
SENSE - the National Deafblind and Rubella Association this morning visited SENSE Community Homes at 71 and 79 Coriander Close, Northfield, Birmingham, and was received by Colonel Patrick Robinson
Cleonyr, Lieutenant, of West

Her Royal Highness, President, Save the Children Fund, today opened the new offices of Central Television Studios at Gas Street.

Birmingham.
The Princess Royal. President, Save the Children Fund, this after-

Dinners

Birthdays today

Sir Hardy Amies, dressmaker, 88: Baroness Anelay of St Johns, 50; Mr Richard Barker, former Headmaster, Sevenoaks School, 58; Mr Tim Brooke-Taylor, actor, 57: Sir Alan Cottrell, FRS, former Vice-Chancellor, Cambridge University, 78; Mr Raymond Galton, scriptwriter, 67; Baroness Gardner of Parkes, 70; Mr W. Gordon Graham, publisher, 77; Mr John Greetham, former regional chairman, NHS Executive, Northern and Yorkshire Region, 58; Mr Eric HM Government Mr Government
Mr George Robertson, Secretary of State for Defence, was the host at a dinner given last night at Admirally House by Her Majesty's Government in honour of Mr Alain Richard, the French Minister for Defence.

Law Society
Mr Tony Girling, President of the Law Society, and the vice-president and council were the hosts at a dinner held last night at the society's hall. nature is an ugit at the sourcy's hall. Among those present were:

The Master of the Rolls, the Vice-Chancellor of the Supreme Court, the Attorney-General, the Solicitor-General, the Chairman of the Bar, the Director of Public Prosecutions, the Minister of State, Criminal Policy, and the Legal Services Ombudsman.

Parish Clerks' Company
Mr O.W.H. Clark, Master of the Parish Clerks' Company, presided, assisted by Mr J.D. Hebblethwaite. Upper Warden, and Mr W.H. Dove Under Warden, at the annual in-stallation and ladies dinner held last night at Church House, Westminster. Mr B.C. Burrough, Parish Clerk of St Anne Soho and Miss M. MacGlashan, HM Ambassador to he Holy See, also spoke. Among those present were:

The Bishop of Sodor and Man and Mrs Jones, the Dean of Westminster and Mrs Carr, the Dean of St Pau's, the Master of the Tylers' and Bricklayers' Company, the Master of the Givers' Company and the me Glovers' Company and the Master of the Company of Watermen and Lightermen of the River Thames and their ladies. Earlier, The Dean of St Paul's officiated at evensong held in the Chapel of St Faith, St Paul's Catheorial, and the Bishop of Sodor and Mari preached the sermon.

United & Cecil Club Offined & Cecil Claib Sir Sydney Chapman, MP, was the host at a dinner of the United & Cecil Club held last night at the House of Commons. Sir Marcus Fox. chair man. presided. Mr Stephen Dorrell, MP, was the principal guest and speaker. Mrs Elizabeth Peacock also spoke

Lord Chalfont was the speaker at a dinner of the European-Atlantic Group held last night at St Ermin's Hotel. Viscount Montgomery of Alamein, president, was in the chair.

noon visited Wood End Family Project. Bretford Road, Wood End, Coventry, West Midlands. ST JAMES'S PALACE July 16: The Prince of Wales, President, the Phoenix Trust, this morning chaired a meeting of the Trustees at St James's Palace. His Royal Highness afterwards received the Rt Hon John Present

MP (Deputy Prime Minister).
The Prince of Wales this afternoon gave a Reception for primary school head teachers. KENSINGTON PALACE

Lily 16: The Princess Margaret, Countess of Snowdon this afternoon attended a Garden Party at the Palace of Holymodhouse to celebrate the One Hundred and Fiftieth Anniver-sary of the Royal Society for the Relief of Indigent Gentlewomen of Scot-land.

July 16: The Duke of Gloucester. Commissioner, English Heritage, this morning attended the Commis-sioners' Meeting at Fortress House. Saville Row. London W1. The Duchess of Gloucester, Deputy Describers London vicines the Fort of The Duchess of Goucester, Deputy President, today visited the East of England Agricultural Society Schow, Peterborough, and was received by Her Majesty's Lord-Lieutenant of Cambridgeshire (Mr James

YORK HOUSE July 16: The Duke of Kent this evening took the salute at the Royal Tournament, Earls Court, London

THATCHED HOUSE LODGE July 16: Princess Alexandra, President of the British School at Rome, this evening attended a Private View of the Paintings of Sir Thomas Monnington at the Fine Art Society, New Bond Street, London W1.

chairman, NHS Executive, Northern and Yorkshire Region, 58; Mr Eric Hammond, trade unionist, 68; Mr J.M. Harper, former deputy managing director, BT. 67; Sir William Henderson, FRS, former president, Zoological Society of London, 54; Sir William Heseltine, former Private Secretary to the Queen, 67; Lord Lane, 79; the Right Rev D.R. Lunn, Bishop of Sheffield, 67; Mr Joe McNally, founding managing director, Compaq Computer UK, 55; Lord Patten, 52; Dr Marjorie Reeves, FBA. historian, 92; the Marque's de Santaranch, president, international Olympic Committee, 77; Mr Peter Sissons, broadcaster, 55; Mr Wayne

Sissons, broadcaster, 55; Mr Wayne

Sissons, broadcaster, St; Mr Wayne Sleep, dancer, actor and choreographer, 49: Lieutemant-Colonel Sir Blair Stewart-Wilson, former Deputy Master of the Household, 68: Sir Kenneth Stawe, civil servant. 70; Mr Donald Sutherland, actor, 62: Mr Bob Taylor, cricketer, 50: His Honour Sir Deputy Weer, Bussell 26: Mr

Sir David West-Russell, 76; Mr P.D.V. Wilkes, Headmaster, Chelten-ham College, 56; Mr Terrel Wyatt, former chairman, Costain Group, 70.

BIRTHS: Isaac Watts, hymn writer, Southampton, 1674; John Jacob Astor, fur trader, Waldorf, Germany, 1763; Earl Stanley Cardner, thriller writer, Malden, Massachusetts, 1889; James

Cagney, actor. New York, 1899.

DEATHS: Adam Smith, economist. Edinburgh, 1790; James

McNeill Whistler, painter, London, 1903; Billie Holiday, jazz

Anniversaries

Memorial service

Lord Taylor of Gosforth

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh were represented by Baroness Gould of Potternewton at a service of thanksgiving for the life of Lord Taylor of Gosforth, former Lord Chief Justice of England, held on Tuesday in St Paul's Cathedral. The Duke and Duchess of Kent were represented by Mr Nicolas Adamson.

The Dean of St Paul's officiated, assisted by Canon Stephen Oliver, precentor, and the Rev John Lees. Lord Bingham of Cornhill, Lord Chief Justice, and Mr David Fearnley read the

Mr Arthur Taylor, brother, and the Hon Louis Taylor, son, read the Kaddish Prayer of a Mourner. Mr Justice Potts and Lord Woolf, Master of the Rolls, gave addresses.

During the service Ms Janis Kelly, soprano, accompanied by Mr Anthony Legge, piano, sang Auf dem Wasser zu singen, and, with Ms Jean Rigby, mezzo-soprano, and Mr Andrew Hammond, baritone, sang from Mozart's Cost fan tutte. Ms Maureen Smith, violin, and Ms Emma Rivlin, piano, played Bach's Ave Maria, arranged by Gounod. The Archdeacon of London was robed and in

The Lord Chancellor, also representing the Prime Minister, and Lady Irvine of Lairg, the Lord Privy Seal and Leader of the House of Lords, the Secretary of State for the House of Lords, the Secretary of State for the Home Department, the Lord Mayor, accompanied by the Sheriffs and their ladies and the Chief Commoner, the Lord Advocate, the Attorney-General, the Solicitor-General, the President of the Family Division and Lady Brown, the Vice-Chancellor of the Supreme Court, the Lord-Lieutenay of Courts, Division also proposed. Lieutenant of County Durham, also representing the Lord-Lieutenant of Tyne and Wear, and Lady Nicholson, the Lord-Lieutenant of West Yorkshire and Mrs Lyles and the High Sheriff of the East Riding of Yorkshire and Mrs Carver attended. Among others present were:

Mr and the Hon Mrs Robert Torday, Mr and the Hon Mrs Michael Stevenson and Mr and the Hon Mrs Michael Stevenson and Mr and the Hon Mrs Paul Bridge (sons-in-law and daughters), the Hon Mrs Isous Taylor (daughter-in-law). Mrs Carolyn Taylor, Mr Paul Taylor, Mr C J Dawson.

Ambassadors High Commissioners and other members of the Diplomatic Corps, Earl Ferrers, Viscount Ridley, KG. and Viscountes Ridley, Viscount Ridley, KG. and Viscount and Viscountess Runciman of Doxford. Viscount and Viscountess Runciman of Doxford. Viscount and Viscountess Dilhorne.

Lady Woolf, Lord and Lady Mackay of Clashfern. Lord Nicholls of Birkenhead (treasurer, Middle Temple), and Lady Micholls. Lord and Lady Browner, Wilkinson, Lord Nolan, Lord Hunon. Lord Goff of Chieveley, FBA, and Lady Goff, Lord Hope of Graigshead, Lord and Lady Goff, Lord Hope of Graigshead, Lord and Lady Goff, Lord Hope of Weedon, Oc. Lord and Lady Williams of Mostyn, Lord Husoson, Lord Husoson, Lord Husoson, Lord Weedon, Oc. Lord and Lady Williams of Mostyn, Lord Mischon, Oc. Lord and Lady Williams of Mostyn, Lord Mischon, Oc. Lord and Lady Brandon of Oakbrook.

Lord Justice Staughton (treasurer, Inner Temple) and Lady Staughton, Mr Michael Howard, Oc. Mp. Lord Justice and Lady Mose, Sir Patrick Carlisle of Bucklow, Oc. Lord Horde, Cc. Lord Justice Staughton (treasurer, Inner Temple) and Lady Staughton, Mr Michael Howard, Oc. Mp. Lord Justice and Lady Rose, Sir Patrick Connor, Lord Justice Mummery, Lord Justice Staughton (treasurer, Inner Temple) and Lady Staughton, Mr Michael Howard, Oc. Mp. Lord Justice and Lady Mischen, Oc. Lord Justice More, Sir Michael Mary Lord Justice More, Sir Michael Mary Lord Justice More, Sir Michael Lord Justice More, Sir Patrick Oconnor, Lord Justice Hudden, Sir Ponal Farewell, Lord Justice and Lady Hust, Lord Justice Stand Lady Hust, Lord Justice Stand Lady Hust, Lord Justice Hudden, Mr Justice Hudden, Mr Justice Holden, Mr Justice Holden, Mr Justi

John and Lady Wood, Mr Justice Moses, Mr Justice and Lady Lloyd, Mr Justice and Lady Kay, Mr Justice and Lady Kay, Mr Justice Newman, Mr Justice And Lady Carle, Mr Justice Turner, Mr Justice Cazalet, Sir Peter and Lady Creswell. Sir Barry and Lady Sheen. Sir John and the Hon-Lady Stephenson, Sir Colin Cole, Sir Robin Day, Mr Justice Tucker, Mr Justice Rirkwood, Lady McNell. Mr Justice Harman.

Mr Justice Popplewell. Mr Justice Butterfield. Sir Patrick Nelli, QC, Sir Louis Biom-Cooper, QC, and Lady Biom-Cooper, Mr Justice and Lady Keene, Mr Justice Blackburne. Sir Thomas Legg. QC, and Lady Legg. Mr Justice Rattray, Mr Justice and Lady Carle Lady Legg. Mr Justice Rattray, Mr Justice and Lady Genali, Sir Henry de Waal, QC, and Lady de Wall, Sir Godfrey Le Quesne, QC, Mr Justice Masce, Mr Justice Arden (Law Commission), Sir Ivan Lawrence, QC.

Arden (Law Commission), Sir Ivan Lawrence, QC.
Sir Cecil Ciothler, QC, and Lady Ciothler, Sir David Ramsbotham (Chief Inspector of Prisons for England and Walea), Mr Justice Lindsay, Mr Justice Sumner, Mr Justice and Lady Parker, Mr Justice Sumner, Mr Justice Lightman, Mr Justice Evans-Lombe, Mr Justice Lightman, Mr Justice and Lady Ian Kennedy, Mr Justice Smith (Presiding Judge, North Eastern Circuit), Lady Nursaw, Mr Peter Glucksmann and Dame Margaret Booth.

Judge Esyr Lewis, QC (treasurer, Gray's Ian), Judge Beniley, QC, Judge Dyer, Judge Richard Haworin, Judge Michael Countbe, Judge Fergus Mitchell, Judge Brian Capstick, QC, and Mrs Capstick, Judge Pearlinan, Judge Bwilsh, QC (Recorder of Leeds) also representing the Residing Judge at York and the Residing Judge at Bradford.

Capstick, Judge Pearlinan. Judge B Walsh, OC (Recorder of Leeds) also representing the Residing Judge at York and the Residing Judge at Bradford.

Judge And Mrs J A Baker, Judge and Mrs Orde. Judge Harkins. Judge Pownall, OC, and Mrs Pownall. Judge Angus Maccionald, Judge Mora Singh, OC, Judge D M Levy, OC, Judge and Mrs A Simmons. Judge Paget, OC, His Horour Alan King-Hamilton, OC, Judge Ann Goddard, OC, Judge Michael Rich, OC, Judge Pater Beaumont, OC, Judge Michael Rich, OC, Judge Pater Beaumont, OC, Judge Michael Rich, OC, Judge Pater Beaumont, OC, Judge Michael Rich, Judge Paul Collins, Judge Mars-Johnson.

His Honour Richard Lowry, OC, and Her Honour Nina Lowry, Judge A Thornton. Judge B Green. OC, Judge Gavin Barr-Young, Judge and Mrs William Crawford, Judge David Bryant, Judge Crabtree, Judge Coulson, Judge A V Bradbury, Judge Voal, OC, Judge Barnington Black, Judge Palba, Judge J Stephenson (also represending the Recorder of Newcarde upon Tynel and Mrs Stephenson.

Judge Paling, Judge Viljoen, Judge Angus Stroyan, OC, and Mrs Stroyan, Judge Fingret and Dr Ann Fingret, Judge Palbyan Evans, Judge Rivlin, Judge Simon Grenfell, Judge Michael Taylor, Judge Esile Spittle, Judge Timothy King, Bis Honour Douglas Fortester-Paton, OC, Judge Collart, Judge Peter Crawford, OC (Recorder of Birmlingham), Judge Michael Walker (Recorder of Shelffield, Judge Fillay, The Senior Master and Queent's Remembrancer, Master Dyson, Master Hodgson, Master Rosler, Master Eyle, Master Hodgson, Master Foster, Master Eyle, Master Hodgson, Master Foster, Master Holgeman, Judge Michael Miss Anne Stewart (representing the Chef, Master Hollern, Miss Anne Stewart (representing the Chef, Chahrman of the Bar, Mr Addian Barnes (City Remembrancer and chairman, Music Therapy), the Chief Executive of the Council of the Bar, Mr Feter Benson and Mr Jethry Lewis (North Eastern Circuit), Mr Benjamin Nolan, OC, Mr M Sweet, Mr Peter Benson and Mr Jethry Lewis (North Eastern Circuit), Mr Barthy Judge London).

Mrs Hesther Haller, OC, (Jeader, South

Miss Elizabeth Lawson, QC (Family Law Bar Association).

Mr Richard Southwell, QC (1 Hare Court, also representing the President and Law Faculty of Wake Forest University, Winston-Salem, North Carolinal. Mr Amil Feden (Head of Chambers, Lamb Bullding), Mr Philip Kranter (Newcastle Reformed Synagogue), Mr Nigel Pascoe, QC, Leader, Western Circuiti and Mrs Pascoe, Mr Edward Wilson (McCormacks), Miss Lucy Winskell (Newcastle upon Tyne Law Society), Mr Christopher Frazer (Counsel Magacine).

Mr Gavin Henderson (principal, Thaity College of Music, with Mrs Victoria Dicide: Mr M Huebmer (chief executive, Court Service) and Mrs Noveastriams Association) with other members of the association.

Huebner, Mrs T Corcoran (Civil Appeals Listing Office), Mr A Ziff (Leeds Jewish Community), Mr David Harte (Newcastle Law School, Newcastle University), Mr Smon Wood (Old Novocastrian Association) and Mr Alian C Wilson (London Old Novocastrians Association) with other members of the association

Mr Robin de Wilde, QC. (Professional Negligence Bar Association), Mr Roy Anjiot (Criminal Bar Association), Mr TR Andhysrujina (Solicinor General of India), Mr Peter Scott, QC (Fountain Count Chambers), Miss Anne Raiferty, QC. Mr Richard Carry-Rughes and Mr Brian Barter, QC (Criminal Bar Association), Mr Michael Brown (Council of Tribunals), Mr Robert Williams (editor, The Law Reports and The Weekly Law Reports).

Mr Ian Sutherland (Law Reports editor, The Imag, Mr N Percy Metcalfe (editor, Criminal Appeal Reports). Mr Michael Lee (Notion Rose), Mr Peter Mortish (Goldsmith Chambers), Mr David Willink (Judicial Appointments), Mr David Willink (Judicial Appointments), Mr David Willink (Judicial Appointments), Mr Paricia F Smith (The Fuotball Association).

Mr C Joseph (D J Freemans), Mr T Webster (Jestimes of Least Popultivation Mr General Processive Country (Last Processive)).

immigration Policy Directorane). Ms Particla F Smith (The Fuotisal Association).

Mr C Joseph (D J Freemans). Mr T Webster (tratitute of Legal Executives), Mrs Gaynor Houghton-Jones (Justices Clerks Stociety). Ms Julia Braggins (ISTD), Ms N Bradwell and Mr I Robertson (Cruter Solicitors), Dr Hopkin Jones and Mr E J How (Hawks Club, Cambridge), Mr Julian Manlins, QC. (Ward of Rarringdon Without), Ms Colleen Graffy (Director and Assistant Professor of Law, London Program Pepperdine University, Mailou, California).

Mr Ronald Bernstein, QC, Mr Ian Hunter, QC, Mr George Carman, QC, Mr and Mrs Jonathan Charkham. Mr D Baston, Dr and Mrs I Jobson. Miss Teresa Cahill, Dr Robert Raxion, Mr and Mrs Harvey, Mr Simon Bourne-Arton, QC, Mr Peter Collier, QC, Mr John Mifford, QC, Mr Fedward Nugse, QC, and Mrs Nugse, Mr and Mrs David Wardisen-Lyks.

Mr Stuart Brown, QC, Mr and Mrs I Shuman, Mr and Mrs Dere Rills Mr. D Romerson, Mr

Mairice Brown, Mis J Brown, Mr Robert Francis, QC, Miss Nicola Davies, QC, Mr and Mrs Walter Hillion-Solomon.

Mr and Mrs K Hellawell, Mr Michael Lawson, QC, and Mrs Lawson, Mr Anthony Butcher, QC, Mr Elils Birk, Mr Peter Heppel, QC, Mr Peter Hughes, QC, Mr Andrew Trollope, QC, Mr Hohn Rylance, Mr Homes Goudle, QC, Mr Andrew Trollope, QC, Mr Hohn Crowle, QC, Miss Hilary Helbron, QC, Mr Ichard Hone, QC, Mr Arithony Scrivener, QC, and Mrs Scrivener, Mr Douglas Day, QC, Professor and Mrs Anthony Mellows, Mr Ichard Hone, QC, Mr Arithony Scrivener, QC, and Mrs Shertrard, Mr Robin Simpson, QC, Mr Colin Nicholis, QC, Mr Nicholas Brice, QC, Mr Roydon Thomas QC, Mr Nicholas Brice, QC, Mr Stanley Brodle, QC, Mr Brian Atman, QC, Mr William Cleegs, QC, Mr Brian Atman, QC, Mr William Cleegs, QC, Mr Brian Atman, QC, Mr Brian Atm

mrs Stanley Brilliant, Mr and Mrs Simon Brilliant, Mr N Bratza, QC, Professor and Mrs A L Croble.

Mr Oliver Sells, QC, Miss Judith Jackson, QC, Mr M N Howard, QC, Mr Nigel Inglis-Jones, Mr Charles Whitby, QC, and Mrs Whitby, Dr A McEwan, Mr N Fox Bassert, Mr Ben Hytiner, QC, Mrs P Langdon-Davies, Mr Christopher Knox, Mr Toby Hedworth, QC, Mr Benjamin Wans, Mr Paul Newbury, Mr and Mrs Dick Malthouse, Professor and Mrs Michael Zander, Brigadier and Mrs Charles Wright, Mrs J Birt, Mr Graham Addicott, Mr D Congrove, Mr J J Rowe, QC, Mr and Mrs IC Emmerson.

Miss Carol Ellis, QC, Mrs Annette Ellis, Mr Peter Paricer, Mr Ian Brink, Mr Simon Hawkesworth, QC, Mr David Wiltey, Mr Keth Warlmsley, Mr Jacob Forts, Mr Michael Hill, QC, and Mrs Hill, Mr Franz T Muller, QC, Mr Michael Gale, QC, Mr and Mrs Roger Kingdon, Mrs G Kingdon, Mr Evan Sione, QC, and Mrs Stone, Mr Gloson Gernfell, QC, Brigadier and Mrs P A Linie, Mr and Mrs Brian Callwell, Mr Roderick Hust, Mr and Mrs Brian Hall, Mr Gavin Parirck Ground, QC, Mr Antony Edwards-Stuart, QC, and Mrs Edwards-Stuart, QC, and Mrs Edwards-Stuart, Mr and Mrs Gavin Anderson, Mr Jonathan Hall, Mr Gavin Porlinger, Mr Christopher Higham, Mr Andrew Phillips, Mr Hubert Picanda, QC, Mr Adrian Harnllton, QC, Mr David Perup-Davey, QC, and Mrs Mr Jonathan Hall, Mr Gavin Porlinger, Mr Christopher Higham, Mr Andrew Phillips, Mr Hubert Picanda, QC, Mr Adrian Harnllton, QC, Mr Schenson, QC, Mr James Hunt, QC, Mr Smy Mr F Ashel Lincole QC Mr Sabbrook QC, Mr Robin Gorham, Mr Alderman and Mrs Basid Research Mr Eachel Lincole QC.

MIS M K Lyons.

Dr Mary Carde. Dr Hyman Rose, Mr Robert Sesbrook, QC, Mr Robin Gorham, Mr Alderman, and Mis David Brewer, Mr F Ashe Lincoln, QC, Mr Raman Subba Row, Mrs John Mowbray, Mr and Mrs Richard Stone, Mr David Panniek, QC, Mr Rodger Pannone, Mr Stephen Silver, QC, Mr Richard Hartley, QC, Mr Geoffrey Micz, QC, Mr Morris, QC, Mr David Bean, QC, Dr Cella Palmer, Mr Neil Stewart, Mr Barry Rose, Mr Mark Fisher, MR, Mr J Korler, QC, Mr B Houlder, QC, Mr A Ewans, QC, Mr Myles Allerton, Mr Hugh Lloyd, Mr Ian Conford, QC.

Mr Mark Havelock-Allen, QC, Miss A Poster, Mr Gles Nelson, Mr Nicholas Furnell, QC, Miss Diana Cotton, QC, Mr Andrew Fisherson, Mr Kenneth Rokison, QC, Mr Stephen Lloyd, Mr Andrew Rigney, Mr Nigel Seed, Miss Polkmans, Mr Michael Shrienpson and many other triends and former colleagues.

A report of the memorial service for Lord Todd, OM, FRS, will appear in The Times tomorrow.

Forthcoming marriages

Sir Andrew Jardine, Bi. and Dr C.V. Gradish

The engagement is announced between Andrew, elder son of the late Brigadier Sir Ian Jardine, Bt, OBE, MC, and of Priscilla, Lady Jardine, of Cheriton, Hampshire, and Claire Vyvien, daughter of Dr and Mrs William Griffith, of Shrewsbury.

Mr T.S.A. Lowther and Mins V.M. Whately The engagement is announced between Thomas, son of the late Captain the Hon Anthony Lowther and of Mrs Lowther, of Cumbria, and Victoria, daughter of Mr and Mrs David Whately, of Dorset. Mr S.R.K. Black and Miss E. Dunning

The engagement is announced between Smon Rupert Kay, son of Mr and Mrs A.G. Black, of Sand Hutton, York, and Elizabeth, only daughter of Mr and Mrs R.D. Dunning, of Gate Helmsley, York Mr G.L. Burke and Miss L.J. Trendett

the engagement is amounced between Geoffrey, son of Mr and Mrs Lawrence Burke, of Mairangi Bay, Auckland, New Zealand, and Lucinda, daughter of Mr George Tremett, of Elstead, Surrey, and Mrs Elizabeth Tremett, of Woolbeding, West Sussex.

Mr D.R. Drammond and Miss S.E. Debenh The engagement is announced between Ross, son of Mr and Mrs David Drummond, of Dunbar, Rast Lothian, and Spsangah Debenham, of Sayers Common West Sussex.

The Rev V.J. Eneve and Ms O.M. Blackburn

The engagement is announced between Vivian, younger son of Mr Richard and the Rev Susan Enever, of Rugby, Warnickshire, and Olivia, eldest daughter of the late Mr Raymond Blackburn and of Mrs Tessa Blackburn, of Chis-wick, London. Mr M.A. Fairless the engagement is announced between Matthew, youngest sen of Mr and Mrs Alec Fairless, of Minchinhampton, Gloucestershire, and Joanna, younger daughter of Mr and Mrs Peter File, of Dersingham, Norfolk. Mr R.A.B. Foster and Miss D. Pathó.

The engagement is announced between Rupert, son of Mr Christopher Foster, of Pyfield, Essen, and Mrs Angela Rees, of Fairstead, Essen, and Döra Patjaö, daughter of Mrs Eva Ecsedi and stepdanghter of Dr Dênes Ecsedi, of Eger, Humgary.

the East of England Agricultural Society Show, Peterborough at Duchess of Gloucester, he will take the salute at the evening perfor-mence of the Royal Tournament at and Miss C.H. Simpson The engagement is amounced between Guy, elder son of Mr and Mrs David times, of Hawkhurst, Kent, and Catriona, younger daughter of Mr and Mrs Alec

Simpson, of Berrima. New South Mr P.R. Ivey and Miss S.H.E. Hill

The engagement is announced between Peter, son of Mr and Mrs Edward Ivey, of Fleet, Hampshire, and Sally, daughter of the late Patrick Hill and of Mrs Elizabeth Hill, of Caversham, Berkshire. Mr R.R. Lewis and Miss F.J. Eastwood

The engagement is announced between Robert, son of Mr and Mrs Cecil Lewis, of Geneva, Switzerland, and Tanya, daughter of Mr Richard Bastwood and the late Mrs Richard Eastwood of Claughton-on-Brock, Lancashire. Mar P.W. Maritha and Miss L.R. Campbell The engagement is announced between Peter, son of Mr and Mrs

D.W. Martin, of Grassendale, Liverpool, and Lindsay, daughter of Mr and Mrs J.D. Campbell, of Carlow End. Worcester Mr G.C.S. Mather, MEP. and Mrs G.E. Fairhurst

The engagement is atmounced and the marriage will take place shortly between Graham Mather, MEP, of Westminster, and Gentvieve Fairhurst, of Shawdene, Newbury. Mr I.S. Watson and Miss S.A.O. Raeburn, QC The engagement is announced between Ian Smith Watson and Susan Adiel Ogilvie Raeburn.

Marriage

Prince Peter Frankopa and Miss J. Sainsbury Nupital Mass was concelebrated with the personal Apositic Blessing of the Pope, by Father Peter Bowe, OSB, and Pater Manja, OFM, of the Treat Monastery, at Howe, Usin, and Fater Mania, OFM, of the Treat Monastery, at the marriage of Prince Peter Douni de Frankopan, of Croatia, eldest son of Princes and Princess Frankopan, to Miss Jessica Sainsbury, daughter of the Right Hon Sir Timothy and Lady Sainsbury, held on Sainrday, July 12 of Dousi Abbey Cardinal 12 of Dousi Abbey Cardinal i2, at Doual Abbey. Cardinal Franjo Kuharić of Zagreb and the Cardinal Archbishop of West-neinster conveyed their blessing. The bride was attended by Miss Cassandra Donner, Florence Heathquat-Amory, Tom, Ella and Olivia Woodward and Max Worsley, Archebike Eduardo von Habsburg of Austria was best

Today's royal engagements

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh will give a garden party at Buckingham Palace at-

Princess Alexandra will also at-

Princess Margaret, as President. Royal Ballet, will attend a perfor-mance by the Royal Ballet School at Holland Park Open Air Theatre London W8 at 7.55.

The Doke of Gloucester will visit 11.00. Later, accompanied by the Farls Court at 7 15 The Duchess of Kent, as Chancellor, will preside at the honorary degree ceremonies at Leeds University, Woodhouse Lane, 12.05.

Lunchcons HM Government of State for Defence, was the host at a leacheon given yesterday at Lancaster House by Her Majesty's Government in honour of Mr Pumio Kyuma, the Japanese Min-ister of State for Defence.

for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, was the host at a luncheon given by Her Majesty's Government yesterday at Lancaster House to bid farewell to Dr Ante

The Boyat Antemobile Club Mr Jeffrey Bose, Chairman, pre-sided at the annual junction for the Senior One Hundred members of The Royal Automobile Club, held in the Clubhouse yesterday. Squadron Leader John Crampton, who joined the RAC in 1940, responded to the mast to the Senior One Hundred, proposed by Mr

1.00

PERSONA

BMDS: 0171 680 6880 PRIVATE: 0171 481 4000

PERSONAL COLUMN

TRADE: 0171 481 1982 FAX: 0171 481 9313 FOR SALE

If we live, we live for the Lord; and if we die, we die for the Lord. So whether we live or die, we belong to the Lord. Romens 14:8

MALFOUR - Kenneth and Ann (noe Powell) are delighted to (née Fowell) are delighted to aumounce the safe arrival of their son Stephen James on Sunday July 6th 1997, a brother for Bobert and Mark. BLACKETT-080 - On 14th July, to Nicolete (née Hobart) and Ean, a daughter, Cassiopela Rosensiry. ZALVERT - On July 12th 1997, to Tom and Tilly, a daughter, Susannish Honor, a sister for Jack.

Jack.

1997, to Verity (née Runt)

and Michael, a benutiful daughter, Alice Felicity Jose, a sister for Patrick. a suser for Patrick.

LARICE - On june 25th 1997, to Miles and Vivience (nois Shortle), a son, Benedict Christopher James. A brother for Alex and another playmate for Max. gargemen for Max.

Gibbons - On June 30th, to Jonathan and Rachel (nee

Tetley), a daughter, Canfilla

Elizabeth, a sister for Eddle,

Cliver and Dominic.

(2588 - On July 9th to Meismie (260 Addock) and Philip, a daughter, Alexa' Maisie HEES - On 9th July 1997, to Hicky (née Taylor) and Simon, a daughter, Flora Vere Alarmine Simon, a daughter, Flora Mary Alexandra.

HAMELTON-ADMES - On July 14th in Paris, in Raitaille (née Boos) and Charles, a taughter, Sara.

HELAND - On June 24th, to Jo (née Guils) and Johnsy, a son, Francis Bernard Achiev, a buther for Luciem.

REMEMBER 111 - On July 15th 1997, to Annie (née Thompson) and David, a daughte, Sophie.

LATHAM - On July 5th 1997, to Benny (née Coleman) and Parick a son Mile Patrick, a son, Milo Senjamin Patrick, a brother for Poppy and Alex. AWSON-MAY - On July 11th at The Portland Hospital, to Tracy and Neil, a son, Alexander William, a brother

LIGVO - On 15th July 1997, to Elchard and Irene (age Theorems), a son. MaCHILAN - On 10th july at Luton Hospital, to Kirsty (ale Envison) and Tim, a daughter, Alla Georgia. MARTUS - On June 23rd at the Kitofk Hirslanden, Zurich, to Sara (née Hucker) and Stephen, a beautiful dauchter, Isabella Eksise, BIRTHS McCASE - On July 12th 1997, to Becky (née Flumb) and Felix, a son, Sean Felix, a brother for Iona. to Frof. Christine Temple and Mr Leslie McCume, a son, Nicholas Robert Temple, a brother for Alexander. CARCEST OF ASSESSMENT OF THE POPULAR HOSPITAL TO MISSESS AND BILL, I SON, ROBERT CERTER PICE, A DRIVE MILL OF THE POPULAR AND PROCTOR - On june 24th at Samitive | Rospital in Sangkok, to Barbara (née O'Kane) and David beautiful twins, Bethany Grace and Tobias Cornellus. RECLEY-SCHREIDER - On July 12th, in Los Angeles to Jame and John, a con Pinnian Jay. SMPSON - On July 13th, to Debbie (née Barlow) and john, a daughter, Lucy Victoria Kemp. VilA - On July 10th, to Caroline (née Fea) and James, a son, Samuel Salvador Fea. WHEAMP - On July 14th at The Portland Hospital, to Caroline (née Ames) and Paul, a son, Joseph Jack, a hyother for Max, Hannah and Isaballa.

WAGGES - On July 14th, to Simone and Daniel, a son, Edward John James. DEATHS

Cardona.
CRAWFORD - James Henry (26.10.22) Died peacefully on 14th fully after a short libres. We thail miss him, lage, Victor, Jockes, boint and family, Funeral: 2 pm 23rd July, Eistree Parish Church, Family Howers only,
Please send donations to Watford Feace Hospics Appeal; clo Nethercott & Appeal; clo Rethercott &

and the second s

BESIMOST - Mary Ventmics beloved wife of Richard Sesumoni, Southwell, Norte, on 15th july 1997 age 83 after a long Ulnest Funeral 11.00am Saturday 19th July at Southwell Minster. No flowers please, but small domations may be made after the service to cancer abusities.

charities.

CRAMMEAD - On July 12th
1997, Alesdair Bourhill Luight, formerly of Edinburgh, died in Heritorishire aged 87.
Husband of Flora MacDonald Maclumes and father of Isin, Enginesis and Catriona.

DEATHS

FREELAND - William Neil Munro (Neil), on july 14th, surrounded by love after illness borns with inspirational courage and humour. Beloved husband and dearest friend of GII (Gilly), devoted father, sonin-law, father-in-law and Pape. Puneral private, no flowers. Thanksgiving Sevice for his life to be arranged. Donations if desired to League of Friends, Royal Marsden Hospital, Sutton and The Lord's Taverners, the Sunsenam & Sons, Donan Court, Reignes Hond, Redbill, Surrey RHI 6AZ Our thanks to all who cared for him at the Mansden.

GEORGE - Susan Mary on 11th July 1997 aged 82 Widow of John and Joved and very respected mother of Caroline and Joved gambnother of Annabel and Jovethan. Funeral Service Monday 21st July 1997 at 11 am 81 Laurence Church, Middont-on-Aron. Flowers to Edward Jarvis, Greyfriars, Kings Coughton, Alcester, Warwickshire.

HARINGTON - Catherine at Stathrosdale peacefully on July 16th.

MARTZELL - On 12th July 1997, Elizabeth Jane, solicitor of Tunbridge Wells, while well of Howard Gasham Raymal, daughter of the Inte Cumon LEW, and Mas Rosley, loved and loving mother of Paul, Peter and Jomes and their families, coar companion for 14 years of Councillor David Sinelair. Service of Thanksquing at St James Church, Ferndale, Tumbridge Wells on Friday 25th July at 2 pm. Family flowers only, but if desired, domations to The Woodland Trust, Autumn Fark, Grantham, Lincolnshire MGS 51.1 or to Hospice in the Weald, Allen Gardiner House, Fembury Kond, the Weald, Alben Garither House, Feanbury Road, Tunbridge Wells, Lant INZ 30U. Enquiries to E.R. Hickmett & Son, 41 Grove Hill Road, Tunbridge Wells, 01892 522462.

MARR - Alaz, aged 47, in hospital on 14th July after a courageous fight squinat cancer, much loved and genetly intesed by his family and colleague. Creaming on Toseday 22nd July at 3 pm. Family flowers only. Donations, if desired, for & George's Hospital Special Trustees (reg. charity 241527) Cancer Vaccine Campaign, at 5t George's Rospital Appeal Office, Stackshaw Road, Tooting, London SW17 OQT.

MMLE - (née Henn) Resalind Feacefully on June 18th, funeral has taken place. Thanksgiving Service will be held on September 20th 3.00pm at 3: James United Levicraned Church, Palmerston Road, Sackheset Hill, Essex, Donations if desired to The Cancer Research Campaign eto Gordon Hughes, Eussells Solicitors, 119 Station Road, Chingdond, 24 GML Cheques made payable to The Cancer Research Campaign.

MOLESWORTH - On July 10th, in her 96th year, Caryl Mangaret, widow of HWL Molesworth F.R.C.S. Nuch Molesworth F.R.C.E. Nuch loved mother, genemicater, and great-grandmother. Peneral 24th july 12 nom at The Town Chumb, 9: Peter Fort. No Howes by request. Donations, If wished, to Guernsky R.M.L. ich Mattels FS., Brock Hond, St Sampson.

SHEFFISIAD - Serona Mary peacefully on 14th July. Elder daughter of the late Reggie and Nancie Sheffish, devoted and dearly loved shots and sont Fuell at St. Andrew's Chunch, Surton-co-States, North Lines, at 2 pm on Tuesday 22nd July.

FREEDING-SNATM - Terry on 12th July whilst playing teams, So much loved by Abbits Lindy and Panda, Pand, and Dain, and by all his many ideads. He was a very special man. Funemal 22nd july. Enquiries to E.J. Gemery & Son 01905 22094.

FREELAND - William Neil Manner (Neil), on July 14th, surrounded by love after illness borns with inspirational courage and humour. Beloved husband and dearest friend of Gill (Gilly), devoted inclusive in Chapter of Panda and Courage on the Papa. Puneral private, no flowers. Thanksgiving Service in the to be arranged. Donations if desired to League of Priests, Royal Marsdan Hospital, Sutton and The Lord's Treenawn, etc Susseanns & Sons. Donar Court, Reignes.

TURBER - Element Marganet (Peggy) died pescafully aged 91 vetrs on Sundry 12th Joly 1977 at Corbonol Court, Andless, Cheahire, Peggy, beloved rister of John, sisten-in-law of Alteon and wonderful sunt of Rathel, Elchand and Claux Possessisteries at 11 am on Monday 21st July at 31 Orwalds Church, Worleston, Rantwick followed by committal at 5t Chade Church in Wybunbury, Domnions if desired to 5t Chewids Church, Worleston.

VERNINGS - Munical Gone died pencefully 14th July 1997 aged 76. Francest Friday 18th July 10:30 am at Eschestia Chapal, Llangeritock, Owner. No flowers, but denantions if desired to 3t Anne's Hospitos, Harding Avenue, Malpus, Newyork, Gwunt NP9 62E.

VITOS - Stefan, spec 65, in London, on 23rd June. Affectionate former husband of Mardiah Luck (née Anne MacLenn) and loving father of René, Laurena and Geuma, and spoud genétather of Max, Robia, Joshwa and Rannak, A remarkable man whose erudition, charm, style, artistic talents, great kindness and spiritual insights euriched many. insights suriched

WALTON - Rims May Walton, originally from Make, but Instarty of Burford and Shipton-under-Wychrood, died on Sundey, 13th July and went straight to Heaven. There will be a Requiem Mass at the Church of St. John Fisher & R. Thomes More, 171 The Sile, Burbed, Ozon on Wednesday 23rd July at 1800A. All are welcome. Fishers sowd Bowess to I. Twice & Ros, Corbett Road, Carteston, Ozon (01972-845421) er domations, if prederied, to the Cheath (in shwe). the Chench (in shore).

VORSH - David John RegionEdward on July 15th 1997, devoted and school lembered
of the late Anne, and June;
Loved and lember, and june; Loved and lember, and pracefather of Philip and pracefather of Philip and Henry, Panend Service at St.
Andrew's Chench, Securing,
Sussez, on Tuesday Zind July at 9 m. Runity throwsonly, but donations if wished to 5t Euranbes Hospice, Columbia Drive, Worthing, West Sussez.

in memoriam — PRIVATE COVER - Judith Angusta Mach (note Harston), beloved with for 51 years of Professor Henry Cohen, mother et Hillary Robert and gaugey of Alice and Harms, died of cancer on 17th July 1997. Sadly missed.

In loving numery of George Bullytone who that an 17th July 1994 Remarked with official by 2019 and all his HADD - John 17th Judy 1996, R seems like yesterday, I miss you so tench during Indely. Always on my state. Spate drugsteer Particle. Only 18 procious years, hiss you. Love you, Always. "Little one", frum, Dad, and Line.

WHITTRIGITARI - Poter. Ten settlemen have peased but your implication still qualue us. Manie, constructly, love timals you for those pitts. We not living life to the full, and shirving your grand-bildren
the very to follow.

WANTED ME 1940's clother, lines, least fame, patrimonic quiltz, embro TICKETS FOR SALE

TICKETS Ryder Cap World Cap France '98 and All Cricket RUGBY UNION Rugby Union
Eng V Anstralia
Bug V South Africa
Eng V New Zouland
Michael Jackson, UZ
All pop, sport & thempe 0171 323 4480

ALL TICKETS! Test Cricket, Ryder Cop All Int. Rugby Union MICHAEL JACKSON UZ Phantom, Miss Szigon, Les Mis etc All Theatre, Pop & Sport 0171 247 4123

£10 a week... ...will rent you an Acom Stairlift. To find out move, call us now on freefone 0800 19 19 19 Direct from the manufacturer

Rent or buy

Yeat day installation available

britial payment to CONTROL SECTION

GIVE YOUR LIFE ALCIEVE

TICKETS FOR SALE ACCISS TICKETS operialism in all anire thates pop and spetting events, hitches lagi-son Tol 0171 Stl 6416 Par 0171 E28 2507 All AVAIL Chespent in London Planton, Prost Phint, all pop sport & thestro 017; 279 1445 FOR SALE

OFF REGET obtained. The Compacts & stry quantity was 0171 400 4684 (Chr). TICKET ONLY SE HOSPITALITY PACIS ELL U.S.A. BARDYSIN & MELAND BEST SPEDIESTS WEIGHE CONCERNS MONT PROFESSION HEM STANDAY CONTROL OF THE STANDAY A MORE OF THE STANDAY A MORE OF THE STANDAY A MORE OF THE STANDAY WE COME ALL OF A MODULATE WE COME

REST TRACES THE Cricket
Open Golf Trees
Ryder Cup,
Michael Jockson
Int. Reply Union, America
As poster cents 21 71 378 9000
of a surapped, free desiratory

OVERSEAS TRAVEL Cities contained items for an execution of the property of the contained items for an execution of the property of the contained of the contained of the contained of the property of the contained of the contained of the property of the contained of the contained of the property of the contained of the contained of the contained of the property of the contained of t ANNOUNCEMENTS. COURT & SOCIAL PORTECOMENG MARRIAGES AND MARRIAGES Please and Coart Page amountments by peaffar it:
Max J. Nessan, Coart & Social Advertising, The Times,
PO Sea 493, Virginia Street, Leaden Ed SES. Tel: 0171 782 7347. Faz 0171 782 7725 Please include in all correspondence: gastane of either one of the parties opnounced or a a departure and home telephone attacher and adde directivements for the Court Page using he secured to dring days prior to publication and are accepted subject to confirmation. Advertising Rate is $15.55 per has the VAT. THE SUNDAYTIMES n,

: 75

-4-

17.

14.

Ŗ-,

64

. .

475

ė.

124

Paraga

1000

MONDAY & TUESDAY 9ам брм WEDNESDAY & THURSDAY 9AM-JPM FRIDAY - SAM GEM SATURDAY 9AM-4PM SUNDAY KINM IPM TEL: 0171 481 4000 FAX: 0171 782 7799

هلدًا منه المصل

initial payment to removal costs

tactude 6 morales min

mual, installation and

while in the

OBITUARIES

The Republic

Forthcoming '

marriages

Harriage

《草葉學院》

11000

PROFESSOR MICHAEL JAFFE

Professor Michael Jaffe, CBE. former Director of the Fitzwilliam Museum. Cambridge, died on July 13 aged 74. He was born on June 3, 1923.

ichael Jaffe was one of the most successful museum directors of his generation. He had an extraordinary flair for finding objects of great beauty and rarrity; his wide and close knowledge of dealers enabled him often to find them in unexpected places and at relatively modest prices; and he had the courage to buy things even when they did not conform to current taste and sometimes even when neither he nor anyone else could say for certain what their provenance was.

He always acted with energy and sometimes succeeded in acquiring paintings against what seemed like impossible odds, as when in 1976 he decided to try to buy the Madonna and Child by Van Dyck which had been sold by the Duke of Sutherland for £330,000 and the export of which had been stopped by the Reviewing Committee for the Export of Works of Art. Within a week or two of the time Dimit, when everyone thought he had no chance whatsoever of collecting the money, he was able to announce that a donor - who is still unnamed

- had offered £100,000, and this enabled him to collect the remainder of the money required. The self-confidence that these activities proved also manifested itself in an arrogance of manner which made him enemies. If anyone obstructed him he would say or write things of extreme violence and then be surprised and almost hurt to find that the recipient took offence. This manner also led to his not always being loved by his students or his administrative underlings.

Andrew Michael Jaffé was born in London, the son of a well-to-do

Jewish banker who had formed an important collection of portrait miniatures. He was educted at Eton. where he was in College, and in 1940 won a scholarship to King's College, Cambridge, but preferred to join the Navy, in which he served from 1942 to 1945, becoming a lieutenant-commander. In 1945 he went up to Cambridge, where he read History and English, being awarded a first in Part II of the English Tripos in the History of Art. At Cambridge he was active in many fields, becoming president of the Marlowe Society and taking part in reviving Granta, room, and he designed the layout of which had stopped publication dur- paving and cobble stones outside the ing the war, the first number taking the form of the Prattler, a parody of the Tatler.

In 1949 he enrolled for the BA course in the History of Art at the Courtauld Institute, but did not complete the course because in 1951 he was offered a Commonwealth (later Harkness) Fellowship to America, where he spent the two following years studying at Harvard and the Institute of Fine Arts of New York University. He kept up his connec-tion with the United States and was visiting professor at Washington University, St Louis, in 1960-61. In 1952 he was elected to a fellowship at King's and for the next twenty years played an important part in the life of the college, particularly in matters connected with the arts. He was largely responsible for the changes made in the arrangement of Hall, and for the redecoration of the senior common front gate of the college and round the west end of Chapel. When in 1961 Rubens's Adoration of the Magi was presented to the college by Major A. E. Allnatt, he was the Fellow charged with finding a suitable setting for it. It was entirely due to his energy and pertinacity that the college eventually decided to put it against the east wall of the Chapel, a project which involved drastic alterations to the choir, including the lowering of the eastern part of the pavement and the removal of the panelling round the east end (18th and 19th-century arrangements respectively) - both alterations which aroused considerable opposition. At the same time he was active in university affairs, particularly in the setting up of a department of Art History. In this he had to overcome resistance both from the more oldfashioned senior members of the university, who considered the subject frivolous and not susceptible of scholarly treatment, and from some members of the faculty of Architecture, who viewed it with positive hostility; but once again his energy and persistence defeated the opposition. In 1970 the subject was approved for Part II of the Tripos, and Jaffé was made a lecturer in the History of Art; in 1973 he was made Professor, just at the moment that he was offered the Directorship of the Fitzwilliam Museum on the resignation of David Piper.

In the following years he saw through the completion of the extension to the galleries and offices of the museum, the plans of which had been prepared by his predecessor. He went on to secure some remarkable acquisitions, many of which might normally have been beyond the means of a small museum with a derisory purchase grant; most valuable among them was Renoir's Place Clichy, bought for El million in 1986 from Sarah Price, daughter of R. A. Butler and his first wife Sydney (née

In 1972 Sir Hamilton Kerr had given his house at Whittlesford and a considerable sum of money to the university, without precise instructions about the use to which it should be put, and in 1975 Jaffe persuaded the university to use it to house a centre for training in the conservation of easel paintings. He succeeded in collecting the additional funds required for the scheme from various charitable organisations and the Institute was opened in 1975 under the direction of Herbert Lank.

Meanwhile Jaffé had been actively pursuing his research. His achievement in scholarship was based on the fact that he had the courage to take up the study of Rubens, a subject from which other students of art history had been frightened off by the fact that Ludwig Burchard was still alive and had accumulated a vast amount of material on Rubens of which he published only a very small part. Jaffé decided not to be deterred by this obstacle and within a few years had established himself as the leading expert on Rubens - and his associates Van Dyck and Jordaens among the younger generation of English scholars.

In 1954-55 he "discovered" Van Dyck's Antwerp Sketchbook in the library at Chatsworth, where it had long been known to scholars but had been dismissed as the work of a follower. He published it in 1966 in a fine edition with learned commentary. From the 1950s onwards he published articles on Rubens and his followers in many learned periodicals and in 1968 he organised a large Jordaens exhibition in Ottawa, where some of his bolder attributions were challenged and some controversy with other scholars ensued. In 1977 he published Rubens and Italy in which he incorporated material which he had published in articles in various journals, but also added much that was new, based on his recent research.

Although he suffered many years of poor health, he remained at the Fitzwilliam for 17 years, retiring as planned in 1990. Nor did illness prevent him from organising an important exhibition of Old Master drawings from Chatsworth at the British Museum in 1993; his fourvolume catalogue of the Chatsworth drawings was published in 1994. He was appointed CBE in 1989.

He married, in 1964, Patricia Milne-Henderson, herself an expert in art and art history. She survives him with their two sons and two daughters.

ALWYN McKAY

Alwyn McKay, pioneer nuclear scientist, died in Oxford on July 3 aged 83. He was born on July 4, 1913.

ALWYN McKAY was part of the group working with the famous nuclear innovator Niels Bohr in Copenhagen towards the end of the golden age of atomic physics. This great European venture included pioneers from many countries. At the time of Mc-Kay's arrival, the researches of Enrico Fermi were just coming through from Italy. translated by a young Italianspeaking Austrian refugee from the Nazis, Otto Frisch.

This work stimulated the next stage of discovery, with an appeal for money to buy six tenths of a gram of radium. With the neutrons that could then be produced, and the subsequent experiments concerning their passage through matter, a new picture of the atom's nucleus was constructed.

This in turn paved the way for nuclear fission, but by then McKay had moved on to a fellowship at Imperial College, London (1937), and then to become a demonstrator at King's College. But at that point war broke out, and before long he was in the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve Special Branch, working at the Admiralty and overseas. Herbert Alwyn Cochrane

McKay was the son of Herbert McKay, an author of children's stories and scientific and mathematical books. From Watford Grammar School he went to Balliol College, Oxford, where he took a first in chemistry. He then decided to go to Copenhagen. His time with Bohr - 1935-

- was crucial in the development of nuclear science under the menace of war. As McKay recounts in The Making of the Atomic Age (1984). Bohr was already a legend in his own country. As the foremost Danish savant. he lived in the Residence of Honour in the grounds of the Carlsberg brewery, with pilsner and lager on tap ... His colleagues would stand up Swedish a respectfully when he came published.

into the lunch room." The influence of this formidable character left an enduring mark on McKay's own re-searches as a nuclear chemist.

After release from the Navy in 1947, he joined the Atomic Energy Research Establishment at Harwell, becomine principal scientific officer in 948 and leader successively of the heavy elements and separation processes groups, dealing with the chemistry of the separation of plutonium. He was a first-rate scientist, and highly regarded. His greatest strength lay in the thermodynamics of aqueous solutions. Dealing with the most complex subjects, he had also to explain his work to newcomers to the disciplines.

For two years he was seconded to be director of the Cento Institute of Nuclear Science in Tehran, and a posting to the Atomic Research Station in Ghana left him with a continuing concern for that country's wellbeing. He retired in 1980.

Many nuclear scientists have searched their consciences about their work. McKay lived at ease with his because he was committed to a basic change of attitude to our stewardship of "energy capital". His Christian faith had been fostered during his undergraduate years Frank Bushman's Oxford Group (later Moral Re-Arma-

In 1947 he married Hilda Honey, who predeceased him. He is survived by his brother Dermot. Their joint translations of children's songs from Swedish are shortly to be

LORD HARDINGE OF PENSHURST

George Edward Charles Hardinge, 3rd Lord Hardinge of Penshurst, ch publisher, died on July 14 aged 75. He was born on October 31, 1921.

GEORGE HARDINGE was distinguished publisher of crime novels, who worked for years with Collins. Longman and Macmillan Among the crime writers he edited were Agatha Christie, Ngaio Marsh, Nicholas Blake, Julian Symons and Ellis

Peters. He had arrived at Collins in with excellent sales, produc-

FLATSHARE

VSWATER seen sh fir, coin dhi mhash E/R, cis unbe, £128pw ac. Tel: 0171 262 2808

HESEA Hr Stoome Sq tube, own bed/bath, FR, share with prof-female, £900 pcm inc. 0171 225 1942/589 2708 (evs)

1951 with nothing in the way of a publishing background. Indeed, even his writing experience was confined to contributing notices of films to the National Review, the right-wing monthly run by his grandmother, Viscountess Milner (otherwise most of his time was spent near her home in Sussex running a market garden). His first footsteps in publishing could, therefore, have been precarious. At the time Collins was the most effective trade publisher in London.

PHERAM Bishops Park, Female 10 share a fit, own moss, 280pr inc. After 7pm 0171 786 7254

MLE 1980, double room in 3 bed noom house, ar Central & Dis-trict line tube, to sait prof NS, £85pw incl. 0181 983 3927.

CHRESINGTON $0. Design usy flat, balcony, tenso N/S. Eneg. D171 2292

TOM im in house, gar

PERSONAL COLUMN

SITUATIONS

VACANT.

tion and promotion, all overseen by its famous chairman, Sir William ("Billy") Collins with his wife keeping a pious eye on the religious division. Hardinge had been deliber-ately brought in to expand the firm's new Crime Club. This he very efficiently did. But during his career he encouraged talent far beyond that of crimewriters, handling such Leaving Collins in 1957. Hardinge spent the next four years with the rival firm of

MAINE-TUCKER

PA/ADMINISTRATOR

up to £30,000 bonus, priv health, 5 wks hols, gym membership, free car parking τ company car

8-21 Jernsyn Street, St James's, London SWHY 6H1

telephone: 0171-734-7341 | bacsimile: 0171-734-336

authors as Nina Bawden.

E. P. Thompson and Mary

Longman's. But in 1961 he returned to Collins, again with the specific brief to rejuvenate the Crime Club. This second coming did not, however, last much longer than his first. It ended in a confrontation with Billy Collins, who did not like his editors becoming too successful or independent (one who became an MP promptly lost his place on the board).

Hardinge in 1968 moved to the family house of Macmillan, where he launched a brand new crime list, which has gone from strength to strength. Retiring from Mac-

FLIGHTS

DIRECTORY

OSTCUTTERS on flights & hole to Burope, USA & most destina-tions. Diploment Travel Services Lat. 0171-730 2201. ASTA 25703 LATA/ATOL 1355.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

LAYSWATER Fem sh, chi m, bu

ensuite, v close tobe, Avail nov. £138 pw inc. 0171 262 2808.

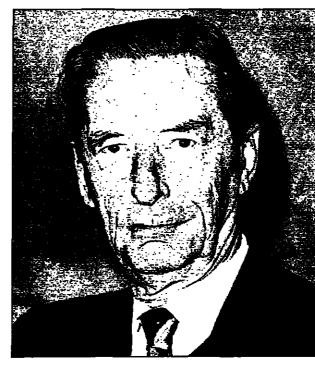

millan's in 1986, he became a consultant with Headline, which published popular fiction and later took over Hodder & Stoughton. Ellis Peters was one author who followed him from Collins to Macmillan and finally to Headline.

Under the name of George Milner, he wrote crime novels himself, and he was elected to the exclusive Detection Club, the rules of which forbade authors to use divine revelation, feminine intuition, acts of God and similar as means for the detection of a crime.

He was the author of a delightful book called An Incompleat Angler (1976). This was a quasi-autobiography. with descriptions of his childhood, woven around tales of fishing and favourite stretches of rivers. He was a founder member of the Booker Prize for Fiction, having been involved in a scheme initiated by Booker's chairman Sir Jock Campbell to buy up the rights of living authors, such as lan Fleming, in order to alleviate some of their tax liabilities.

George Edward Charles Hardinge came from a distinguished family. His grandfa-ther, the 1st Baron, was Viceroy of India, and his father, the 2nd Baron, was Sir Alec Hardinge, Private Secre-tary to King Edward VIII and the man who in 1936 was forced to alert the King to the fact that the newspaper silence over Wallis Simpson was about to break. His mother Helen Cecil was the daughter of Lord Edward Cecil and his wife Violet Milner.

Hardinge was, therefore, brought up in royal circles.

playing cricket with his sisters in Colour Court at St James's Palace, using the ceremonial colour-holder as a wicket. As a boy he served as page of honour to three Kings between 1933 and 1938, and was a trainbearer to King George VI (whom his father also served as Private Secretary) at the 1937 Coronation.

Hardinge was educated at Eton and Dartmouth, where he passed out top. During the Second World War he served in HMS Naiad and HMS Medway, in both of which he was sunk. He also served in HMS King George V. He was in Malta during the siege, working for the Commanding Officer of Submarines. When King George VI visited the island in 1942, he made a point of asking to see him. Immediately after the war he was appointed acting lieutenant-commander while serving as secretary to the naval attaché in Paris. Although the son of a courtier, George Hardinge always went his own way in life. His father retired as George VI's Private Secretary in 1943, following a disagreement with his deputy Sir Alan Lascelles. which made it impossible for the two men to continue working together. (The official reason given was ill-health.) The false allegation that he had been sacked - later disproved - was something that preoccupied both George Hardinge and his sisters for some years. Hardinge's son, Julian, is a godson of the present Queen and served as her page of honour, thus continuing a long family tradition.

Hardinge was twice married. His first wife was Janet Balfour, daughter of Lieutenant-Colonel Francis Balfour, a colonial governor in Sudan and Mongalia Province, and a nephew of Arthur Balfour. When they married in 1944, Hardinge wrote to King George VI asking if he could spend his honeymoon on the Balmoral Estate, having remembered with great happiness the family holidays he had spent at the house above Loch Muick, Alma-Guisach. The King wrote back in his own hand, offering him Birkhall. Hardinge and Janet had three sons but divorced in 1962. She died in 1970. He married secondly, in 1966, Mrs Margaret Trezise, daughter of William Jerrum, and had a further son. He also adopted her son by the previous marriage.

Hardinge was a tall and distinguished-looking man with impeccable manners. He succeeded his father as 3rd Baron Hardinge of Penshurst in 1960 and, as an hereditary peer, spoke occasionally on naval matters in the House of Lords. He is survived by his second wife Margaret. The eldest son by the first marriage, Julian, born in 1945, now succeeds as 4th Baron Hardinge of

INTERNATIONAL PHONE CALLS

ADVIKILS.

10b USA 26p Japan 39p 69n Hong Kong 50_P €1.08 Maiaysia 55p £1.08 Phillipines 80p £1.33 Palostan 60p £1.20 India 88p [1.33 28p 39p 67p 41.05 67p [[3] 55p £1.02 68p james's.

james'

Solary negociable, benefits include free hands and private healthcare

oce to Gillian Mckinley, Sabre Fund Manage Limited, Windsor House, 55 St. James's Street, London SWIA TLA. Tel: 9171 318 2880 Fact 9771 316 9191

> It's so simple... Savings Simply dial through the Worldcall exchange for clear quality, low cost nternational calls to over 240 countries. No installation required, no need to dispense with your current phone company or number and absolutely no additional charges, just constant low rates ali day, every day.

24 hours a day

NEW CUSTOMERS

£200 cowards KUONI Holidas +£10 worth of free calls' Call Freephone 0800 0747 000 Werldcall

NEW POET LAUREATE. APPOINTMENT OF MR. ROBERT BRIDGES. The King has been pleased to approve the appointment of Mr. Robert Bridges, D.Litt. to he Poet Laureate.

Mr Bridges, who was born in 1844, was educated at Eton and Corpus Christi College, Oxford, of which he is an honorary Fellow. After leaving Oxford he spent some time travelling, and subsequently studied medi-cine at St. Bartholomew's Hospital. He became easualty physician at St. Bartholo-mew's, and afterwards held appointments at the Children's Hospital, Great Ormondstreet, and the Great Northern Hospital. He retired in 1882. An estimate of his poetry will be found in our leading article. The New Poet Laureate. The appointment of Mr. Robert Bridges as Poet Laureate puts a very satisfactory conclusion to a widespread controversy. For some reason, the general public appears to have taken an unprecedented interest in the question who was to succeed Mr. Alfred Austin, or whether anyone was to succeed him. Many expressed the opinion that the office of Poet Laureate had outlived its purpose and its honour, and should be

ON THIS DAY

July 17, 1913

"The honour paid to Mr Bridges is an honour paid to poetry. Mr Bridges, as poet, is no politician. wrote The Times on his appointment. A shrewd comment, since Bridges's predecessor, Alfred Austin, perhaps the least regarded of modern laureates, had obtrusive political views.

abolished. Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, in his recently-published volume, makes the halfjocular suggestion that the office should be maintained, but conferred (in a manner which would have a Chinese flavour about it) on a poet already dead - "to benefit his family and to point out the beauties of his works to an otherwise indifferent posterity". The correspondence columns of the newspapers have eld many letters from people who had each his favourite to recommend to notice. In nearly every case among these last it was to be rved that the claim was made not solely on the grounds of poetry. Politics, party.

patriotism (in the narrower sense) seemed to be the determining factors.
It is not wholly improhable that these considerations may have had some indirect influence on the appointment of Mr. Robert Bridges. Whether it be so or not, the honour paid to Mr. Bridges is an honour paid to poetry. Mr. Bridges, as poet, is no politician. He is a poet and an earnest student and practitioner of the art and the science of poetry. Mr. Bridges has given to poetry what Seymour Haden gave to etching, and more. He has studied profoundly and practically the origins, the values, the philosophy of words, of rhythms, of metres. Probably no man living knows more of these matters than Mr. Bridges. His work on the prosody of Milton began a new chapter in criticism; and only the week before last we reviewed in the Literary Supplement his authoritative and daring book on the mispronunciation of English. To these and other critical tasks he has brought learning, fine taste, courage and science: while, as the author of narrative and lyrical poems and of poetical plays, he has exhibited in addition to these qualities, a lofty passion for poetic beauty. The passion of the artist for beauty is the pure motive of Mr. Bridges's poetry; and the honour paid to him is an honour paid to poetry for her own sake.

Bargains of the week: Mexico for a fortnight, free meals in Madeira, three nights for the price of two in France

HOLIDAYS

TURKEY for a week for £319 a person with a flight from Garwick on July 27 is on offer from Accommodation Overseas and includes B&B in two-star hotels in Dalyan or Hisaronu. Price based on two sharing. Details: 0181-977

ST LUCIA for a week with room-only accommodation for £439 a person (children £349) is among reduced Caribbean offers from Style Holidays. Fly from Gatwick on July 27. Details: 0181-568 1999.

■ MAGIC of Egypt tours for eight days — flying from Heathrow on July 28 and taking in the Pyramids and Valley of the Kings - are available from Bales Tours for £620 a person, including B&B accommodation. Details: 01306 885991.

MAN AUBERGE in the Ariège region of the Pyrenees with excellent views and ancient sites near by is available on certain dates from The Gascony Secret, Price: £300 a person in a party of two with a week's B&B and ferry crossing. Details: 01284 827253.

■ ALL-INCLUSIVE holidays in a resort in Puerto Vallarta. Mexico, for £899 for a fortnight are available from

Airtours with flights from Gatwick and Manchester every Monday in August. De-tails: 0541 507109. ■ CYCLING through the Cotswolds on a planned route from Learnington to Cheltenham is available from Com-pass Holidays for £299 a person including six nights accommodation in small hotels and inns. Service back-up, tour packs, cycle hire avail-able. Details: 01242 250642.

A SAFARI package to South Africa for ten days is available for £899 a person from Travelplanners with a flight from Gatwick on August to, hotel accommodation in Johannesburg and Durban and escorted tours to game reserves. Details: 0990 280083.

THE Costa Brava for E289 a person for Bank Holiday week in self-catering accom-modation, with a flight from Glasgow on August 24, is on offer from Cosmos. Details:

FERRIES

SEA France has cut peak prices on Dover-Calais to £95 return for a car and nine passengers. Bookings by July 26 for travel by August 31. Details: 0990 711711.

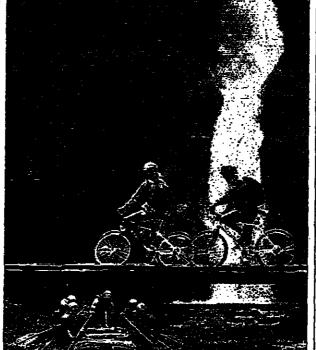

IRISH Ferries has sevennight holidays leaving July 26 in apartments in Co Clare. from E140 per person based on four adults travelling. Details: 0990 170000.

■ TRAVEL agents A.T. Mays and Artac WorldChoice have several ferry deals on routes to France and Ireland. They include £110 returns on P&O's Dover-Calais route. Details: 0990 000888.

■ HOVERSPEED has E[29 crossings on Folkestone-Boupassengers. Bookings must be made 14 days in advance. Valid until August 31. Details:

SCANDINAVIAN Seaways has an eight-night holi-day to Lakeland Holiday Centre in Jutland, departing July 31, for £1,140, for a family of four, including crossing. Details: 0990 333111.

AIRLINK

VFB Holidays is offering £50 off France Active adventure holidays taken after August 20 provided bookings are made before July 30. Two adults and two children can spend seven nights in Les Deux-Alpes near Grenoble in a self-catering apartment for £428. Telephone: 01242 240332.

FLIGHTS.

■ QANTAS and BA have new excursion fares from £769 to all major Australian gateways with a stopover in Bangkok, Singapore or Tokyo, plus two flights within Australia. Trav-el between August 10 and November 30, or January 21 to March 31. Details: 0345-747767.

AIR UK's latest Euroff fares cost £69 to Amsterdam, Copenhagen £89, Dusseldorf E89, plus Hamburg and Mu-nich £99, Details: 0345 666777.

■ AB Shannon has added weekend flights on the Gatwick-Shannon service, starting at E75 return. Details: 0345 464748.

LUPUS Travel has special excursion fares to most Italian destinations, ranging from Milan and Venice to Brindisi and Palermo. Prices range between £160 and £240. Book by today for Rome, Milan and Venice. Details: 0171-306 3000.

ATAB has a Crossair excursion from London City to Geneva priced between E129 and £159. Details: 0171-636

■ THE Millennium & Copthorne Hotels chain is offering two nights accommodation with breakfast at 11 four-star hotels throughout the UK for 199 a couple until August 31. Other discounted offers are available at the chain's conti-nental hotels. Details: 0645

LUCKNAM Park Hotel near Bath is offering a twocourse lunch in its Michelinstarred restaurant for £10 a person until July 27 as part of the Bath International Taste Extravaganza Festival. De-tails 01225 742777

TO CELEBRATE the golden wedding anniversary of the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, the Priest House hotel on the banks of the River Trent near Castle Donington has a special offer until the end of the year for couples celebrat-ing their 50th anniversary. The two-night package costs £54 a person a night and includes dinner, champagne, chocolates and flowers. De-tails 01332 810649

■ THREE nights for the price of two are available at several

French hotels featured in the new Aspects of France regional directory from the Small Luxury Hotels of the World; consortium. Offer valid until March 31 next year. Details 0800 964470.

STAY five nights at Reid's. fore September 30 and receive three free dinners and a room upgrade where available. Offer available through Leading Hotels of the World Details: 0800 181123.

■ SEE the Cannizaro Park open-air theatre festival until August 17 and enjoy a pretheatre dinner at the nearby Cannizaro House Hotel in Wimbledon, Price for dinner and ticket is £37.75 a person. with overnight accommoda-tion at £65 a person. Details: 0181-879 1464.

SUMMER rates from the ITT Sheraton Hotel chain start at £65 a night at the Sheraton Heathrow, rising to £160 a night at the Sheraton, Park Lane. Offers available until September 5 at other UK and continental Sheraton Hotels. Details: 0800 353535.

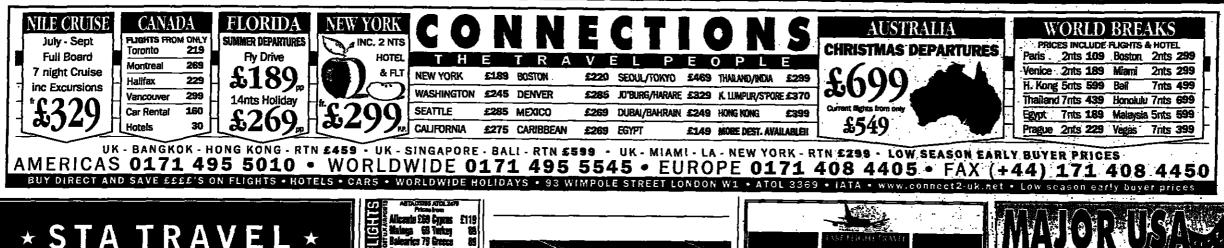

TO ADVERTISE CALL 0171 481 1989

i LYON

I GENEYA

CHECK-IN

0171 782 7824

benz

	_
NEW YORK	£197 £218
TORONTO TORONTO	£223 £234	ET TO E
LAS VEGAS	£277 £278	USA & WORLDWIDE FLIGHTS 017 72 72 72 72
VANCOUVER	£301 £316	Australia & New Zealand 01772 727 727
INDIA S. AFRICA	£340	BOUND THE WORLD 01772 727 747
MEXICO CZTY RANGEOK	E371	MOTELS & TAILORMANE G1772 727 757
SINGAPORE HONG KONG	£407 £483	The Battonal Sales Centre for over 100 lending scheduled strikes, with 800,000 discount faces to 1,000 destinations.
70kr 0	£511	OPPO Annuary 7 April 2 marsh

AUSTRALIA & NEW ZEALAND SPECIALS AUSTRALIA *£678 NEW ZEALAND ft £788 deps 01 Aug - 30 Nov

worldwide attention to detail

Because we	think the	world o	f you

	CHI	rent de	est buys on the	Would	S line	scammes		١
ind bet	25 ES)	गुरु: ज्ञान	-	ाम सङ्ग्र स्ट्र	r¢ian Ma		316 429	et.a
SYDNEY PERTH CAIRINS AUCKLAND BANGKOK HONIG KONG SINGAPORE BALI BELING TOKYO	£355 £329 £355 £379 £242 £319 £242 £297 £251 £275	2589 2591 2599 2677 2374 2497 2399 2434 2379 2495	NEW YORK BOSTON CHICAGO FLORIDA LOS ANGELES SAN FRANCISCO LAS YEGAS DERVER TORONTO VANCOUVER	2128 2149 2157 2165 2202 2278 2286 2157 2262	$189 $215 $229 $245 $295 $286 $286 $286 $229 $348	CARIBBEAN MEXICO CITY IND:A JO BURG CAPE TOWN HARARE NAROBI OUBAI CAIRO AROUND THE W	5276 5251 5198 5199 5199 5305 5244 5182 5145

AUSTRALIA 236 • USA 231 • AFRICA 231 • PACIFIC 240 • ASIA 227 HISA CAR HIRE FROM £12 PER DAY . CALL HOW FOR OUR TAE ORMADE WORLDWIDE AND NORTH AMERICA ENOCHURES

Art aur travel centres are open Mon-Sat 9-6pm + Thurs 9-7pm + Sun 10-6pm

TRAILE NO ERS -THE TRAVEL EXPERTS

GREAT NEW SPECIAL OFFER! RETURN FLIGHTS TO HONG KONG WITH 5 NIGHTS FIRST CLASS ACCOMMODATION FROM £699*

VALID FOR JULY DEPARTURES - *price per person, based on twin share HOTELS- CAR HORE - MANY MESU

Trailfinders does not impose charges on credit cards

For the real lowdown on worldwide travel, Traillinders is your one stop travel shop. Trailfloders offers more low cost. flights to more destinations than anyone. Experts in airtares since 1970, we can tailor-make your very own package with up to 65% discoun on hotels and cat hire worldwide.

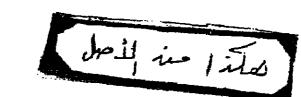

FOR YOUR FREE COPY OF THE CALL 0171-938 3366 ANYTHME ATOL 1458 URTA - ABTA 68781

42-50 Earls Court Road - LONDON WB 6FT Long Hauf Travel: 0171-938 3366 194 Kensington High Street • LOHDON W8 7RG Long Hauf Travel: 8171-938 3939 First & Business Class: 0171-938 3444 215 Kensington High Street - LONDON W8 680 Transatianire & European: 0171-937 5400 22-24 The Priory Queensway - BIRMINGHAM B4 68S Worldwide Travel: 8121-236 1234 48 Com Street • BRISTOL BS1 1HQ Worldwide Travel: 8117-929 9000

254-284 Sauchiettall Street - GLASGOW G2 3EH Worldwide Travel: 0141-353 2224 58 Dearsgate • MANCHESTER M3 2FF Worldwide Travel: 0161-839 6989 First & Business Class: 0161-839 3434. ... people think the world of us!

SYDNEX N. ZEALAND

Cana family

Where to find last-minute breaks

IF YOU'VE left booking your summer holiday until the last moment and the schools have already broken up there are thousands of places still available for those prepared to be flexible. But they do not come at bargain prices.

Those who have delayed booking a summer holiday in the hope of lastminute discounts are almost certain to be disappointed. Travel agents and tour-operators expect strong demand to continue as people benefit from building society and insurance company windfalls.

The Spanish islands of Majorca, lifiza and the Canarles continue to be the most popular destinations. Few packages remain. For long-haul holidaymakers. Florida is the prime target

For those eager to cross the Channel to take advantage of ten French francs to the pound; few berths remain on the western routes.

Tourists

tell of horror

holiday

By HARVEY ELLIOTT

MORE than 200 package holi-daymakers are threatening to sue two tour operators after dozens fell ill and others complained of foul conditions in

The holidaymakers, all from the North West of England, claimed that they found slugs and cockroaches in their food, ants in their beds, a fouled swimming pool, birds

pecking at meals and uncovered food, guests being served with stale leftovers and others

mugged on a private beach.

The group had booked with two tour operators - Inspira-tions and Direct Holidays. On return, they immediately demanded refunds.

Patricia Doyle of North-wich. Cheshire, had treated a friend to a once in a lifetime

trip to the resort of Cabarete with Inspirations and was due to spend two weeks in a two-star hotel at a total cost of more than £1,000. We were both ill for days," she says. "I have gathered the names and addresses of more than 200 people who feel the same. If i' do not get a satisfactory response, we will put money in a pot and take the firm to court."

Other victims included Sidney and Dolores Mellor of honeymoon. They spent the first two weeks of their marriage living on bread and water. Francis Torrilla, Inspirations marketing director, said none of the holidaymakers had written to complain formally, but an investigation would be held when they did.

"We have had no problems with this resort before," he says. "Obviously, something went wrong this time. Some-Antigua, but it isn't."

aints made to us."

the Dominican Republic.

Alcopop sales to

be curbed

t former for new

.

1 12 12 12 13 man

and tranceller

wy house

But space can always be found, and August to sell out. If anything, although it may be at inconvenient times, on the Dover-Calais crossing. In Britain, holiday cottages and hotel rooms are at a premium in the most popular areas including the West Country, Cotswolds and Lake District but tourist offices say that ac-commodation is available for those willing to stay a few miles from "the

Thomas Cook reports that 80 per cent of holiday packages up until the end of August are sold out and though plenty may still be available, the travel agency warns customers that "unless you are flexible on dates and airports, you may be unlucky".

A spokesman adds: "Prices are generally higher than last year. The average price for one person for a week is £360. Greece, Turkey and Tunisia are cheaper. We expect July prices will harden. The excellent exchange rate is encouraging people to travel. Demand is strong and will probably remain strong until mid-

Helen Leversedge of Thomson, Britain's leading tour operator, says that the inconsistent weather in Britain and the strength of the pound have helped to swell bookings this summer. She estimates that 8.8 million holidaymakers will have travelled abroad by the end of the season. Tour operators have matched supply and demand well this year," she says, "so discounting in peak season is minimal. Flights are available to some of the popular resorts, but holiday beds are scarce."

The company still has some attractively priced holidays available for the first weeks of the summer

Malta, with a flight from Gatwick next Tuesday, costs £293 a person, and a formight's self-catering in Tur-key with a flight from Garwick the next day is available for £395 a Deligon.

Thomson adds that some cruise holidays also remain available throughout the summer because the leading operators have extended their programmes. Lunn Poly advises that families who have left it late will still get a holiday, but they must be flexible. A spokesman says: "If, for example, they want a hotel they may have to take self-catering or vice versa. Flights from Gatwick and Manchester are still not sold, but you might have to be flexible on time and take a night flight to Europe or a less convenient flight to America."

He adds that France is a good place to try because the strong pound has holidays. A week's self-catering in only recently made it more affordable, so there have been fewer early bookings. The company is still of-fering £50 off French Life holidays from its Best of France brochure.

Brittany Ferries, however, is almost fully booked - except for foot passengers — on its popular Ports-mouth-St Malo route. The first availability is midweek in late August. Return journeys are also fully booked until September 1. There is still some availability on the Portsmouth-Caen route. Brittany Ferries holiday homes are also almost sold out until after August 26.

Peter Chappelow, managing director of Country Holidays, a group with 10,000 holiday cottages on offer in Britain, says that those in "the honeypots" are fully booked and the only hope of getting a place in most popular West Country and Lake District areas is to find a last-minute

Tourism and the road to recovery

Every

pound in

ell over half of the 5.5 billion photographs taken each month are snapped by travellers and holidaymakers. And more than 20 per cent of the revenue taken by London shops comes from foreign visitors. These two facts illustrate how important travel and tourism is, not only as the world's fastest-growing industry, but also to other apparently unrelated

If more people travel they will want more films, so more workers will be needed to make them and to process the resulting snaps. As shops rake in the money from visitors, so they can take on more staff to help to sell even more. It is all a clear indication of why additional the Government's Welfare to Work gramme should work.

tax means There many within the tourism -- or 'hospitality" industry who believe that up to a million new jobs can be created in Britain over the next decade.

Few doubt that 250,000 'work placements" — the Government's description and target figure — can be found without really trying. And Britain is not alone in discovering the enormous potential for growth and social improvement produced by our yearning to

Some 262 million people are employed in travel and tourism - more than 10 per cent of the world's working population. By 2007 this is expected to rise to 383 million, creating one new job every 2.4 seconds. While Eastern Europe and the Far East will see the increase in the hotel and biggest growth in jobs over the next decade, the opportunity exists for Britain to tap into the extraordinary surge in demand for travel. But the potential can fully be realised only if the Government works with rather than against, the industry. It needs, for example, to ensure that teachers impress on youngsters that a job in the hospitality industry - covering all aspects of travel. transport, accommodation, food and drink, retail, information, reservations, leisure centres, visitor attractions, heritage sites, theatres, restaurants, castles, seaside piers, fashion shows, airlines, ferries and many more is exciting and important.

 Too often it is looked down on as menial and dull. Further education must also be geared towards producing the kind of people the industry wants. For example, 43 institutions now offer 75 tourism degree courses, and by 2000 will be producing 4,000 graduates a year. But what the industry wants is not academics versed in the thefewer oretical aspects of tourism, but visitors people who have learnt how to recognise real customer needs and how to supply them. This means hands-on, practical training. The Government must also learn to keep its fingers out of the till. It is all too easy for Gordon Brown — as other politicians around the world have done and come to regret - to regard the tourism industry as a cow to be milked at will. But every additional pound in tax means fewer visitors to provide the additional jobs. And above all they must ensure that the minimum wage is not set too high. Anything above £3.50 an hour would bite hard, and the £4.50 an hour being proposed by the unions could result in a 14 per cent catering industry wages bill Travel and tourism can be the engine for economic recovery, job creation and happiness. Only the cackhanded intervention of politicians can shackle it.

TRAVEL ON SATURDAY

Sailing to New Zealand by cargo ship Golf: France, Tenerife, Alps, Bermuda, Barbados The volcano trails of Hawaii and Iceland Wales: Eisteddfod, druids and history for new taxes. The tax will most certainly put Sydney at a disadvantage.'

Bob Carr, the Premier of

What is claimed to be the first portable shelter to protect babies from the harmful rays of the sun has been launched in time for the peak holiday season. The Pod, designed in Edinburgh by Protection Outdoors, costs £49.95. It has a gold coating which, say the makers, screens out 97 per cent of all ultra-violet rays. Skin cancer mainly affects older people but babies are particularly vulnerable.

scheduled departure. The occupant took a stern view.

"Your seat has been sold. We are entitled to do this because you are so late. What time do you call this to turn up for a ilight?" I should say, in case the woman loses her job, that this exchange was conducted with impeccable politeness.

said I had phoned ahead. "Hmm." she said. "I'll have to check." Things did not look good. The desk milled with standby travellers looking as though they would kill for any available seat. She disap peared into the back office for what seemed an eternity.

Take-off time came and went.

Miraculously, she reap-peared, with a huge smile and a boarding pass. "No trouble, Mr Hamilton," she said. "You are in seat 1D. We are boarding now."

What took place in the back office I do not know. I offered no bribes, threatened no recri-

Canal tax will hit family leisure trips

YCLISTS are to be charged £12.50 each to ride alongside one of Britain's best-known canals. And if the scheme which would add £50 to the cost of a cycling holiday for the average family of four — is considered a success, it could be extended to thousands of miles of other towpaths throughout Britain.

Cyclists claim that the charge being piloted on the Kennet and Avon will force them onto more dangerous roads and discourage cycling to work and for leisure. Alan Harlow, director of the Cyclists' Touring Club.

says the £12.50, to times, people expect the Dombe charged annuinican Republic to be like ally, is also at odds with the Hugh Boyle, the Direct Holidays managing director, says: "I have seen the accom-Government's strategy to boost the numbers of modation and it seemed to be of good standard. There is a people who cycle lot of poor accommodation in an attempt to reduce car usage and because there is a large influx of holdaymakers, some and improve public health. He says: Towpaths operators may be having to put people up in these places. We will look into any comare ideal for meetmg a national cycling strategy because they often offer safe access between comurbations." Tony Ambrose, a spokesman for Recycle Your Sundays, which is organising a series of protests, says: "This is the only safe and flat route for cyclists to the east of Bath. The towpath is especially popular with families because it is the only route in the area they can safely cycle with their children. If the charges are imposed, there will be nowhere that many families will be able to afford to take their children to learn the pleasures of cycling. This British Water-

Ideal cycling conditions — and safe from cars

ways Board move will tax cyclists off the canal."

Cyclists claim that anglers and boaters' complaints against cyclists have partly prompted the board's actions. Mr Ambrose says: "Nobody is saying that the testosterone mountain bike brigade does not need controlling. But this is not the way to go about it." Boat owners pay an annual fee of £300 plus mooring fees and anglers pay up to £15 for rod licences. The board spokesman says the money raised from cyclists would allow the board to put more staff on the canal to resolve conflicts between > different user groups. hired to enforce the scheme. The cycling fees would rangers have been also go towards helping to maintain the towpath to make the Kennet and Avon Camore pleasant for

A new line on mobile phones

By Alan Hamilton

MOBILE phones distress and depress me. The only safe escape from their relentless electronic tagging is on an aircraft. But I reluctantly confess that the instrument pressed into my hand to keep tabs on a domestic crisis proved its worth during last week's BA strike.

The world conspired to prevent my getting to Edinburgh. The BA shuttle was off the menu, but I managed to get the last available seat on the last British Midland flight of the day. Excellent news, except for the evil alliance of London Underground and a sudden monsoon downpour in central London.

I went, in good time, to Blackfriars Tube station, only to be confronted with a seething crowd and an operative refusing me entrance to the platform on the grounds of flooding, overcrowding, and the possible presence of serpents with tongues of fire. Time for a taxi to the nearest station on the probably unflooded Piccadilly Line. Fine, except that the rest of London also wanted

A mad dash dropped me at Green Park with 45 minutes to go to final check-in. The Piccadilly journey was painfully slow. At five minutes before final check-in, I was only at Hammersmith. In desperation, I pulled from my pocket the foul device and phoned British Midland. "Do not," I commanded, "sell my seat to any passing standby layabout. I am on my way, battling through acts of God and the London Tube." The woman at the other end said she would log my call on the computer. I was left wondering whether this was decisive action.

I arrived, panting and glowing more than somewhat inside my city suit, at the checkin desk five minutes before

A tax on the bed

THE government of New South Wales has shocked Sydney hoteliers and tourism chiefs in Australia by impos-ing a 10 per cent bed tax, Harvey Elliott writes.

Many fear that the new tax will stem the number of visitors to the state just as Australian sport is attracting a fast-growing international following and the country prepares for the Olympic Games in 2000.

John Morse, managing director of the Australian Tourist Commission, said: "Our real concern is that the tourism industry's success over the past few years may result in it being seen as a cash cow

New South Wales, claims that visitors would still go to Sydney whatever the cost and figures so far show that his optimism is justified.

Over the past 12 months the Australian Tourist Commission helpline has received more than 5,000 inquiries about golf alone. Well over 50 per cent of the calls are from

During the Games up to 200,000 visitors are expected to go to Australia.

TALK DIRTY WITH FRIEND IN BATH GUARANTEED CHEAPER CALL BILLS OR DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK. It's time BT came clean. The truth is, Mercury is up to 33%

cheaper than BT for national calls. In fact, if you don't save money on your call bill (even if you have PremierLine and Friends & Family), we'll refund double the difference.

Mercury UK-Call FreeCall 0500 500 366

Priors and savings convex at 30/06/1997, compared against BTV basic rates for calls of 5 mounts. Sovings available for a quarterly for of LATS (no. 1/AT). Prior Philips terms apply opiness BT3 basic rates and discount schemes, excluding line result and temporary protocolinal offers.

Not available on Calling Carl or business parketing.

on EMU

SEAGULE TRAVELS 0171 625 7660 FLIGHT GENTRE BOOKINGS

EUROPE
Retuses prices from Alicente 199 holy 199
Atherns 129. Microse 199 Benghak 339 (July 419
Combs 179 Terrando 119 Comblem 249 N. Incident 579
Madeiro 139 Turkey 119 Medica 279 Torrando 199
Foro 99 Turkey 119 Medica 279 Torrando 199
Incident 189 Memory destinations or available. 0171 565 6804 Dubai Rtn £290

Attine Appointed Agent Fire datable please contact

200800 TRAVEL LTD.

25 Press Street, London W2 1NT

141 7171 255 0205 of 0171 247 1994 Fact 0571 724 8307

Within Your budget! CANADA £147 PORTUGAL £109 FRANCE £159 HALY £169 Call us now we are Open 7 days a week

01923 850085 FLIGHTS FROM £99*

0990 502 580

CHECK-IN

Worldwide Car Rental

WITH BRITANNIA THIS JULY Leeds Bradford - BANGKOK

BALI

WEXICO

PRAGUE

WORLDWIDE

£356 TOKYO

£183 WARSAW

£469 DELHI

£382 RIO

FOR THE BEST FARES & STOPOVERS CALL TODAY ALL PRICE PUB ARPORT TAX

0161 272 8433 -LONG HAUL

0161 272 8455 - USA/CANADA

DELTA TRAVEL

£599 AUCKLAND £649

£599 SINGAPORE£411

£499

£499

£159

- Malaga - £169 - Tenerife - £179 Arrecife Plus dozens of other destinations For details of availability visit your local travel agent or cal

Preview: Johnny Kamara is serving life for murder but did he do it?

Trial and Error (Channel 4, 9pm). Heview: Peter Barnard on the man who talks to horses Pages 46, 47

Speedy enlargement will be the cardinal measure of Tony Blair's claims about Britain's "leadership" in Europe. Can be break the logiams? Can he raise people's eyes to Doctors are taught that direct surgical intervention should be resisted whenever possible: it is a pity that Mr Dobson ignores best clini-

...Page (#

Eastward, look

the horizon?.....

Dobson's choice

NEWS

Rebates plan for top-up pensions

The Government will today announce a shake-up of pension provision including a radical plan to give national insurance rebates to millions of people if they join flexible new personal schemes. The centrepiece of the proposals will be chance for everyone to hold a second "stakeholder" pension to top up their basic state pension Page 1

Brown reopens debate on EMU

■ Gordon Brown will launch a debate on European economic and monetary union and revive the fiercest political controversy of the past five years..... Pages 1, 11

Versace 'knew killer'

Gianni Versace, the Italian fashion designer, may have met his alleged killer Pages I, 12, 13 Electric shock

An 86-year-old woman has spent 20 years without electricity after thinking she had been cut off because she used too little Page 1 Shares record

The stock market stormed to a record high and unemployment fell to its lowest level for seven

.... Page I vears .. BSE in humans

British research into BSE shows that infectious proteins from contaminated beef can, in laboratory tests, be transmitted to human Tourists were turned away from the Eiffel Tower when employees went on strike over the sacking of a tour guide ...

Eiffel Tower strike

Litigious priest

Address ..

A clergyman was declared a vexatious litigant over his campaign on women priests Page 5

Spy camera row

Ministers were in conflict with the police over a refusal to use speeding fines to pay for more spy cameras.... ... Page 6

Oil disaster charges Criminal charges are to be brought against senior harbour managers over the Sea Empress oil disaster...

Hospital reform

Queue-jumping by patients of fundholding doctors is to be stopped and hospitals will have to admit people for treatment on medical need only Golden words

A woman aged 25 who twice failed GCSE English has reportedly signed a £750,000 deal for her first three books Page 10 Korean border crisis North Korean troops penetrated the military demarcation line with South Korea Page 14 French civil war

A barely civil war of words broke out between the two most powerful men in France............ Page 15

Cilla Black, the television celebrity, with her husband, Bobby, and her son, Jack, at Buckingham Palace to be made a CBE.

BUSINESS

Telecoms: BT pledged to complete its E12 billion merger with MCI in the face of mounting losses in the American phone company's local business but left the door open to renegotiate the price Page 25 Boeing: The clash over the merger of with McDonnell Douglas came to a head when EU competition experts unanimously opposed the creation of the world's largest aero-

.....Page 25 Banking: One of the top executives at Barclays de Zoete Wedd, the troubled investment banking arm of Barclays, resigned to take the helm at Eagle StarPage 25

space company

Markets: The FTSE 100 rose 64.9 to 4964.2. Sterling rose from 105.1 to 105.2 up from $1.6743 to $1.6758; down from DM3.0141 to DM3.0124Page 28

SPORT

Golf: Tom Lehman begins the defence of the Open Championship with almost everything in apple pie order and swept along on a wave of support from the Scots Page 48 Cricket: Mike Smith, the Gloucestershire bowler, is to be called into the England party for the fourth Test after taking six Derbyshire wickets on the opening day of the Cheltenham Festival Page 44

Cycling: Another controversial stage finish in the Tour de France saw Serguei Outschakov, of Ukraine, relegated to third place for dangerous sprinting Page 46

Recing: Hawksley Hill produced a career best effort to win the £90,000 Hong Kong Jockey Club Trophy at Sandown, the most valuable mile race run at the course....... Page 42

ARIS

Tame T-Rex Four years and dozens of imitative movies after Jurassic Park made us jump, Steven Old boys: Benedict Nightingale reviews Divorce Me. Darling at Chichester and finds Sandy Wilson's follow-up to The Boy Friend less hummable or touching than the original.....

Russian steps: The Kirov are getting to grips with the great choreographer George Balanchine but Symphony in C and Giselle displayed some problems..... Page 34

Book worms: The Carnegie Award for children's books has gone to the controversial Junk, about two 14year-olds seduced by heroin. What

TOMORROW

IN THE TIMES

POP Chartbusting: Alan Jackson reports on how Radio 2 is starting to influence the top 40

EDUCATION The Dearing report: can there be one degree standard?

Dr Thomas Shittaford: Advice on psoriasis: folic acid deficiency; skeletons of monks; twin protection; an old remedy...... ____Page 16

Take a dekko: There are rules to decoration and they do not include coloured candles. David Hicks says that if you live in the suburbs, flying ducks are fine Page 17

Towpath toll: Leisure excursions may cost families extra if plans to charge cyclists on one of England's best-known canals are extended through the network ____ Page 23 Late break: How to book a lastminute holiday Page 23

Bellef betrayed: Terry Waite on Hezbollah; Jonathan Mirsky on Jonathan Dimbleby's The Last Governor.....Page 36, 37

The Algerian political scene is a shadow theatre and it is often extremely difficult to guess which play is being put on. Are we at a watershed in the Algerian crisis? Or is this just a new turn in the tactics pursued for several months by President Zeroual? As it is difficult to see the oligarchy in power committing political suicide after forced to lean towards the second 8, 18, 23, 26, 35, 45. Bonus: 3.

cal practice.....

Junk fiction? Children should be given a chance to think for themselves. They do.

and they will. That is part of reading up and growing up Page 19

WILLIAM REES-MOGG

It is strange that in July 1997 the Church of England should formally adopt the economic philosophy of old Labour

MAGNUS LINKLATER A Scottish Parliament armed with the ability to make laws and with spending powers could be a formidable engine for change Page 18 JOHN BRYANT The row over the dropping of Roger Black from the 400 metres for the world championships says much about British athletics as it limps from one public relations disaster to another ... PETER RIDDELL

Tony Blair is helping himself as well as Paddy Ashdown in deciding to press ahead with legislation for proportional representation in the European elections Page 8

- DELINIARIES

Professor Michael Jaffé, former Director of the Fitzwilliam Museum, Cambridge: Lord Hardinge of Pensisurat, publisher; Alwyn Mc-Kay, nuclear scientist......Page 21

Abortion; "fat cat" lawyers: Radio 4: junk mail: Versace Page 19

hypothesis - Libération, Paris | The jackpot was £5,000,000.

(Please print) Name Send your entry to: The Times Crossword Championship 1997, 13, Church Lane, Ripon, N Yorks HG4 2ES. All entries must be postmarked no later than Wednesday Competition Rodes I Qualifying competitors will be those who correctly solve this puzzle and submit it to the competition address with a LIO entry fee and stamped sac, postmarked no later than Joly 23, 1997. 2 Qualifying competitions will be unvited to the Royal Festival Hall, subject to the words's capacity, on the basis of the least number of mistakes in the qualifying puzzle. 3 At the champeorship on Sunday August 24, competitors will be asked to amplete four normal Times consessed puzzles with a time limit of 30 minutes cade. 4 Competitors will be arraked firstly according to according to speed into time bonus points will be given for an incorrect puzzle, 5 in the event of any dispute the decision of the Crossword Editor of the Time, will be final, 6 Employees of Times Newspapers Lid may not compete.

THE TIMES CROSSWORD NO 20,534

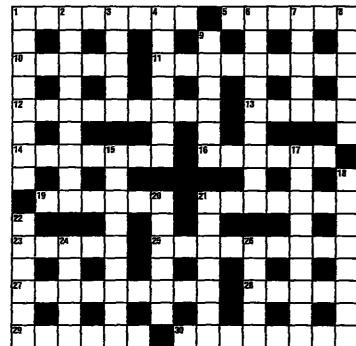

The Times Crossword Championship

1997 Qualifying Puzzle

Here is the qualifying puzzle for The Times Crossword Championship 1997, which will be held as a single session event on Sunday August 24, 1997, at the Royal Festival Hall, between 3pm and 6,30pm.

Please enter me for the 1997 crossword championship. I enclose my solution, a £10 entry fee (cheque no. _______ payable to The Times Crossword Championship 1997) and a large stamped sae. The solution will appear on July 24.

1 Ruth concealing brooch in slipper

ACROSS

- 5 City section ready for merger when required (4-2).
- 10 As part of scoring effort, very 11 Prepare to punish soundly? Pro-
- test heatedly (5,4). 12 A group, originally, the king assembled (9). 13 Fare from Japan this US high-
- flier needs (5). 14 Heads off gun raid led without back-up (7).
- 16 How children can playfully send each other up (6). 19 Omniscient mastermind? (b).
- 21 Cover a dish from top to bottom

Solution to Puzzle No 20,533

23 Almost remove from container 25 Save a sailor, one arriving at a romantic island (9).

27 Edward's old relative with poor 28 Tenor's line in musical (5). 29 In sun I'd rejected last of raiment?

30 Poet from American city entering verse competition (8). 1 Northern town's run out of cake

2 Sole means of punishment (9). 3 Upstart locks up David's victim

4 Cambridge University (7). 6 Fail to turn out as expected (9). 7 Oriental's courtesan (5). 8 From Rome, now, I ring papal official (6). Money for elementary education increased by two-thirds (6). 15 Man's bench (9).

17 Cat at home in green room? (9). 18 Refusal, say, to enter race (3). 20 Starting point for tales a poet put together (6).

21 Historian the exact opposite of 27, possibly (7). 22 Hamlet deserted in shade (6). 24 Take heads off chrysanthemum

 you could also deadhead this plant (5). 26 Can journey to the interior and cross between wild animals (5).

Times Two Crossword, page 48

AA INFORMATION

UK Weather- All regions 0336 444 910 UK Reads - All regions 0336 401 410 Irrade M25 M25 and Link Roads National Motorways Commental Europe Channel crossing 0336 401 746 0336 401 747 0336 401 748 0336 401 910 0336 401 388

0336 407 50$ The Mct. Office Dial 0136 followed by an West Country 410 334 Vision 416 336 Estr Anglia 416 317 N Veser 416 319 Scotland 410 340 Scotland 410 340 416 341 416 342

World City Weather 💆 🗀 🖦 Office

European fuel of French Motorwa Seapors wiforma Disneyland Paris Le Shuzia

M Car reports by fax O336 416 399 Gura, 182 caus 1900 cau sabour Automobile Apociacion Developments Led Automobile Apociacion Developments Led Automobile Apociacion Developments

HOURS OF DARKNESS

Full moon July 20 London 9 69 pm to 5 65 pm Bristol 9 19 pm to 5 15 pm Estimburgh 9 46 pm to 4 53 pm Manchester 9 28 pm to 5 50 pm Penzance 9 25 pm to 5 23 pm

NEWSPAPERS SUPPORT RECYCLING Recycled paper made up 41.2% of the new material for UK framappers in the first helf of 1998

FORECAST

Comment: East Anglia and SE England may be dry at first, but rain will spread from west. The rain will be mainly light. Wales, the Midlands and SW England will also have paticity rain at first, but it will become diner and brighter Most of N England will be dry with sunny spells developing. Scotland and N letland mainly dry, some sureshine. Clondon, SE England, E Anglia: starting dry, but druzzle and heavier bursts of rain spreading from west. Light and ranable wind. Max 21C (70F).

Central S England, Middands, Char-nel Isles, SW England: a cloudy morning with patchy rain and drazze. Dier and brighter from west in attempon Light northwest wand Max 20C (68F) DE England, N England: patchy ram in scuth, but dry with surny spells later. Light northwest wind. Max 19C (66F).

this alternoon with sunny spells, northwest wind, Max 20C (68F). Lake District, Isle of Man, Borders, Edinburgh & Dundee, SW Scotland, Glasgow, Central Highlands, Argyll, Northern Ireland: mainly dry, small risk of showers Light northwest wind. Max 20C (RR)

Aberdeen, Moray Firth, NE Scotland, NW Scotland, Orkney, Shetland: cool and cloudy on coast, perhaps drizzle. Becoming brighter inland. Light to moderate northwest wind. Max 10C (50F).

Wales: cloudy with rain at first, but dry AROUND ERITAIN YESTERDAY

0 46 0 01 0 08 0 01 0 03 0 01 0 01 02 003 23 001 04 001 33 001 07 007 34 001 @Q1 2 001 21 001 09 001 38 01 46 003 46 003 46 001 47 001 60 005 60 005 13 001 22 0 01 0 13 0.04 05 . 1.1 . 11 001

ABROAD A accord
Akrocki
Akrocki
Akrocki
Akrocki
Akrocki
Akrocki
Barker
B Malaya Malaya Malaya Mado Malaya Mostret Moscov Mos

☐ Outhoolic a tew showers in South East tomorrow, but good spells of sunshine elsewhere Some cloud in east on Setirday, but most places dry.

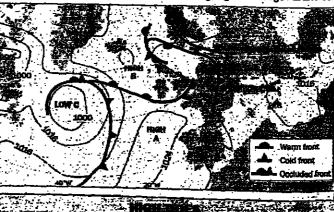

Ci Potten forecast: low in N Scotland; moderate in N England and Midlands; all other areas low to moderate (supplied by Potten Research Unit).

Overcast Rein Sunny showers Steet and sunny showers 🛖 Lightning Temperature (Celsius)

Sunny Interval:

Cloudy Drizzle

Changes to chart below from noon; low A will push NE and fill; low C will run NE with little change in pressure; high A will be slow-moving; high B will edge NE and build

TODAY
Landon Bridge Aberdeen
Anormouth
Beltest
Cardin (N Wall)
Felmouth
Dover
Cardin (N Wall)
Felmouth
Chemick
Harvich
Hothred
Hothred
Kuff Shart Dt
Ittacombe
Sing's Lynn HT 62 3.7 118 3.7 118 3.7 4.7 3.1 5.0 5.7 8.0 5.7 8.0 5.7 1208 1278 17.35 16.16 21.35 15.47 21.54 21.20 17.00 17.00 PM 13.18 22.016 22.48 16.58 16.55 16.20 17.23 22.16 22.01 21.34 17.04 14.22 22.42 AM 0044 0938 08431 0449 0455 0931 10438 0157 1015 All times BST. Heights in metres

Yesterday: Highest day semp: Tonguay, Deson, 23C (73F); invest day mer. Cape Wrath, Highland, (56F); highest rainfail: Abendeen, 0 46m; highest sanabher: Febouard, Pembrokeshiri: 5 6ff.

Policy Terror and Conditions are as aliable up to quant. A posterior liveture Services Europe Las is no independent intermediaty greated by the ASS code 0800 700 737 of condition Septem Services Europe Linderd, Registered Citics, Pertined Holes, Sing Piece, Linders SWIETEZ, Enginteed Nameber 18503.

(علدًا منه الأصل

of trips and save yourself a great deal. To enrol call, quoting reference TWS13

• 🚜

一年 宣樂

A THE RESERVE

34 Jan 4

INSIDE SECTION TODA

THERODAY JULY DI

Copsou s choice

AM REES NOS

-27 State:

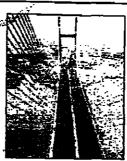

LETTERS

MAGNUS LINKLATE

BUSINESS

Graham Searjeant says hands off our pensions PAGE 29

FOCUS

Construction builds bridges to the future PAGE 38-41

SPORT

Champion Lehman on the attack at British Open PAGES 42-48

TELEVISION AND RADIO PAGES

46, 47

BUSINESS EDITOR Patience Wheatcroft

* THURSDAY JULY 17 1997

Shares march to record levels

FTSE 100 pushes closer to 5,000 mark as New York and Frankfurt reach highs

By Alasdair Murray, economics correspondent

THE stock market is expected to break through the symbolic 5,000 point level imminently as traders continue to drive the market is ignoring concerns about rising interest rates and the strong pound.

The FTSE 100 closed up 64.9 points at 4,964.2 yesterday, having at one stage during the day touched 4,991.8.

The financial services sector accounted for almost half the rise as bid speculation and stock shortages continued to push prices higher. Pharmaceutical stocks also continued to attract buyers as results from American competitors pointed towards rising drug

International markets also moved to record highs. In New York the Dow Jones broke through the 8,000 level. while European stock markets received a boost from the dollar's renewed climb on the: foreign exchanges. The Paris CAC-40 closed up 37.31 points at 2,988.01, while the Dax 30 in Frankfurt finished at a record high of 4.201.24

Dealers said strong over-seas interest and the high level of cash held by institutional push the London market higher. But many economists are sceptical about whether the rise can be maintained, with further interest rate rises expected in the coming months.

Pears of another quarter point rate rise next month receded only slightly yester-day after the latest employment data showed a fall in average earnings growth despite another large decline in the number of people out of Average earnings rose by 4.25 per cent in June, compared with 4.5 per cent the previous month, as the City bonus round came to a close. The increase in service sector earnings also slowed slightly, falling a quarter point to 4.5

Seasonally adjusted unem-ployment declined a further 36,500 to 1,600,800 or 5.7 per cent of the total workforce. The Office for National Statistics said the impact of the intro-duction of the Jobseekers' Allowance had now dropped out of the figures and that the trend fall in unemployment

A high pound and potentially higher interest rates should not make for an ever higher stock market. And what about the £70 billion cost to UK companies of the change to the taxation of dividend credits for peasion funds? The market seems to have shrugged that off. Apparently, fund managers who manage the money behind the market think it is too high, yet the FTSE keeps rising. The stock market appears to be living in a world of its own, powered by bid rumours and unrealisis a correction coming. But when? Commentary, page 27 was running at 20,000 to 35,000 a month.

Simon Briscoe, director of research at Nikko Europe, said the latest data supported growing evidence that the labour market is not strong and that inflationary pres-sures are easing. But Adam Cole, UK economist at James Capel, said that the rise in vacancies and a further large labour market. The Bank of England has expressed concern over the inflationary impact of the strong labour market in recent months and the better than expected earnings figures may ease pressure for another interest rate rise

The minutes for the June monetary policy committee Bank was granted operational independence in May, show the newly installed committee was unanimous in its decision to raise rates by a quarter point. The committee exressed concern over the high level of the pound but concluded domestic demand was sufficiently strong to warrant a further tightening in monetary policy. Separate data published yesterday showed that Government borrowing increased unexpectedly in June. The public sector borrowing requirement increased to £4.75 billion in June compared with £3.73 billion in May and £3.77 billion in June last year. The running total for the financial year so far is £9.6 billion, before privatisation proceeds. this time last year. Economists said the Government was on course to meet its full-year PSBR forecast of £10.9 billion. Government interest payments on gilts jumped sharply as payments are now concentrated in June and December. while VAT receipts fell in comparison with last year because of the introduction of a quarterly system of payments for large companies. But the Government has kept well within in its tough spending regime with total expenditure failing 1.3 per cent in the

CBI urges

Blair to delay euro

Warring bankers drive up prices

By Jon Ashworth and Martin Waller

THE extraordinary rise in share prices this year has been fuelled by frenzied speculation of takeovers by banks and insurance companies, although a bid of any significance has yet to emerge.

Takeover paranoia among banks and other financial institutions has resulted in full-scale "war games" aimed at simulating what happens when a hostile bidder swoops.

Abbey National has been holding dry runs with advisers, amid speculation that various suitors, including NatWest Group and HSBC, owner of Midland Bank, have been casting the slide-rule over its books. Moreover, leading PR bid advisers such as Brunswick and Citigate are said to be on 24-hour alert, while some corporate financiers are reported to have cancelled summer holidays. Bid speculation has reached such a pitch that the only question seems to be whether the expected predators will pounce now or wait until the interim results sea-Abbey National, which is determined to safeguard its independence, says it has contingency plans for all manner of developments.

Fingers continue to point at NatWest, seen as vulnerable in the wake of the derivatives mispricing losses, and at Barclays de Zoete Wedd. Halifax shares are trading at 18 times earnings, against a sector average of 12. The fear is that potential bidders will end up paying a huge premium at the top of the market.

BZW departure, page 26

BUSINESS TODAY

STOCK MARKET INDICES FTSE 100

NORTH SEA OIL

COLD

Departure A senior BZW executive left the troubled investment bank to take the helm at Eagle Star, the insurer. The departure follows claims that uncertainty over the bank's future. as well as a move from the City of London to Canary Wharf, has prompted some analysts and traders to leave.

Opposition Moves to overcome the opposition of LVMH to the merger of Guinness and GrandMet were in disarray after the UK companies gave short shrift to the latest peace overtures. Page 27

Brussels opposes Boeing merger

By OLIVER AUGUST

billion (about £7.9 billion) merger of Boeing and Mo-Donnell Douglas came to a head last night when EU antitrust experts opposed the creation of the world's largest aerospace company.

The European Commission is now expected to block the merger by threatening the imposition of heavy fines after last-minute negotiations failed to yield sufficient concessions from Boeing. The merger is seen as a threat to Airbus, the European consortium that inchudes British Aerospace.

Governments in Boon, Paris and Washington are supporting their respective aerospace industries and a trade cent of turnover on Boeing, war is looming Jacques and seize new Boeing planes Chirac, the French president, delivered to Europe. The US said: "We strongly support the Commission ... [The merger] could be excremely dangerous conditions on July I.

THE clash over the $13.3 for Europeans." The British Government has taken a back seat in the dispute.

Ginter Rexrodt, the German economics minister, said

any cross-subsidies from Mc-Donnell-Douglas's military business to its own civilian operations but this, and other commitments, were not enough to win EU approval.

Al Gore, the US Vice-President, has given warning that the Clinton administration would take any appropriate action to prevent the Commission torpedoing the merger. The Commission is set to impose fines of up to 10 per

Federal Trade Commission approved the merger without

LEADERS of the Confeder ation of British Industry will today tell Tony Blair, the Prime Minister, that CBI members want Britain to refrain from joining Europe's single currency in the that Boeing had offered to report regularly to the EU on early stages (Philip Bassett

Sir Colin Marshall, the CBI president, and Adair Turner, director-general, will tell Mr Blair that alin favour of a single curren cy, Britain must wait to see if monetary union is effective before taking part. A member of the CBI's governing council said: With sterling appreciating by 23 per cent over the past year, that's a very clear indication that now would not be the right time to enter. The exchange rate position is far too unstable to lock the pound into a single currency

BT pledges to proceed with MCI merger

BRITISH TELECOM yesterday pledged to complete its £12 billion merger with MCI in the face of mounting losses in the American phone compa-ny's local business, but left open the door to renegotiate

BT said that no decision to reduce the price would be taken until it had completed an extensive review, which is to begin immediately, of MCI's multibillion dollar push into the local market in

The difficulties in penetrating this newly deregulated market triggered a surprise profits warning from MCI last week, putting pressure on BT to defend the acquisition and review the purchase price. Sir lain Vallance, the BT chairman who is to become cochairman of the merged company, called Concert, said: We will take time to look thoroughly to make sense of the US market. Only after we've done that would we consider renegotiations."

Alleged attempts by BT to seek the resignations of two MCI senior executives in the wake of the profits warning appear to have failed. Gerald Taylor, MCI's chief executive and a non-executive director of BT, said that Tim Price, president, and Douglas Maine, chief financial officer, had his support and would not be leaving.

Mr Taylor said MCI had "absolutely" every intention of completing the merger on the terms agreed last November. The commitment to go ahead came as shareholders attending BT's annual meeting, its first in Scotland and its last before the creation of Concert, accused BT of mismanagement for its apparent failure to monitor MCI's expansion into the local market.

Jon Meyer, from Loanhead, Scotland, one of 930 shareholders at the meeting, asked Sir Peter Bonfield, BT's chief executive, if he had been "suckered" by MCI. "Should we call for your resignation or vote of confidence in your

Sir Peter denied that he had become sloppy. "We never said this was going to be easy . The US local market is at a different stage of development than previously envisaged."

What makes WOMEYSENSE the most flexible mortgage for directors and the self employed? It positively encourages you to pay off your mortgage as quickly as possible. it allows you to repay and then withdraw funds again, at any time-guaranteel.

It gives easy access to additional funds at macrigage interest rate, simply by writing yourself a Monteysess should fil cialises a greater return on spare funds paid into the account, rather than left on bank or building society deposit.

Topoyides a loan facility of up to 85% of property value, without the used to give any income details.

Working with a major UK bank, Freedman & Co has created a revolutionary new concept in mortgage flexibility. It's called the MONEYSENSE MORTGAGE ACCOUNT™ and it could change the way mortgages are thought of forever! The scheme is available for mortgages and re-mortgages up to 95% of property value, and for any legal capital-raising purpose.

Your home is at risk if you do not keep up repayments on a mortgage or other loan secured on it. Suitable security and adequate life cover may be required by the lender. Full written quotation and

Contact Freedman & Co. QUOTING REF. TD20 Call FREE on 0500 617151 · Fax: 01727 840976

Mortgage flexibility for business people

Boston executive who ran British Bus's account, was found guilty of the same charge, relating to a period between January 1992 and August 1994. The two men will be sentenced on September 5. Mr Williams, 59, of Ringwood, Hamp-

DAWSON WILLIAMS, the former chairman of British Bus, was found guilty vesterday of bribing a bank manager with

Mr Williams, who received £9.4 million

Ian Harvey, the First National Bank of British Bus, was convicted of conspiracy to corrupt, by a unanimous jury verdict at the Old Bailey in London.

a £1 million when the privatised transport in 1994 when he sold part of his holding in company hit financial difficulties.

shire, bribed Mr Harvey. 40, of Little Hadham, Hertfordshire, after Robson Rhodes, British Bus's auditors, requested proof that the company could afford its debts before the 1992-93 accounts were

Bus chief guilty of £1m bribe

BY ADAM JONES

The company, which ran UK-wide bus services, had been unable to raise money by selling town centre bus stations because of the early-1990s property slump. Mr Harvey wrote letters pledging the bank's "open-ended" support without informing his head office. British Bus eventually traded out of its difficulties and the bank made a profit on the shares. For that, Mr Harvey only received £600,000, which was paid after Mr

Williams received the £9.4 million when two venture capitalists bought British Bus in mid-1994. The remainder was left offshore as part of a tax scheme. Mr Harvey spent £400,000 of the money on a house in Little Hadham.

The two men had been charged in July 1996 after an investigation by the Serious Fraud Office (SFO) and the City of London Police. The SPO has applied for £599,999 to be confiscated from Mr Harvey. The pair may also have to pay costs of £86,000. Both are on bail, having had their passports confiscated.

British Bus is now owned by Cowie which said that the court decision would have no effect on its operations.

Commentary, page 29

Euromoney in £84m Disney deal

Euromoney Publications magazine group, has agreed to buy the Institutional Investor titles from The Walt Disney Company for $142 million (£84 million) - its largest ever acquisition.

Institutional Investor, which publishes 24 newsletters as well as its flagship magazine, last year returned profits of £4 million on sales of £44 million a margin of 9 per cent against Euromoney's 24 per cent. Euromoney said it would be looking at means of stripping costs from the magazine company, which employs 500 staff worldwide, but said it was too early to decide whether jobs will be lost. The shares were unchanged at

Software pact

Oxford Molecular, the drug design software company, has entered into a new collaboration with Glaxo Wellcome to improve DIVA, their jointly developed system for analysing chemical and bio-logical data.

BZW executive quits to lead Eagle Star

ONE of the leading executives at Barclays de Zoete Wedd, the troubled investment banking arm of Barclays, reasigned yesterday to take the helm at Eagle Star, the insurer.

The departure of Patrick O'Sullivan, 48, the chief operating officer, follows uncertainty over the bank's future. as well as a move from the City of London to Canary Wharf that has been unpopular with some staff. He is the latest in a flood of departures since Bill Harrison joined last year from Flemings to succeed heart attack.

The market has been awash with rumours about the future of BZW. Among the options tion of the business and a merger with NatWest Markets, the investment banking arm of NatWest Group.

NatWest Markets is also under a cloud, with Derek Wanless, NatWest's chief executive, temporarily in charge after the resignation of NatWest Markets' boss, Martin Owen, after its options losses earlier this year. NatWest said it would reveal

Patrick O'Sullivan is the latest of many to leave BZW its future plans for NatWest Markets on August 5 with its

The move also renewed expectations that BAT Industries, the owner of Eagle Star. is to embark on a significant restructuring of its financial services division, which could involve a £12 billion flotation of the business, which also includes Allied Dunbar, the life assurer. There have been rumours of Norwich Union by BAT. Eagle Star said yesterday that it was leaving its options open. However, Lord Cairns, BAT's chairman, strongly hinted at a demerger at BAT's annual shareholders' meeting continue arms sales

John Rudgard, chief execu-

BY OLIVER AUGUST

BRITISH Aerospace held talks at the Foreign Office

yesterday to lobby the Government against restricting arms

exports to countries with doubtful human rights

Mike Turner, a BAe executive director, met Derek Fatchett, the minister responsible for Asia and the Middle East, to discuss new export licences. Labour has pledged to stop arms exports to regimes known for their unethical conduct. A review of the export policy is expected by the BAe is a major arms supplier to the Indonesian armed forces. Peace protesters have alleged that BAe's Hawk training aircraft have been used to attack the East Timorese population. BAe annual meetings have been distrupted

by protesters for several years.

A BAe spokesman said: "Mike Turner went to the Foreign Office to discuss a number of topics. Export li-measures that Robin Cook.

Foreign Secretary, could implement to restrict arms ex-ports. It is believed he could force BAe to cancel some contracts or prevent it from negotiating contract extensions. Analysts believe that the policy review could pose a serious threat to BAe profits.

Last month IBCA, the ratings agency, raised BAe's long-term rating, cining defence exports as a reason. IBCA said: The defence operations

.. are the all-important cash and profit generators of the group, representing 63 per cent of BAe's all-time high

A Foreign Office spokesman said: "The meeting was neld at British Aerospace's request. It was a two-way conversation

but more BAe-to-minister than order book of £19 billion."

cences was one of them." Civil servants at the Foreign Office have drawn up a list of end of this month.

records.

in May. Mr O'Sullivan joined the Barclays subsidiary in 1994 as head of bank finance. He previously worked for Arthur Andersen, Bank of America, Goldman Sachs and Financial Guaranty Insurance Company, a subsidiary of General

As chief operating officer, he chaired BZW's operating com-mittee. He will join Eagle Star

Sandy Leitch, chief executive of British American Financial Services (BAFS), said yesterday the appointment should not be taken as a sign that a flotation or merger, or both, is definitely planned. Mr O'Sullivan commented:

"Sandy's goals and ambitions for BAFS are very attractive.
I'm more than delighted." He said insurance was experiencing the same trends in areas such as globalisation a merger between Eagle Star and Commercial Union's UK and risk management as retail

Strong product demand lifts Pru

STRONG demand for life and pensions products in the UK helped to boost new business figures from Pru-

ported growth of 23 per cent in single premium life, penmillion in regular premium sales in the first six months

The figures were higher than had been forecast. But separate figures from Legal & General were equivalent premium income rose 24 per cent to £175 million while worldwide new equivalent premium income was E215 million, an increase of 16 per cent on the comparable lb per cent to £182 million.

Sales of the Prudence Bond million. It is now Prudential

the other way around."

BAe seeks unlimited right to

MMC delays report on Freemans sale

SEARS and Littlewoods must wait an extra two months to find out whether the repeatedly delayed sale of Sears' Freemans catalogue business to the Liverpool-based retail-topools group can go ahead. A report from the Monopolies and Mergers Commission was scheduled for delivery to the DTI on Monday. The delay to September 22 means that Sears' long-suffering shareholders are unlikely to receive their 24p per share special dividend until next year. It had been expected in December. The news sent Sears' shares down the color of the above their five-year low of Sto in 1993.

22p to 622p, not far above their five-year low of 58p in 1993. The DTI said that the MMC had requested the extended deadline because of the complexity of the issues raised by the merger. Sears and Littlewoods, which have said they believe that the matter should not have needed a referral, remained confident yesterday that the deal would be allowed.

Wray buys pizza slice

NIGEL WRAY, the entrepreneur behind the Burford property group, is buying a slice of Domino's Pizza, the pizza delivery firm, for up to £2.75 million. Mr Wray, whose interests include Saracens Rugby Club and Nottingham Forest Football Club, is buying up to 20 per cent of Domino's Pizza Group, which holds the UK franchise for the US pizza company. The money will help to expand the company from its current total of 140 stores, paving the way for an eventual stock market flotation.

Allied Textile seeks deal

ALLIED TEXTILE remains on the lookout for acquisitions both at home and abroad but has yet to find exactly what it wants, the company said yesterday. It reported an 8.5 per cent rise in pre-tax profits to £6.95 million for the six months to March 31. The advance was achieved in spite of the rise of sterling affecting sales abroad, which account for 53 per cent of the company's revenues. Earnings per share were 6.6p, up from 6.1p, and the interim dividend has been lifted from 2.6p to 2.75p.

Microgen at 2-year low

SHARES of Microgen Holdings fell to a two-year low as the struggling microfilm producer gave warning that the strong pound and difficult market conditions had wiped out any chances of growth this year. Pre-tax profits were £4.21 million (£4.87 million) at the half-way stage, it said, and would be "significantly" below the expected £9 million by the year end. Analysts wrote down forecasts to £7 million, as the shares fell 31p to 1182p. Earnings were 6.9p (8p) a share for the six months to April 30, but the interim dividend stays at 24p.

First Technology grows

FIRST Technology, the crash-test dummy and fuel valve company, beat City forecasts with pre-tax profits of £9.23 million (£7.27 million) in the year to April 30. Renault and Fiat, the main customers for its emergency fuel cut-off valve, sold thousands of new cars through government schemes, encouraging owners of ten-year-old cars to trade them in. The strength of sterling wiped £300,000 from profits, leaving earnings at 38.1p (30.1p) a share. A 6.6p final dividend, due October 13, makes the total 10.8p (8.5p).

Bulmer to double TOURIST RATES marketing spend

By Dominic Walsh

HP BULMER, the UK's biggest cidermaker, with Strongbow, Woodpecker and White Lightning, is almost doubling its marketing spend to £8 million this year. The move follows a rise of profits and is expected to wipe out any profits growth this Bulmer's £8 million spend is similar to Matthew Clark's investment after its savaging

tive, said the main target would be the 18 to 24 age group, responsible for 70 per cent of cider consumption but has seen a slight decline in the past three years. In the year to almost 10 per cent in full-year April 25. Bulmer profits before tax and exceptionals were up 9.2 per cent, to £30.1 million. on furnover up 20 per cent at

£310.5 million. Bulmer lifted market share to 54.5 per cent, its highest for by the alcopops sector. Their combined spend of more than more than 30 years. A 9.62p final dividend, due September 15, makes 14.52p, up 10 per cent. Earnings per share before Elo million compares to £6 million last year, E4.7 million

By Marianne Curphey, insurance correspondent

Prudential yesterday resion and investment prodgrowth of 20 per cent to £294 of 1997.

slightly below market expec-period last year. In the UK, single premium sales by the Prudential grew 15 per cent to £1.8 billion and regular premiums increased increased 47 per cent to £539 UK's best selling product.

Difficult customer, page 29

One day all businesses will be able to profit from an Intranet.

That day is today.

Intranets (private Internets) are set to revolutionise the way we work. They allow individuals and the teams they work in to be more effective

To date, companies have had to build their own, which has meant high capital investment upfront and the management of many components.

in short, one big, onerous job. Today sees the launch of BT Intranet Complete, a ready-to-go, fully managed Intranet service, tailored to suit your organisation.

BT can do ever, for g for you, from your initial consultancy through to design, set up and maintenance. Leaving you to get on with your business.

This service has been developed to take advantage of BT's networking skills. Microsoft's applications software, and the MCI Systemhouse/Syntegra consulting. Integration and technology deployment skills.

B7 Intranet Complete is attracting a lot of attention. In the UK a number of IT industry leaders are already intending to help customers. make the most of BT intranet Complete, including Reuters, Osco, Digital, Andersen Consulting, Computacenter, SAP, and many others.

For more information call BT today on Freefone 0800 306 305 or visit our website at www.btintranet.com_

Why not change the way we work?

BT Intranet Complete-with Microsoft 1 tools and technologies

by sharing information and knowledge easily.

Arnat for s drink dism

rices.

AMESS ROUNDUP C delays report reemans sale

MANGARIAN RUYS

Training

buys picta slice

Textile seeks deal

gen at 2-year low

echnology grows

O Sir Iain Vallance is pressing ahead with the MCI merger, though he might ask for a price cut. Alternatively investors might requisition an EGM and propose the deal is expressed. the deal is scuppered unless the terms are changed. This might save BT the $150 million penalty that its management allowed that its management allowed MCI to insert into the agreement. Sir Iain needs to deliver a good result from the MCI talks. MCI's "surprise" profits warning raised the question: how much did BT know and when did it know it? If BT was genuinely surprised last week that MCI's losses in penetrating the local phone market will double this year to $800 million, then its senior executives should be taken to task for sloppy management. If it was not surprised, then it should not have been so euphoric about the deal at April's extraordinary meeting, when it sought and obtained approval to proceed with the £12 billion takeover. BT should have been well aware of MCI's difficulties in cracking the local market long before last week. BT has owned 20 per cent of MCI since 1993 and the top executives of both com-panies sit on each other's boards. Since last November, when BT ageed to buy MCI, this relationship has become even closer with the two hatching plans to inte-

BT phone home, say investors

Admittedly Clinton's 1996 Telecommunications Act has been an unmitigated disaster. The Act, promoted as the most wide ranging reform of the phone market since the Depression, was supposed to eliminate remaining trade barriers, allowing local, long distance and cable companies to compete in each other's markets. On paper, it was a great achievement; in practice, nothing changed. Local monopolies are alive and well and will do anything legal to keep it that way. But the Act's shortcomings were suspected last year and apparent before April (not least to this column). BT either chose to ignore the warning signs or did not understand their significance. The most charitable reading possible is that BT took its eye off the ball.

BT says it has now passed the point of no return. It has no choice but to go ahead with the takeover, which limits its room for manoeuvre when renegotiat-ing the price. Shareholders, who baled out in droves last week on the profits warning, have every right to be wary. How many more surprises are in store? Has BT, as one shareholder asked yesterday, been "suckered" by its friends at MCI?

COMMENTARY by our City Editor

BT's efforts to restore confidence did not succeed yesterday. It will now have to go out of its way to keep investors informed about the merger every step of the way. One more shock announcement could kill the deal.

An index in a world of its own

n case you have not been paying attention — here are the deals that are supposed to be happening in the financial services sector. The Pru is buying NatWest or maybe Abbey National, the Halifax or the Woolwich. HSBC is buying NatWest, Abbey National, Royal Bank of Scotland or the Halifax, Barclays is buying NatWest, and is also demerging BZW or else buying NatWest Markets and then demerging BZW. Halifax is buying Royal Bank of Scotland or Norwich Union, which in turn is about to be bought by BAT. Or else the Bank of Scotland is buying NatWest. For its part NatWest thought everything was too expensive last year, when it was still able to buy and the sector was 20 per cent change.

sector was 20 per cent cheaper.
As the FTSE 100 index powered towards 5,000 yesterday, the financial services sector led the way. The retail banks were up an average of 26 per cent - twice the rise of the FTSE, which the banks now dominate. This is not surprising. Real industry is suffering because of the strong pound. The retailers are enjoying the short term benefits of the building society windfalls. But the banks are being buoyed by technical factors and bid premiums. If the market is right and there is about to be a massive shake-up in the retail financial services industry, this will create wide-spread job losses and add to the country's economic woes. And will it do much for the efficient provision of financial services? Is there a great volume of Abbey Life products actually sold through the Lloyds TSB net-work? And Lloyds is supposed to be the most efficient operator in

A high pound and potentially higher interest rates should not make for an ever higher stock market. And what about the £70 billion cost to UK companies of the change to the taxation of dividend credits for pension funds. The market seems to have shrugged that off. Apparently all the fund managers, who actually manage the money behind the market, think it is too high, yet the FTSE keeps on rising. The stock market appears to be living in a world of its own, powered by bid rumours and unrealistic expectations. Surely there is a correction coming. But when?

Time for glasnost at the Old Lady

Iwo months and two interest rate rises have passed since the Bank of England gained operational in-dependence. But it was only yesterday, with the publication of the June 6 monetary policy committee minutes, that the out-side world could see the new system in action. Gone are the sharp differences that marked the "Ken and Eddie" show in favour of a bland discussion of the state of the economy, with the committee speaking at all times in a single voice.

There is something slightly unreal about these minutes. They indicate about as much dissent as the average Politburo meeting, despite the Bank admit-

£123 million from the company's stock market value. This was in spite of a 35 per cent

rise in interim pre-tax profits to £45.6 million, on sales 23

per cent ahead at £159 million.

15 per cent to 1.9p, as a foreign income dividend.

The company will pay its

Tempus. page 28

ting a serious "policy dilemma" because of the high level of the pound. It is hard to believe that Eddie George and Professor Willem Buiter, who expressed concern about the balance of the economy just before joining the committee, are united over this problem. But judging from these minutes, the Bank seems to want to stick to its policy of shutting its eyes and hoping the problem will go away. It hasn't Sterling has risen a further 8 per cent against the mark since this meeting. Two fundamental causes of the appreciation -EMU turmoil and the large interest rate differential between the UK and other major economies — also suggest the pound is set to stay strong well into next year. Time for glasnost on Threadneedle Street.

Oh no Arnault

NO ONE seriously believes that Burger King and Guinness brewing will be part of GMG Brands in a decade's time. So Bernard Arnault's plan to throw the drinks part of his LVMH into melting pot makes sense. What is currently holding up the resolu-tion of this issue is the price that M Arnault wants for including Moét Hennessy in the equation and the determination of George Bull and Tony Greener to present it as their deal.

Forbes in £84m cash bid for UK insurer grate their operations.

By Jon Ashworth

THE Forbes Group, South Africa's biggest insurance group, is making an agreed £84 million offer for Nelson Hurst, the international insurance broker based in London. The deal provides Forbes with a springboard for overseas expansion. Nelson Hurst has an extensive network in Asia and Latin America. The cash offer vales each Nelson Hurst at 18Sp, a premium of 43 per cent to the closing middle market price of 1291ap on Tuesday. The companies already have a close trading relationship and share seats on each other's boards.

naging director of Forbes, said that the link provided an entree to the emerging markets in Latin America and Asia where the rise of an affluent giddle class has sparked growing demand for enments and other fiassurance products.

Forbes owns 9.94 per cent of Nelson Hurst shares, and has irrevoca-ble undertakings over a further 11.17 per cent of the shares. If the bid succeeds, Nelson Hurst does not intend to pay an interim dividend in the six months to end-June. David Woodward and John Percy Davis will continue in their current roles as chairman and chief executive of Nelson Hurst for at least the next three years.

Arnault plan for single drinks giant dismissed

By DOMINIC WALSH

MOVES to overcome the opposition of Bernard Arnault, chairman of LVMH. to the proposed £24 billion merger of Guinness and Grand Metropolitan were in disarray last night after the UK companies gave short shrift to his latest overtures.

LVMH, which is the largest shareholder in both British companies, yesterday issued a formal proposal that its own Moet Hennessy drinks busi-ness the combined with those of GrandMet and Guinness to create a single drinks giant to be listed in London and Paris. However, George Bull, chairman of GrandMet, and Tony Greener, his Guinness counterpart, dismissed the plan as "a complicated and costly break-up of GrandMet and Gunness in order toleverage LVMH into a dominant position in what would already be the world's leading spirits and wine company".

While agreeing to a full analysis of the scheme, they dismissed it as giving M Arnault "back-door control without paying a premium". They added: "It is hard to see how this would be in the of our other shareholders."

M Arnault's proposal envisages the creation of three further separately quoted companies to hold Guinness and GrandMet's other businesses: Pillsbury food, Burger King and Guinness Brewing. Under the suggested demerger, LVMH would exchange its 66 per cent shareholding in Moet Hennessy, together with its 14.2 per cent stake in Guinness and 6.4 per cent of GrandMet, for a holding of about 35 per cent in the new quoted drinks company. In addition, shareholders would receive the same 60p a share payout merger of Guinness and GrandMet into GMG Brands. However, no reference was made to the alternative option discussed on Tuesday that Moet Hennessy could be split up, with LVMH retaining Moet champagne and GMG acquiring Hennessy.

Analysts admitted there was some merit in having demerged companies with a sharper focus, but questioned the price that Mr Arnault was demanding. A spokesman for GMG said the details would be examined carefully over the next few days and a formal response drawn up, probably next week. He admitted it was difficult to see a resolution, but added: "Things haven't broken down completely."

A source close to M Arnault described the GMG response

Commentary, this page

Peter Williams, left, chief executive of David S Smith, and David Buttfield saw pre-tax profits fall to £96 million

SHARES in Medeva, the pharmaceuticals company, fell heavily yesterday as it revealed a collapse in sales of Ionamin, the slimming drug previously promoted as one of its most promising new proddropped to £7 million, a third of the level achieved in the

First-half sales of Ionamin

Heavy fall in Medeva shares

Medeva blamed £3 million of the fall on distributors running down excess stocks.

However, Ionamin sales have Medeva accepts that "a re-

The shares fell 3412p to a low this year of 222p, cutting also been hit by health fears.

term seems unlikely".

Paper group warns of painful cuts

By Fraser Nelson

DAVID'S SMITH, the paper, packaging and office supplies suffer a "painful" process of cost reduction if the pound remains at its current highs.

The company, which generates a third of its business from overseas, said it is relying on a recovery in the French and German economies to return to growth next year. Pre-tax profits fell 23 per cent to £96 million in the year to May 3, on sales that eased 4.5 per cent to £1.18 billion. David Buttfield, finance director, said exchange rates had effectively made the company's paper 25 per cent more expensive in key overseas

"All it would take is a 3 per cent recovery in the European markets for the sentiment to change," he said.

Earnings fell to 23.1p (30.3p) a share, after an increased dividend of 8p. A final 7.5p is due on October I. as "not very constructive".

Tempus, page 28

syndicate seeks £167m By Carl Mortished BRITISH-BORNEO Petroleum Syndicate is raising £167 million from its shareholders to help to fund a £500 million exploration and development? programme in the Gulf of Mexico to extend over the next three to four years.

Petroleum

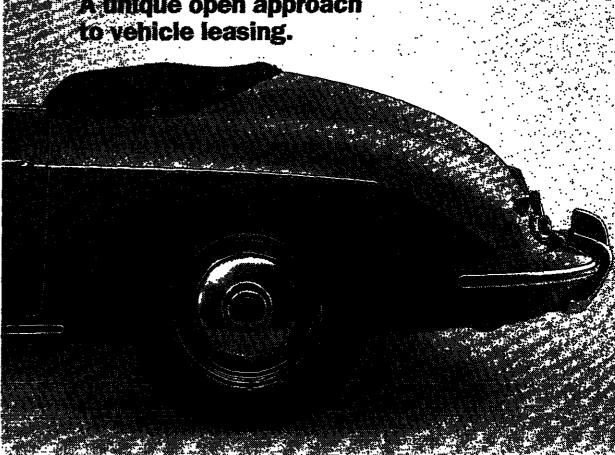

The 2-for-9 rights issuepriced at EI2 per share comes after a £54 million cash call early last year.

British-Borneo yesterday announced an asset swap with. Conoco. The UK company is: acquiring a half share in three Gulf of Mexico blocks that contain the King Kong gasfield in exchange for exploration acreage and some cash. The total value of the exploration acreage and cash is less than 5 per cent of British-Borneo's net assets, worth between £7 million and £8 million.

British-Borneo shares fell 50p £13.62 and ic dividend for the year of 8.25p.

Tempus, page 28

Lease Plan. A unique open approach to vehicle leasing.

0171-782 7344

LEGAL & PUBLIC NOTICES TRUSTEE ACTS LEGAL NOTICES

LEGAL PUBLIC COMPANY & PARLIAMENTARY NOTICES PLEASE THE REPROPER

Lease Plan provides a unique vehicle leasing and fleet management service.

Like many of our competitors we only charge precisely what we quote. But unlike other vehicle leasing companies, we refund any savings we make.

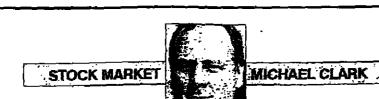

We believe it's only fair that if the basis of the original calculations change, such as maintenance, depreciation, or residual value, we either absorb any loss, or we refund customers any surplus.

Last year alone, our customers benefited by more than £4 million. And you'll know precisely what your fleet costs are because all our calculations are visible. and open to inspection.

To find out more, about how Lease Plan can help you. find your way around the vehicle leasing jungle, simply telephone or complete the information request below.

0345 65 60 65

_	t: Livine Plan, Thomas Side, Windser, Berk: Pase Plan's unique vehicle leasing and first ma
	Other names	_
	Company Name	Least	Plan IT
		A fair deal li

London lifted to rec as Dow sails past 8,

LONDON yesterday came within a whisker of breaching the 5,000 level for the first time and closed at a high for the third consecutive day.

The record followed another opening surge on Wall Street, which carried the Dow Jones industrial average above the 8,000 level for the first time. The FTSE 100 index responded quickly, surging almost 100 points to touch an all-time high of 4,941.8. It ended 64.9 ahead. at a closing high of 4.964.2. By contrast, the FTSE 350 ended just 28.8 up at 2,373.7. Other European markets were also dragged higher by Wall Street. Most of the gains among leading shares were led by the futures market, with the September series of the FTSE 100 trading at a sizeable premium to the cash market, closing at 5.018. Turnover in the cash market was low relative to the rise in the index, with a billion shares traded. Dealers say this indicates that the bull market has yet to lilter through to the second and third liners.

The weight of institutional money building up outside the market has made market-makers cautious. They have been caught out too many times to try to call prices lower. Merrill Lynch, the US securities house. which attempted to call the top of the market on Monday has seen the index soar a further 164.7 (3.4 per cent) since then. Its monthly Gallup poll of fund managers indicated that funds were now switching out of equities and into gilts, but there seems to be few signs of blue chips losing their momentum.

Yesterday's gains were un-derpinned by the surprise drop in average earnings and the reduction in the dole queue to its lowest level for seven years. Stock shortages among the leaders resulted in double digit gains. ICI continued to reflect on this week's disposal of its bulk chemical business with a rise of 22p at 910p. There were also gains for BOC Group 32p in £10.9412. GKN 20p to £10.2612. Zeneca 67p to £22.65. Railtrack 22½ p to 753½ p. and Next 27p to 773p

The market was underninned by another searing performance from the banks. where stock shortages are becoming acute before the interim dividend reporting season. Leading the way again was HSBC, up 65p at £21.51. after strong markets overnight in the Far East and talk of a possible share split. Takeover favourite Abbey National put on 23p at 879½p. Barclays rose 30p at £12.82½, Lloyds TSB 19p at 7162p, NatWest 21p at 874p, and Standard Chartered 38p at £10.384. Among the newcomers. Woolwich firmed 12p to 3002p. and Halifax 32p to 760p.

Woodward, left, and Heinamann boosted Nelson Hurst

Jun Jul Aug Sep Oct Nov Dec Jan Feb Mar Apr May Jun

The water companies were also in demand, with Thames up 22/2p at 794p. South West 22 p at 821 p, and United 19p at 774p.

THE tobacco companies were left behind in yesterday's rush to reach the 5,000 level. In fact, they have consistently underperformed the market with little prospect of a recovery in the medium term. BAT

Industries finished 40 sh

at 549 p, with Imperial Tobacco just 5p better at 3682p, while Gallaher was live up to expectations since coming to market last

It seems eigarette smoking is to be discouraged

by the Labour Govern-

COMMODITIES

The latter has failed to unmoved at 261 2p.

month at 290p.

PowerGen rose 185 p to 797p and Scottish Power 20p to 467p as market-makers attempted to unwind positions built up after the abolition of tax credit on Advance Corporation Tax in the Budget.

The City was unconvinced by re-assurances from BT to shareholders that it may be possible to re-negotiate the terms of the proposed E21 billion merger with MCI. It

CITY INVESTORS FIND LIFE A DRAG 3800

ment, as witnessed by the move to raise the minimum age limit ABN Amro

Hoare Govett, the broker, says this sort of view has dampened sentiment and overshadowed the benefits for the likes of Imps and earners have been enjoying support as investors try to avoid the impact of a strong among the overseas earners. Hoare remains a buyer of Imperial but is less

Gallaher, where there is the possibility of further

GNI LONDON GRAIN FUTURES

enthusiastic

LIFFE WITEAT (close E/O)

llahers. Other domesti gains on the equity market. In the futures pit, the Sep-tember series of the Long Gilt cent 2000 was E3/32 better at □ NEW YORK: The Dow industrialaverage made a mighty stride past the record 8,000 level in early trading, while technology stocks roared to fresh highs. At midday, the Dow was up 42 points at 8.019.

	Hang Seng 15446.02
ecord	Arnsterdam: EOE Index
8,000	Sydney: 2646.4 Frankfurt DAX 4201.24 Singapore:
follows last week's profits	Singapore: 1917.89 Brussels:
warning from the American telecom company, which	General
maintains that BT was aware	Paris: 2988.01 of the situation. BT closed 7p lower at 445½ p. There was a lukewarm re-	Zurich: SRA Gen tzor.so sponse to results from Medeva, down 34½ p at 222p, after reporting that sales of two of its drugs, lonamin and Methylphenidate, were disappointing. Societé Genérale Strauss Turnbull and Credit Lyonais Laing are reckoned to have both cut their forecast for	Londor: FT 30 3128. FTSE 100 4064. FTSE 250 4487. FTSE 250 2773. FTSE Eurotrack 100 7716.04 FTSE All-Share 310.03 FTSE Non Financials 2123.05 FTSE Flaed Interest 1244 FTSE Govt Secs 96.88 Bargains
have bout cut utell to lecast for	Aut Enter

A warning about significan first-half losses left Plasmon nursing a 86½ p loss, to 92½ p. The strong pound is causing all sorts of problems for Microgen Holdings, where the price dropped 3lp to 1182 p. The computer RPD; (56.7 Jun (2.7%) Jan (987=100 outsourcing group says this, combined with rationalisation costs, would leave full-year pre-tax profits well below xpectations. Johnson Matthey stood out.

with a jump of 222p to 556p after some bullish comments to shareholders at the annual meeting about current trading. Dresdner Kleinwort Benson, the broker, remains bullish of the stock.

News of a bid approach hoisted Nelson Hurst, where David Woodward is chairman, 50p to 17912 p. Forbes, the South African risk management group of which Paul Heinamann is chief executive. is making an agreed bid of 185p a share, valuing the insurance broker at E84 million.

GILT EDGED: Prices rallied on the back of the better than expected average earnings numbers with prices climbing by almost £4 among longer dated issues. Indexlinked issues also had a better day reflecting those heady rose E5/s to E1147/16 as a total of 67,000 contracts were com-2015 pur on £7/16 at £109's. while in shorts Treasury 8 per

•	MAJOR INDICES
	New York (midday): Dow Jones
	Tokyo: Nikke: Average 20358.74 (+289.33)
1	Hong Kong: Hang Seng
ecord	Arnsterdam: EOE Index
	Sydney: 2646,40 (+8.80)
8.000	Frankfurt 4201.24 (+80.11)
0,000	Singapore:
follows last week's profits warning from the American	Brussels: [419290 (+148.74]
telecom company, which maintains that BT was aware	Paris: CAC-40 2968.01 (+37.31) of the situation. BT closed 7p lower at 445½p. There was a lukewarm re-	Zurich: SRA Gen
sponse to results from	London:
Medeva, down 34½ p at 222p.	FT 30 3128.1 (+29.8)
after reporting that sales of	FTSE 100
two of its drugs, lonamin and	FTSE 350 2373.7 (+28.8)
Methylphenidate, were disap-	FTSE Eurotrack (00 27(6.04 (+31.01)
pointing. Société Générale	FTSE All-Share 2316.03 (+26.22)
Strauss Turnbull and Credit	FTSE Non Financials _ 2323.05 (+20.02) FTSE Fixed Interest
Lyonais Laing are reckoned to	FTSE Govt Secs
have both cut their forecast for	Bargains
the full year by £10 million to	SEAQ Volume
around £50 million.	USS 1.6758 (+0.0015) Cerman Mark
A warning about significant	Exchange (ndex 105.2 (+0.1)
first-half losses left Plasmon	Bank of England official close (4pm)
nursing a 86½ p loss, to 92½ p.	£ECU 1.5199
The strong pound is causing	E:SDR 1.2219 RPT 157.5 Jun (2.9%) Jan 1987=100
all costs of problems for	RPIX (56.7 Jun 12.7%) Jan 1967=100

RECENT ISSUES

1501:
1355	+ 5
110	- 2
2 67':
25
19712	- 4
3 .
ts l
1475	+ 3
130%	٠
109
2081 ₂
(091)
156
300'z	+ 1
	135½ 110 267½ 25; 197½ 3 ts 1 147½ 130½ 109 208½ 109½

RIGHTS ISSUES

Dragon Oll n/p (2) HIT Enter n/p (270) 70 MWB Group n/p (175)

MAJOR CHANGES

. 350p (+45p)

	p (· ·-)
Helphire Gp	, 192'ap (+ 15)
MFI	145'20 (+9'
Croda
Liberty Infl
Smith Will Druck
Austin Reed
REXAM
Regent Inns
Albed Instr
7	5110/±181
Hamleys
Next Innovative Tech
Bodycote
Lloyds TSB
Abbey National
Sheli	. 435p (+11g
Lex Service	392':0 (+10:
ICI	910o (+22t
McKechme FALLS:
Microgen	118'-07.31r
Medeva
HEUCHA	ر، حدر باعت

Closing Prices Page 31

A personal problem

tors will be unenthused by the bladder cancer drug it is licensing from a US company for $8 million. The initial market in the US is at Such products can be profitable, but the City is happier buying shares in the pharmaceutical majors with their

$1 billion sellers or in one-product biotech firms. In most 3,000 patients a year.

INSURANCE barons used to drool with excitement about the opportunities that would follow a state withdrawal from pension provision. It was enough to help them forget the awful mess caused by their sharp sales staff in the 1980s. As the prospect looms larger the premium rating of quoted life insurers grows but investors should treat a personal pensions boom with scepticism.

Insurers are ill-equipped to deal with a mass market product. They stand to gain little profit and at worst could end up fighting a price war, selling low-margin products. New business figures released yesterday from insurers tell the true story about personal pensions. Premium revenues grew sharply in the last two quarters - boosted by consumer confidence — but personal pensions still account for a tiny proportion of the life and pensions market. The Pru's new husiness from personal pensions was about £130 million out of some £2 billion of new life and pensions business in the UK.

The question is whether life insurers stand to gain from a mass-market pension product that would necessarily be aimed at the less well-off. Those insurers, such as Britannic, which sell financial products to low income groups have suffered from the extra cost of training staff to sell essentially lower-margin products. Simplified pension products — such as funds linked to index trackers — might lead to lower costs but, here again, companies like the Pru will lose out. Selling the alleged skills of their fund managers is how insurers justify their high fees. Take that away and you are left with sales and marketing, a business that insurers have never understood.

spite of the worries, yester-day's share price fall looks overdone. Even after the Ionamin setback, Medeva

should still make £110 million this year, and it could soon have good news on Hepagene, its hepatitis B drug. Medeva looks cheap compared with Zeneca and Glaxo Wellcome, but the risks are all the greater.

Medeva

IT IS hard to share Bill Bogie's relentless optimism about Medeva when the company's most exciting product has turned into a nohoper. Ionamin, acquired only last year and scarcely a blockbuster among slim-ming drugs, has been dealt a body blow the so-called fenphen treatment seems to rot heart valves, according to the

That leaves Medeva once again pondering the ques-tion as to which drug is to replace methylphenidate? Medeva will soon begin to lose sales of the drug which treats hyperactivity in children -- to new rivals.

A quota system should ensure an orderly market and limit price, but Medeva's most profitable product is about to go exgrowth. Meanwhile, invesNEEDS FATTENING UP

Jul Aug Sep Oct Nov Dec Jan Feb Mar Apr May Jun Jul

British-Borneo

AN IMPRESSIVE name but King Kong is a remarkably small deal; the gasfield is being acquired for about £7 million and will do little to boost British-Borneo's net asset value. That begs the question why the oil explorer is raising £167 million and most of the answer relates to Issuing stock at £12 when the asset value, including exploration potential, is more like £8 is a no-risk financing option for the company and British Borneo has big ambitions to continue to grow its Gulf of Mexico portfolio. The negoriating deals in this hot province: it owns the rights to some deep water production technology with term contracts over two drilling rigs, a facility in short supply. It also has some 70 exploration leases in the Gulf of Mexico and relationships with Shell and BP, two major is pure opportunism; the company is in a hurry and wants to acquire more acreage in order to increase its

DOLLAR RATES

British Borneo's cash call chances of success in a high risk exploration play. A suc-cession of unsuccessful wells have increased pressure on the company to justify the huge goodwill premiumbuilt into the share price. Over the next few months British Borneo will be drilling its first exploration well at the Kilmarnock prospect in the Gulf. A failure there will pound the share price. No

ing for cash in advance. David S Smith

TO David S Smith, the world could not look much worse. Faced with a soaring pound, overcapacity in its core UK market and rock-bottom paper prices, the packaging and paper group is drifting in the doldrums.

wonder the company is ask-

Smith's share price reflects these misfortunes. From 325p

last year, the shares are now wallowing at 185p and a forward earnings multiple of 12: far adrift from rival Jefferson Smurfit on 17 times and US competitors at 19 times.

Why has the brunt of the City's displeasure been taken out on Smith? The manage-ment cannot take all the blame; they have used the discipline of a stronger pound'to create a much leaner paper machine with margins sharply ahead over the last three years.
While hopes of a recovery are still the object of scorn in London, more optimism is found among US investors where there is already talk of paper prices. Operationally Smith is a sound business with a strong balances sheet and there is no reason why it should not benefit when recovery arrives. On their current valuation, and at a threeyer low, the shares are looking cheap.

EDITED BY CARL MORTISHED

ROBUSTA COFFEE (S) 1994-1997 Mar . 1999-1925 Volume, 9232 WHITE SUGAR (FOB) MEAT & LIVESTOCK COMMISSION

PRODUCTS 6/MI) Bgd 192 (+3) 165 (+2) 53 (+2) 176 (+2) RUBBER (No 1 RSS Cii p/h) ANS Anna 61 75-02-25 THE FUTURES (GNI LM) GASOIL 163 50+17.75 No. 165 50+07.75 Dec. 167 75+69.70 LIFFE BIFFEX (GNI Lid $10/pr BRENT (6.00pm) (8.77-19-41 No. 19.49-19-50 Dec 15 69 SLR Vol. 7:405 index fier in .: LONDON METAL EXCHANGE Comper Gde A ($100mme)
Lead ($70mme)
Zing * per Hi Gde ($100mme)
Thi ($100mme) um Hi Gue i$::0ane

	LIFFE OPTIONS
Calls Pats Series Jul Oct Jan Jul Oct Jan	Calls Pars Series Jul Oct Jan Jul Oct Jan	Calle Pota Series Jul Oct Jan Jul Oct Jan
(12 75 m) 435 (m) 457 (57 (6 7 13 146) (1 47 14 14 14 14 14 14 14 14 14 14 14 14 14	233 att, 2, 29 42 _2, 21 255	Abba Nat 898 28, 72, 97 0 7 98 10 77 98 10 77 78 74 74 74 74 74 74
450a _ 140 4 9 170 U 5 7	Thamber 150 45 To 11 V in 251	PECON 900 0 17, 71 201 62, 741. Amigrad 160
55.44 July 16 10 2 36 15; 15 pt.	Thames # 150 47 To 51 Y in 251	140 m
Supple 1 14 44 15 0 25 25 25 15 15 15 15 15 15 15 15 15 15 15 15 15	11440 844 6 4 6 11 11 41	Barriays [250 345 48 142 1 545 29
Perto (1) 10 24 40 30 40 50 50 20 20 20 20 30 30 30 30 30 30 30 30 30 30 30 30 30	Series the Nov Feb the Nov Feb	(*1254) (300 0 73 177, 14 80 12). (*12) Part., 500 46' 62 70 7 7 1/
many and the second are to be seen	37,00 - 10 - 10 - 10	(1546) 550 0 105 /0 1 24 3
50 1. 1. 1900年41年4月月月	BTR - 199 21 24 32 2 2 2 30
1967	THOSE DO 0 14. 2" 7" 10. 10"	Series Jul Oct las Jul (At las province in the first of the fi	$ Bridge 1, 100 M 100 (5) 19 30, 51 1 1 1545 15 15 15 15 15 15 15 15 15 15 15 15 15	Glam Well 1250 54 97 139 0 41 57
2.5 % _ 750 45 65 76, 0 11 20	Br Telam 48' 11 29 47 1, 15 23	्रासम्बर्धः । सम्बर्धः । १००० । १००० । १००० । १००
Fig. 190 A 30 SP 5 30 NO.	(MAR) 460 (1 22 Sec. 32 No. 4)	1800 200165.217 26 0 42 74 P2156 200 36 155 216 0 77 112.
。 150 第 650 650 6 多 40 - 1005	Castrury . 750 41. 14 71: 2 11: 14	Proper seems 550 are not with U W in 1965 - 13, 10, 20, 60, 14, 55, 60, 16, 16, 16, 16, 16, 16, 16, 16, 16, 16	Colorese with the second 20 december 20 de	1600a an 0 தி.ஜி நடு ந
mater. um () 53 (5 ii 42 50	1 (Suppress on the principle of the control of the	Pot al & Sup 450 11 35 43 U 19 254
127 3565 _ 750 4 44 40 0 25 32	GEL	P$71) $00 U 17 24 29 40 47.
च्या । अस्ति । अस्ति । अस्ति	(1921 76) 2 (8 29 T. W.	Series Ang Non Feb ang Nov Feb
March 1990 on 54 no 6 125 for the control of 125 for the control of 125 37 12 24 34 34 34 34 34 34 34 34 34 34 34 34 34	l Hanson 200 15 26 33 5 12, 16
more and the property of the per- manental and the period of the per-	1 (25)	Procedure 1, 420 to 27 (27), 9 179 22 174200 1 200 2 175 225, 241 41 45
THE WAY OF SHIELD THE SAFE SAFE SAFE	1 (273) 240 7 17 20 17 17 20
Minia p. 301 7 21 29 0 14 217	Lucastanto 14, 14 30 20 21, m 7	Meries Aug Nov Feb Aug Non Feb
177 A 120 P 10 11 20 M 30 M	[c1915 20 4 9 15 H 15 17]	Kanedistan, 710 Sec. 74 - 42, 15 17 415.
waing bary (42) (1) (1) (4) (1) (4) (1) (4) (1) (4) (1) (4) (4) (4) (4) (4) (4) (4) (4) (4) (4	* Publication (Carlotte = 10 4 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1	(F11) 750 20; 45 52 [9] 32 b)
(A)		Series Jun Jun
24 At 0 15 24 15 29 Mg	19812 1981 19 47 47 42 50 ml	R: Gro 281 =
SHAPPE HAVE BY THE BUTTON TO	deligated with to 250 to 14 17	:un:ul
计2007 - 提起了一般的数据,可多数一种。	1999 1994 12 21 29 21 24	Series Sep DecMar Sep DecMar
55, retue. 50	Reserve 230 11 for 201 for 14 14	Dignor
apper year to the termination	PERP) 240 4 10 14 17 22 25 Texas, 422 25 32 45 2 15 17	2565) 400 215 W 47 36, 445 441
Straight A	1 191 201 1 140 21 14 24 27 37 47	FM1 (ample 30, 80%) 140 (25 4) 5.
Zerora 220 of 140 217 0 48, 44.	William . 137	There is no 12, 12 th 2, 45 th 24.
92201 200 2 18 199 36 113 189	отпор. 180 — — — — — 1	i Tarma 110 125 15 18 0 4 5. Citien
peries Jul Oct Jag Jul (let Jan	i	Hillsdan . 160 to 15
\$17 3rd . 500 4rt ng 18rt 0 16 22rt	FTNE INDEX PART	$F(G^{n}) = 180 \text{ M} = -1.0 \text{ M} = -1.0 \text{ M}$
crease that it was to be seen as	4411 4/45 2/(P 4/40 5010 505)	Landon 131 to 14 to 15
Sections a 2010 to 30 Feb. 0 7 H. reconstruction of the property of the pro-	i (alie test test test test Vi Ze Vi	Coul no
Series Aug New Feb Aug New Feb	121 120 140 162 20 26 V	Thorn CMI (500
Grand Med., 4401 (50), 449, 50 12 22 23	Sep. 27: 24: 190 (m. 130 1)4	tund) 1400
9000 - 國際實際的學術	DC 25 300 ZZ 198 199 141	Translate - Section, 2011 24 14 16 16
Ladge	Dec 379 3029 - 279 -	172 0; but 7; 11 14; 21 22; 27; 27; Unido 156 700 40 75; 50 30 40; 54
the fact of the first terms of t	Puts	1716 30 TO S S S TO 79
1216 220 3, 4 13 13 20 21	i Jul 1 2 5 12 13 14 Same 20 41 55 74 14 124 1	Scot Par 420 51 55 nl 4, 4, 17-
to the tour Top Horse Call office	Sep 5- 44 45 104 12. 152	PHO 30 TO 30 16, 24, 25
Pat. 4've. FTSE Call: 22-4; Pat 9.74	(100) 65° 76 65° 114 (10) 166°	Understa 1700 Her 154 (164 (17) 317 44 1917/07 1800 120 120 137 (3) 60 (32)
Underlying security pure.	î pêc jan = 135; - 174 -	the state of the state of the state of
	ě	•

LONDON	INANC	IAL	יינער	RES	·
	Period	Open	High	Low	Sett	Vol
Long Gilt Produs open interes 17940	Sep 97 ~ Dot 97	114-06	11419	113-31	114-14 114-02	67007 U
German Govt Bond (Bund)	Sep or . Det or .	102.44 101.45	5450) PE (D)	Ing_43 IOI 48	(U2.43 (GI 53	164011
Italian Govt Bond (BTP)	Sep 47	[15 67 [07] 67	135.92 107.90	135 38 107.67	135.61 107.73	46 i 33 222
Japanese Govt Bond (JGB)	Sep of	(24.93 (24.38	125 US 124 38	124 88 124 30	124.94 124.332	2137 35
Three Mth Sterling	Sep वः . Det भरे	42.53 42.56	472.45 97.56	92.92 92.94	92.84 92.64	[(X)59 [490]
Presime open interest 90421 Three Mth Euromark	Mar Va Sep 97	192.51 Dec 77	₩ 2 57 0 ₈ , 70	ዊ2.49 ዓሊጉታ	0 2 65 06.75	17190 21445
Previous open interest 1514/64	Det 17.	nu 0'3	45.55	47.72	90,64	28073
Three Mth Euroliza	Dec or Sep of	9) (6 9),71	ei S. Ab An	4770 4770	4375 4375	12734
Three Mth Euroyen	Dec 47				cxign ng lô	0
Three Mth Euroswiss	Free ng Sep og	Q4.55 13.40	44.25	98.4 5 44.71	49.47 49.33	13121 8754
Three Mth ECU Presidus open interes 2001	Sep III . Dec III .	95.7) 95.7)	95.75 95.77	45 77 15 84	196.77 196.77	737 747
FTSE 100 Provious open virustes 19-21	Sep 47 Dec 47	ዓላር ው ተጫር ሳ	5058# 5120#	$945.0 $157.0	SOUTH	2597. 156
	lette et a			- :		-:
MUR	EY RA	152	(%)
Base Rates, Clearing Banks of Discount Market Loans: O'night Treasury Bills (DishBu), 2 mili o		I	.ow 54. !∙ 2 mub :		Week fix
I mih Prime Bank Bills (Dis): 197-407	2 m 0 ;		enth Tue's	6 mg	h ∵7	12 mi h
Sterling Money Rates: 6'-6"	. 67-6		ع رب ت.,د	7°c	-Te :	70 - 711;
Interbank. 6-6% from the Tests The The Chemical Open of close 6%.
Local Authority Depe 6		;/≧ 5	b'i b*u-b'i	~	7°- 7°•	ም. ንግታ-ጉኤ
Dollar CDs: 55		/2	5.59		5.70	5.92
Building Society CDc	· ••••	"	t'w6,	7'1	รัช	r-r-
EUROPEAN	MONE	DE	POSI	rs (%	6)
Currency 7 day	l enth	. 3	est.	6 m	da.	Call
Dollar: 5'-5's Deutschemark: 3'-2'.			51-51	5° 0		5'~4'.
French Franc Park			962° 5-34	3°-3		5 rZ:
Swith Franc 1-1.	1 -1		15-15-	17	-1'-	Pri
Year 1/2 1/2 1/2 1/2 1/2 1/2 1/2
GOLD/PRECIOUS METALS (Baird & Co)
Bullion: Open 5518 95318 22
Krugermack $3197(922) (Y-2184)	DEFIATION
Platinum: $407.52 (240.2) Silver: $4.52 (2.575) Palladium: $475.25 (1.04.60)
STERLING SPOT AND FORWARD RATES
STERLING SPO	T AND	FOR	WAR	O RA	TES
Mix Rates for July 15 Rat	nge	C	952) mont	 	menth
Mid Rates for July 15 Ray Amsterdam	nge 120, 3, 255 n	C)	956 92h) mont	h 3	3'-3'-pr
Mid Rates for July 15 Rat Amsterdam	nge 120, 3, 255 n	C	95e 93h 255 444) mont	ь 3 т :

		Period	Open	High	Lo₩	Sett	Voi	AUSI
Long Gilt Product open interes: 173	unit:	Sep 97 ~ Dot 97	114-09	11419	113-31	114-14 114-02	62007 D	Belgi
German Govt Bond	(Bund)	Sep 97 .	102.44 101.45	[02.62 PC [0]	Ing_43 IOI 48	102.43 101.53	164011	Detur Fran
Italian Govt Bond (B	TP)	Sep 47	[15 67 [07 67	135.92 107.90	135 38 107.67	135.61 107.73	46133 222	Hons Irela
Japanese Govt Bond		Sept of . Dec or .	(24.93 (24.38	124.58	124 98 124.30	124.3%	2137	Japa:
Three Mth Sterling		Sep का . Dec मह	42.53	42.45 97.56	92,92 92,94	9234 9264	[(1)59 [490]	Mala Neth Norw
Previous open (alteres) 36%	421	Mar VI	12.51	14 2 57	U2 40	02.55		Port
Three Mth Euroman Prestous open artered (S)		Sep 97 . Det 47 .	90.77 40.63	10,70 45,65	90,76 43,52	90,64	23445 29073	Stran
Three Mth Eurolira	-F	Sep VI Dec 47	9) (6 9),71	40 Mg	93.50 93.66	93.32 93.49	12734 11 25 7	Switz
Three Mth Euroyen		Dec 47 _ Mar 48				csion no lo	o e
Three Mith Euroswis		१५८ भर १५८ भर	99.55 18.40	48.55	98.4 5 44.71	49.47 49.13	13121 9754	Arger
Three Mth ECU Presions open interest 200	:1	Sep पर . Dec पर .	45 73 95.7)	95.73 95.72	45.77 15.84	14.73 14.73	737 747	Brazi Chin
FTSE 100 Products open to the text 1940	n	Sep ит Dec 47	ያነኝና ይ የሚኒስ	5058# 5120#	$945.0 $187.0	SOLVO SOLVO	25977 156	Finia
	uo.	er er	TEC	/O/ 1	- -		ٔ النت	Hong India
	MUM	ey ra	159	[76]		 	أتب	indo
Base Rates, Clearing Bar Discount Market Loans		trance Hs lich: 7':		pw 54.	,	Week fin	agaži 6°°	Mala New Pakis
Treasury Bills (Disk3:								Singa
B.J	। स्माप्टे	2 m ô	_	mth	6 mg		,12 me k	SAIT
Prime Bank Bills (Disk Sterling Money Rates	6 -6 ·			o"ertr ^a c		-7 -7 -	70-714	Bart
Interbank. Oversight open els gloss	tr-0".	6're		r'ı-fr"u			7.14-7.14
Local Authority Depe	6-	n	1/2	64		7°-	74
Sterling CD:	b -b" =	0″ ~€	P1,	6*0-6 ′∎			7" - -ፖ _ን	1 22
Dollar CDs:	5 53		/2	5.59		5.70	5.92	ASD
Building Society CDe	, منوف, دید 		···	ti, MQ.		13'm	t-r-	Abte Aline
EUROPEAN MONEY DEPOSITS (%)
Carrency	7 day	l eith	. 3	est.	5 m	ta.	Call	BAT
Dollar:	3 -5	÷.6.		51-31.	5° 0		5'-4'.	BOC BP
Denischemaria French Franc	3- 7 . 3-3.	31 -2 31 -3 1		3°a-2°a 5°a-3°a	J`~;	. 37.	7 - 2 ·	BSks
Swiss Franc	1-1-	1-1		rela		-)'-	Pri	BTR
Year				"Marins		٠٠,	i-bri	Bire!
GOLD/PR	ECIOL	IS ME	TALS	(Ba	rd &	Coj		Bass Bive Boots
Bullion: Open 55(5/9)33	- Ma	- ¢116 D	L 210 Au	Diele.	#231 7E	711.76		BAC BA Britts
Land $315 9(4),	74. VM	$319.50		111920. [: $3]9.5		A41.15		Brit S Blurit
Krugerraad: $31070-225 Platinum: $407.51 (240.)		(+191 m)) r: $4.42 (C)	1573	Paffadio	Ar e175	75 et ! 1	1 601	Cadb Cadb Carlo
				 .				Cent
STERLING								EMI Ener
Mid Rates for July 15 Amsterdam	Rang 1975 - 1976 !		C) 1.1 (1985)	950 87h) mont		menth 3'-3'-pr	Ente
37.5°¢ >	11 44(14 2.2	i, n	1,942	255	[1]-[4]	T .	59-51pr	GRE
Coperibagen	:: 427-21 4º :::112-: 119	5T	!.474 .	444	ورون	4	2-'spr	GLS
Franking	3. Proc. Sec. 111.	12 8	1145-1 I 0102-340	129	9-25 - 40	۲ .	23-16pr 21-21-pr	Gen
Ushor	72.163.4 72.562.31 73.562.31	10	14 US 304		`e-`4B	T .	1'- PT 4-0502	CHAR
	2015 A 20		53,39-251 124-2-39;	101 179	34-230 201-15d 38-1-300	r 1 E l	4Dt-kge 4Dt-kge	Cran
Montwisi		76 2	.790423	oou	36-1.300	r 1.3	H. Nigr	Guiz
YOU YOUR . A	10-4-10-10 11-4-12-12-12-12-12-12-12-12-12-12-12-12-12-	ا .	M751-1.6	760 (1.16	841.1470	r 0.5	-0.5.3pg	Halt
			2505-12		ورت	.	- pr	Hom
	:0.126+341+	4, 11	3. [6: -317	110	- 10	π
Stockholm	350 Halt	µ į.	1.167-10. 7.130-13.	J 50	·	1	r .21	i Hองร
Stockholm Tokse	(3.10 -13.19 (43.72-1947	yı ji	2.(3)-13. 41. 3 6-194	J 50 L 54	1,=15 1,=11	T .	- 171 14-7-2	Hays
Smeithelm Tokse Vjenna Zurich	350 Halt	եր հ գ և հ լ	7.130-13. 41.50-194 1.179-21. 4833-24	150 154 150	i ela Pia Pia) [\ T	21 5-3 - 21 2-11-21 3-3-21	Hays ICI Imp King
Stockholm Tokse	(3.110-13.19 (43.72-1947 21 (947-23.19	եր հ գ և հ լ	7.130-13. 41.50-194 1.179-21. 4833-24	150 154 199	i ela Pia Pia	ir V	21 5-3 - 21 2-11-21 3-3-21	Hays ICI Imp

1.3589-1.3598 ... 12.64-12.65 ... 37.09-37.14 1.5029-1.5080 1740.25-1747.25 116-03-116.08 2.5850-2.5000 2.0234-2.0244 7.4670-7.4730 151-42-181.47 1.4454-1.4404 151-36-151.4c 7.8364-7.8439 THER STERLING

$,000 (1,200 (1,

Energy
Ethyl Corp
Ethyl Corp
Ethyl Corp
Ethyl Corp
FMC Crorp
GMC Massor
FMC Crorp

. KWE

ere Series Paris

一一日本 かか 食を食む

April 1997 PA

مِلْدًا مِنْ اللَّصِلْ

generation ago, money our A chase pensions that relieve wholly on investment returns had a terrible reputation. Typically they had been invested ... for safety in government gilt-edged. "the misconceived state earningsstock, most of whose value had been lost to inflation and higher interest rates. Lots of people on modest incomes who had put in small sums for decades discovered.

that they had little to show for it. They had to rely on the State. Postwar generations would not fall into the same trap. To public acclaim, such inflexible poor people's pensions died out. Soon, it seems, they are going to be restiscitated for all. This week's attempt by the Director-General of Fair Trading to lay down a rigid new pattern for private pensions exemplifies the 1990s compulsion to muck about with the serious business of providing for retirement. First came the scare about a demographic timetomb, later exposed as no more than a pretext for the Tory Government to cut state pension provision even further. With state provision falling and related scheme headed for history, the hunt was on for low-cost invested pension plans for the large minority of lower earners and part-timers who had no occupational pensions at all...

Hands off our private pensions

Expensive tailor-made personal pensions, aggressively mis-sold to people who could not afford them, put many off private pensions for life. Sir John Anson's Retirement Income Inquiry, sponsored by the National Association of Pension Funds, wanted a compulsory national second-tier pension fund between the state pension and voluntary occupational funds. Others want to resuscitate industry-wide occupational schemes. Under Peter Lilley, the Department of Social Security calculated that any money-purchase replacement for Serps would cost too much for the relatively small

ed in it. So Mr Lilley proposed privatising the whole state pension to make the sums add up, with a fallback state guarantee. This required new generations to give up tax relief on contributions, undermining occupational schemes.

Labour toyed with various schemes in opposition, then promised an inquiry, due to be announced today. Gordon Brown's Budget meddling has already made its task far harder. His dividend grab cut investment returns, making it nigh on impossible to design a cost-effective Serps replacement. By cutting the tax advantage of pensions as a savings vehicle, and showing this could happen again, it has undermined public faith even more. More employers will now close final-salary schemes. In an unstable society, this makes sense in theory, except that, in practice, final salary schemes usually still deliver better pensions for longstanding employees than lowercost defined contribution schemes. The OFT appears to think that both kinds of scheme fleece the public. This will not help to rebuild confidence. Its solution is to devise a new template for pensions that will make investment returns the same and focus consumer choice on cost. A consumer watchdog has no business designing new finan-cial services products. To do so undermines its credibility as fatally as the Consumers' Association launching its Which? credit card.

SEARJEANT

while in High

The competition authority has come up with the fallacious argument companies always use to justify monopoly. Why waste money duplicating different models and spending vast sums marketing in competition with rivals?

The OFT utility pension relies on puerile top-down academic analysis. Most pension funds fail to beat the average investment performance. Therefore, money spent on trying to do so is wasted and most fund members would be better off without any investment management. The research paper on which this depends, relying on efficient market theory, says that any claimed skill at timing switchbetween securities and cash "relies on the assumption that sider information (potentially illegally obtained)".

On such intellectual founda-tions. OFT experts recommend a standard minimum cost pension scheme that tracks the share index, investing proportionately in the stocks that make up it up. Such index funds often give good value for money. That is why compention has made tracker funds popular. But picking stocks is only one aspect of investment management. Allocating funds between UK shares, gilt-edged, foreign equities, corporate bonds and cash is as important. Any fund that sets today's investment ideas in stone for 40 years ahead is asking to be as big a disaster as the old funds that invested only in gilt-edged. In 15 years time, bonds may be a better investment than equities. And it would be foolish to restrict anything beyond a low-grade basic scheme to UK investment, even if you could under EU law. Index funds need to be a minority sport. If the majority of pension money were invested that way, the index would soon become hopelessly distorted and manipulated. Without flexibility, ethical investment choices, smaller stocks and the venture capital industry would wither away as their main source of capital dried up. And specifying a tracker fund begs the question of which index to track: the FISE 100 top shares, some world index of blue chips or an "all-share" index that still covers only a minority of stocks. The Government inquiry should realise what damage is done by unkering. Today's young people face compulsory savings in an inflexible vehicle whose chief virtue is tax relief. Once their savings have been seized, they can safely bet that successive Chancellors will remove the reliefs. Unless the Government is careful, ordinary people will become as keen to

Difficult customer reaches out to arms of Western capitalism

Oliver August looks at the way Britain's links with Saudi Arabia are growing

f one placed all British trading partners in one classroom, Saudi Arabia Would stand out as a highly gifted but difficult pupil. The desert state has been one of the UK's most lucrative export destinations over the past decade. But at times it has also been one of British industry's most awkward clients.

The £20 billion at Yamamah arms-for-oil, deal struck by Margaret Thatcher in the mid-1980s is still the largest ever UK export agreement. Millions have flown into Treasury colfers and hundreds of British Aerospace jobs have been created with every Tornado aircraft flown to a desert base.

Many British businessmen. however, feel reminded of Communist · Eastern · Europe when they go to Riyadh. Secrecv is intense, the bureaucracv is unrelenting and almost all business is conducted directly through the State and influenced by its ideology. It was with some surprise, therefore, that exporters greeted yester-day's Confederation of British Industry forum to discuss Saudi trade which included a host of high-profile Saudi figures — and they all arrived in lounge suits rather than white robes and traditional head dress. Sandi Arabia, the birth place of Islam, is reaching out to Western capitalism. The royal family around the alling King Fahd is visibly pleased with its close co-operation with UK companies and now wants to invite in more. Last year alone, British exports to the country grew by 50 per cent to £2.5 billion. Proudly, the Saudis tell their new business partners about their I per cent inflation rate in what has become an economic virility test. Chairing the forum, His so easy and good-humoured.

Sales of the Tornado aircraft are expected to fizzle out but BAe hopes to persuade the Saudis to buy the Eurofighter

Royal Highness Prince Abdullah bin Faisal bin Turki, said: . "We welcome as much contact as possible. In the future, there will be more opportunities to participate."

The same note was struck by Lord Clinton-Davis, the Trade Minister, who said: Saudi Arabia is a very important market for us. Growth looks set to continue this year. We want in maximise exports through flie al-Yamamah programme. Saudi Arabia is not the strange land of popular perceptions. The Department of Trade and Industry has just embarked on a two year export promotion.".

Prince: Abdullah had said: The Saudis are quite conservafive. We only discovered the 20th century in the 1950s." Lord. Clinton-Dayis retorted: "I hope you are referring to small "c" conservatism, as you did congratulate me on Labour's victory: Relations are not always ernment-to-government prog-ramme. This has many advantages, the Saudis are quick to point out, incentives include interest-free loans, exemption from duty, a ten-year tax holiday and no restrictions on the repairiation of funds. But this list is also a good pointer to the problems com-panies are likely to encounter in the country. The notoriously difficult business conditions may be tackled with the help of the Saudis or not at all. For a UK chief executive, there is no such thing as being in charge of Saudi operations.

To help UK companies, BAe and the Ministry of Defence operate a trade development agency called the British Offset Office. They are using their local expertise and contacts developed over the past decade to open the door for the rest of British industry. Banks, investors and consultants are on

The al-Yamamah deal is a gov-' hand to give confidential guidance on how to deal with the Saudis. Companies such as Shell, Glaxo, Tate & Lyle and BP have been beneficiaries.

> Ae has also become involved in the programme as an underwriter for other UK companies. Steve Mogford, managing director of the systems and services division. said: "This is a new scheme we are putting in place under the al-Yamamah programme." BAe will guarantee a Saudi loan to a fellow company that is investing in the kingdom. The maximum value of the loan is £6.25 million.

> But there are further complications for British exporters. To join the programme, companies have to fulfil certain criteria. Projects are to be joint ventures with Saudi companies. They have to add up to an investment of at least £10 million. And most importantly, technological skills and know-ledge have to be transferred to the local community. Consequently. BAe alone employs 500 Saudis to assemble aircraft instead of doing so in

Warton, Lancashire. The Saudi employees are assisted by 3,500 British engineers, accountants and pilots permanently stationed around the Arabian peninsula. BAe seems to find it difficult to employ enough UK personnel to man the desert outposts. It continues to advertise for military recruits in the RAF

A BAe recruitment document obtained by The Times paints a hilariously rosy picture of the conditions in the kingdom. It says: "Even though Saudi Arabia does not have a tradition of public entertainment facilities in the cities, you will never be short of ways to spend your leisure time. Obviously the choice of recreational activity varies according to where you are based."

The text is accompanied by pictures of the stony desert. For the more energenc types, competitive pursuits like road running and cycling are ca-tered for as is golf." The gulf state, which is regularly criticised by human rights organisations, is also being described as "a model of stability".

Even BAe cannot gloss over some of the problems that employees can expect. The RAF men are told: "Saudi Arabia remains a deeply religious country at the heart of the Islamic faith and Saudi Arabian nationals place a high value on preserving their culture and traditions. The consumption of alcohol and pork products are both forbidden and visitors, whatever their nationality, can expect the law to be rigorously

The RAF men may have heard of the two British nurses in a Saudi jail and possibly facing a death sentence. Andrew Green, the Ambassador to Riyadh, said: "There are Saudi Arabia. Only two or three are in jail at any one time. Some are very awkward cases but there are only one or two of

The question on most Saudi watchers' minds at the moment is whether the heart of the al-Yamamah deal, the sale of military aircraft, will maintain its momentum. This would give an enormous boost to all UK exports to the country Barnaby Wiener, analyst at

Merrill Lynch, wrote in his latest BAe report: "The second phase of al-Yamamah was initiated in 1993 with the order for 48 further Tornados. The current order backlog is around £5.5 billion, nearly half the total defence order book." The export of Tornados will fizzle out next year. BAe's ground support is to continue, but earnings will decline. Now BAe cannot wait to sell the Saudis its latest toy, the Eurofighter, under another al-Yamamah style deal. Ever the difficult customer, the Saudis have adopted Mrs Thatcher's successor's motto: wait and see.

Succession has its fashions

Martin Waller says brands can survive the loss of a figurehead about brand names. The same fiction surrounds celebrity chefs and celebrity hairdressers. No one believes that Gary Rhodes personally slices each aubergine, even if he is billed as the chef in his restaurants; no one expects Pierre Cardin to have personally wielded the scissors on every suit that sells for £300 at the local department store. But the existence of the brand figurehead matters in high fashion, and his or her sudden death can cause a hiatus that can break the company. The shock shooting of Gianni Versace in Miami leaves a gap at the top of the fashion house that will, once the family grieving is over, have to be filled.

Donatella, Gianni's sister, is seen as the natural successor she already designs much of the range on sale at the compaworld even if her brother was in charge of the haute couture on the catwalk. Other fashion houses have been less fortunate. The normal pattern has been to import a hot-shot designer from outside, or promote one conveniently already employed within, to continue the figurehead's work.

John Galliano, the flamboyant British designer, was recruited last autumn to update the house of Christian Dior, which has suffered years of vicious infighting. Karl Lagerfeld is at Chanel. It is unlikely that the great woman herself. Coeo Chanel, who died in 1971. would have approved of what he has done with her legacy, but he has turned the brand around financially.

Tom Ford achieved the same at Gucci, also riven by fratricidal quarrels, in the 1990s, What was once a fading luxury goods house with a slightly tacky image is now back in the front

In 1957 when Christian Dior died from a heart attack, a young man called Yves Saint Laurent was promoted from within. It worked, for a while:

there is a polite fiction but four years later he sued Dior for enough money to start his own fashion house.

This is one danger. The other is that the successor is too stuck in the mould of his mentor to move the brand forward.

Pam Robertson is director of strategy at Interbrand, the consultant on brands. She points to a British example. After Laura Ashley died in 1985, her work was continued by her husband Bernard, the business brain of the partnership. They had a real hiccup," says Ms Robertson. "They tried to retain the brand as it was when she created it, when as a designer she would have moved it on."

The company kept the Diary of an Edwardian Country Lady feel that had made its name. Only recently, under Ann Iverson the American chief executive, has the company been heading towards a more modern look, and it is a move that, as disappointed investors are too well aware, has yet to prove successful.

"The trick is finding a de signer who shares the same vision as the original," says Ms Robertson. "If the brand is a true one it has an essence which has to be maintained, but it also has to be moved on. That's the real trick."

By this argument, carry-ing out the trick at Ver-sace should not be difficult in the short term. because his design is sufficiently dist-inctive to suit imitation. But some in the fashion world say his look of aggressive female sexuality, has been overtaken by more restrained designers such as Prada and Gucci.

Perhaps the best course of action is that adopted by Max Mara, an Italian house that is shaping up to take over from Prada and Gucci at the cutting edge of fashion. There is a controlling family, with all the potential for friction that that brings. But there is not and never was, a Max Mara. So the brand is immortal. And the

Casual slip

HIGH farce at the High by those acting for Shannon.
Court Country Casuals, the He was suing for unfair bid-plagued womenswear disaussal and for full payment action brought by former chairman John Shannon. This will be formally announced by a bid for the company by this morning. But the terms of his vehicle. My spy in the settlement will not be announced, because both parties have been silenced by a confidentiality agreement. Shh.-Nobody must ever know.

Except those present at the High Court yesterday — and readers of The Times. The lawyers acting for Country Casuals blurted the details out before they could be silenced

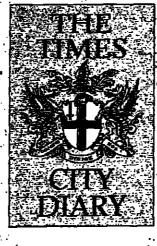

"Most nuisance callers seem to be shareholders trying to contact our chairman chain, has settled the court of his two-year rolling contract after his departure in Septem-ber 1994, which was followed courtreon says Shannon, who led the initial buy-out of Country Casuals in 1989. didn't get a beam, and was hit with a £250,000 bill for costs. But don't tell anyone I said so. • FROM the bulletin to all employees of Guinness and Grand Metropolitan about progress towards the merger: Apologies to Spanish-speak-ing markets who received a misleading translation of the comments made by Einn (Johnsson) , and . Jack (McGrath) about the location of head offices for Asia and Latin America regions in Merger Bulletin no. 6. The translator misinterpreted the words they will be run out of Hong Kong and Miami as they will be chased out of Hong Kong and Miami' with the result that the Spanish version said the exact opposite of what was intended."

Short cut A VERY nasty punch-up in the secretive wor'd of headhunt-

ing. The story goes thus. An employee of a world-famous advertising group rings a headhunter, requesting details of candidates for an assignment in Poland, of all places. He asks for them to be sent to his private fax. The headhunter, which does act for the advertiser, obliges. In later conversation with the client, the name of the employee

Not one of ours, says the puzzled adman — we thought he was one of yours. He's been on to us too. The "employee" in fact worked for another headhunter, a bitter rival. He had found an ingenious short cut to avoid the sheer tedium of original research. The rival headhunter, I am told, tried to laugh it off, but the aggrieved party wants blood, and there

New Parker

A PUZZLED City woke up yesterday to read in a rival paper that Alan Parker, head of the Brunswick PR concern that has just taken over the British Airways account from Lowe Bell, was a "long-time Labour supporter". This is "long-time" as in "ever since May 2 this year." surely? Plenty of those around. Brunswick says its policy is that the senior partner should not be politically aligned. My impression is that Parker is something of a Blairite these days — which makes him anything but a long-time Labour man, I would have thought.

• FORTUNE OIL has inserted a curious condition into the option to take new shares granted to Barry Cheung, its clean-living chief executive. Shareholders at the extraordinary meeting of the oil trader on Monday week will have to vote on a clause that requires the option to lapse if Cheung's employment is terminated in certain circumstances, "for example serious misconduct, personal bankruptcy, persistent insobriety (!) or death".

Celtic call

FORGET the abrupt plunge in BT's shares last week after a MCI, the American phone is talk of the police being company BT is trying to buy lightly at BT's annual called in. Watch this space. for £12 billion. Forget the exection in Edinburgh utive pay and awards scheme at the merged company, among the most lavish on the planet. What aroused the greatest passion at BT's annual meeting in Edinburgh yesterday was phone boxes and phone directories. One articu late, albeit pedantic, investor complained that the Welsh signs in BT's phone boxes in Wales — the translation of the &, to be specific -- did not make Celtic sense. Another complained, also at length, that names in the Edinburgh phone directory were not always listed in alphabetical order. Sir lain Vallance, BT's chairman, listened with reasonable patience. He clearly could not

MARTIN WALLER

Sir Iain Vallance got off

BT's ISDN lines can send a document in less time than it takes to walk to the fax machine. Why not change. the way we work?

Call Free fone 0800 800 800

ACCOUNTANCY

tute is already providing much help and advice to its members through the Faculties of Finance and Management and Information Technology. The technical department is actively working to coordinate institute activities and to provide practical advice to members, to alert them to the problems and to assist in ☐ Fraud is an increasing cost to businesses. The recent successful conference on fraud at Moorgate Place has led to the plan to set up a Fraud Advis-ory Panel, which will be organised by the Audit Faculty.

The next three years are likely to pose many challenges for those contributing to the technical agenda. Apart from the impact on the institute.

they will affect standard setters with the move to increased use of international accounting and auditing standards. The institute is well placed to respond to these challenges,

but must remain alert and focused on the important issues. Part of my role is to ensure that it does so and I welcome comment and advice from all those with an interest in contributing to the debate.

finding workable solutions,

Giving technical leadership

David Perry sets out the challenge alongside his vision for the future

THE English ICA has always rightly prided itself on the missions to the international quality of its technical output and it has a long tradition of contributing to the development of thinking and technical standards across all areas of chartered accountants' work. Much is done by unpaid volunteers working in business and the practising firms who rely on the support and leadership of the full-time institute staff.

Having had about six weeks to begin to understand the vast range of technical activities undertaken within the institute or co-ordinated by it, I am now better able to pull together my vision for the future.

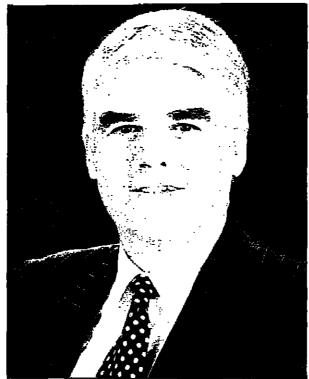

Broadly, I believe the Institute has a duty to provide a clear and relevant technical leadership, with the aim of continually raising standards and knowledge. It represents members in different constituencies whose interests do not always coincide. The concerns of the largest auditing firms for example may not be the same as those of the smallest; the concerns of finance directors and chartered accountants working in business generally are often different or opposed to those of members in practice. The focus of technical activities must recognise differences and aim to provide support for all members.

debate through the use of Consultative Committee of Accountancy Bodies (CCAB) committees, I am aware that this has resulted in the institute's own voice not being clearly heard. The institute should also publicise its own views alongside those of the CCAB.

As members working in business comprise about half the membership of the Institute, more effort needs to be extended to provide relevant technical support to those engaged in the management of finance functions. The institute cannot be complacent in the technical area. It is important that there is perceived value from its technical activities which must be focused on what members need to help them in their daily work, as well as being sufficiently far-sighted and radical so that the institute is seen as being a valuable contributor to the formulation of law, standards and policy by government, international bodies and standard setters.

We should not just represent the views of members — a difficult enough task given the size and disparate views of the membership — but also take positions on technical issues with which many of our members may not agree.

David Perry welcomes contributions to the debate

ANY OTHER BUSINESS

Some where the institute should take

☐ Corporate accountability and reporting on the Internet - the use of the internet for making corporate information available poses many ques-tions for preparers and users of financial statements. The institute is to host a conference on corporate accountability in cyberspace this year at which the issues will be discussed.

particular areas The introduction of the euro. This will have a significant impact on British companies, whether the UK is in or out of the first phase. The issues are not fully understood and despite the best efforts of the DTI and the UK 100 group there remains vast ignorance of its effects and what needs to be done to prepare. ☐ The Year 2000 issue (or David Perry was appointed Director of Technical Dev-elopment and Promotion at "millennium timebomb") is well recognised as a threat to the Institute of Chartered Accountants in May. Previously he was a partner at Arthur Andersen, and spent two years at the firm's Moscow and St Petersburg offices.

> was in good company. Wodehouse's granddaughter sang her grandfather's songs, and Ring offered to demonstrate the Swedish exercises with which Wodehouse started each day.

as newly installed patrons, he

These came from Wooster Sauce, the society's newsletter, which Ring now edits. All enthusiasts are invited to join and should call either 0171-230 5347 or Ring himself on 01494

Papers shatter myths about evil empires

THERE has always been an uneasy relation- tor in this success. Oddly enough, in that ship between academics and practitioners. The academics argue that accountants in business and practice never think but just power ahead with the bottom line in focus. Accountants in business and practice take the view that academics exist in a feather-bedded never-never land and, on the few occasions that they come into contact with the business world, tend to savage it unmercifully.

Neither view is true. Both sides like to keep the pretence going, but on the evidence of this week's annual conference on financial accounting and auditing research, funded by the English ICA, it is going to become increasingly difficult. It opened with Chris Swinson, the institute's deputy president, suggesting the distance between academics and practitioners was "a great weakness in the profession". But hardly had he sat down than we heard from the first two research papers that the large accountancy firms were doing a good job and were reckoned to be pretty independent in outlook. In the past this would have had academics falling off their chairs in disbelief. Traditionally the view has been that large accounting firms were good for a bit of funding but, that apart, were evil empires. First, Peter Moizer, of

Leeds University Business School, delivered his paper on company directors' views on the performance of their auditors. Moizer carried out a similar survey in 1987, based on the views of the finance directors of The Times Top 1,000 companies. Now, with a survey in 1996, he has updated it and can show trends over what has been a turbulent decade for accountants. The key point is that it destroys many myths. One is that finance directors hate their auditors. It is assumed, from anecdotal evidence freely available in the bar after any conference on financial reporting, that auditors are a waste of space and, but for a statutory requirement, no one would submit to an audit. Yet Moizer's research tells a different story. Both 1987 and 1996 surveys show the performance of auditors to be rated highly and that views had hardly changed. Top of the satisfaction list was the technical competence of audit partners and bottom of the list, perhaps predictably, was value for money, though even that has improved slightly since 1987.

The surveys show that personal contact with the audit partner is rated as the vital fac-smaller firms make much more play of being able to provide sensible partner contact, this does not seem to come across in the perception of finance directors, though mediumsized firms seem to score better. In any case small and medium-sized firms have dropped out of the spectrum of the companies surveyed. In 1987 the top firms had 78.8 per cent of the market surveyed and the medium-sized firms had 11.1 per cent. The 1996 figures show the Big Six with 91.9 per cent of the market, medium-sized firms with 5.3 per tent.

Other elements stayed consistent. The average age of the finance directors involved remains at 43 years in both surveys, though the influence of finance directors' backgrounds appeared to have turned a somersault. In 1987 the more time a finance director had spent within an accountancy firm earlier in their career, the less they were likely to be satisfied with their auditors. The 1996 figures shows the opposite. For John Kellas, of KPMG, who provided the discussion on Moizer's paper, this was a pleasant surprise, as was the revelation that finance directors had spent, on average, 11 years with a professional firm. This again flies in the face of the perceived wisdom. "The perception in the firms," said Kellas. "is that the good people leave early, yet the survey suggests that stayers do best."

Other quirks stood out.

Perception of the Big Six firms was that they were much of a muchness in both surveys. Only two firms stood out — for different reasons. In 1987 Price Waterhouse was pre-eminent in terms of perception of quality. Now it is back among the pack. In the 1996 survey Deloitte & Touche stood out as having the lowest performance rating. Overall the conclusions were that satisfaction with auditors is "remarkably stable in the period 1986-96 and reflects general satisfaction with the services provided by the audit firm".

Immediately after Moizer's paper more research, this time based on the Irish market. was unveiled. This showed that the Big Six firms were seen as more independent and more reliable than their competitors. It was up to Mike Power, of the LSE, to redress the balance. "Interviewees are unintelligent," he said. "It is almost not worth interviewing people who give the party line." There is life in the old accounting academic line still.

Contrived measure

NOTHING in the world of tax legislation ever becomes simpler. Even the categories of the ways not to pay tax are expanding. Blackstone Franks, the enterprising small accounting firm, has come up with a new one in its Budget commentary.

While recognising the desir-

"It is interesting and worry ing," it says, that "alongside tax avoidance, tax evasion

Court of Appeal

not to pay tax," the Chancellor has discerned a new category of 'contrived tax planning'." Accountants naturally resent all this. They know that it is going to be the lawyers who contradiction in terms, it should be obvious who is the happiest Scottish chartered accountant this week. lan Valentine, institute council member and senior chap with BDO Stoy Hayclean up when legal definiward, is also captain of the Royal Troon Golf Club just tions and clarifications are down the road from his Ayr office. And that is where the Open Golf Championship gets and tax mitigation as ways IF THE description is not a under way today.

Valentine's day

Ring for Jeeves!

TONY RING, one-time president of the Chartered Institute of Taxation, was out drumming up custom for his other enthusiasm last week. At the relaunch of the P. G. Wodehouse Society he was urging all and sundry to join. With everyone from the Prime Minister to Alan Coren precedents did not prevent the court from holding that there was iurisdiction to entertain Dr Coker's claim. In enacting rights, Par-liament had not expressly excluded

the clergy and a modern approach

In his Lordship's judgment, the decision of the industrial tribunal chairman was legally wrong. The error was in adopting an incorrect approach in assuming that there was a contractually enforceable agreement. Although it had not been explicitly analysed in the cases of President of the Methodist

Conference v Parlitt (1984) ICR

Church of Wales the simple reason the lack of intention to create a contractual relationship of any

In his Lordship's judgment, the position was as follows: that not every agreement constituted a binding contract, there had to be r the absence of a contract, was needed to be taken.

ROBERT BRUCE

Law Report July 17 1997

Court of Appeal

Curate cannot be an employee

Diocese of Southwark and Before Lord Justice Staughton. Lord Justice Ward and Lord

Justice Mummery

[Judgment July [1] An assistant curate in the Church of England was not an employee for the purposes of the Employment Protection (Consolidation Act 1978 and accordingly an industrial tribunal had no jurisdiction to hear his complaint of unfair

The Court of Anneal so held in a an appeal brought by Dr Alexan der Coker against the decision of the Employment Appeal Tribunal (The Times, April 4, 1996) ICR 846) on an appeal by the Directe of Southwark, the Bishop of Southwark and the Diocesar Board of Finance from the decision a South Landon industrial tribunal chairman (Professor R. W. Rideouti (1905) ICR 563) on a preliminary issue of law, that the ribunal had jurisdiction to bear Dr Coker's claim that he had been removed from the dioresan navroll in May 1994 after working as an assistant curate since December Mr Joseph Hage for Dr Coker. Mr Paul Goulding for the assistant curate at St Luke's, Woodside, from December 1990 to Cheam Common, from December 1993 to May 1994, Dr Coker was an employee for the purposes of the Rights Act 1996. If he was, he had the right not to be unfairly dismissed and by virtue of section 54(1) of the 1978 Act an industrial the complaint The original respondent to the application was named as the Diocese of Southwark, within which both St Luke's and St Philip's parishes were situated. the diocese, which was under the jurisdiction of the Bishop of Southwark, had no capacity to sue or he sued and accordingly the appeal tribunal had ordered the bishop and the Diocesan Board of Finance, a limited company which raid Dr Coker's stipend, to be added as

The appeal focused on three questions: (i) Did Dr Coker have a contract at all?: (ii) If so, was it a was the employer? In his Lordship's judgment, the critical question was the first one. Mr Hage made four points in

LORD JUSTICE MUMMERY support of his argument: which concerned non-conformist said that the question on appeal 1 If, as the appeal tribunal had was whether, while he was an held, Dr Coker was not an emprecedents did not prevent the ployee, then it followed that not only did he not have rights under the 1978 Act but also the Sex Discrimination Act 1975, the Race

Relations Act 1976, the Wages Act 1986 and health and safety rights. Mr Hage asked rhetorically: why should that be so? 2 Earlier authorities relied upon by the respondents invoked various justifications for members of the tribunal had jurisdiction to hear clergy not being employees, but there were only really two points which were that an assistant > the duties were spiritual. tribunal, having referred to Barthorpe v Exeter Diocesan Board of Finance (1979) ICR 900) had held that Dr Coker was not an office-holder. So far as spiritual were concerned, it had been recognised in Davies v Presbyterian Church of Wales ([1986] ICR 280) that a man could be employed as a servant or an independent contractor, when carrying out exclusively spiritual duties.

curate was an officer-holder and 3 The respondents' position was indefensible in principle or on policy grounds since all elements of a contract were present.

Director's offence is absolute

Regina v Cole Regina v Birch Before Lord Justice McCowan, Mr

[Judgment July 3] The offence of being a director of a company known by a prohibited name, contrary to section 216 of the

Justice Collins and Mrs Justice

Insolvency Act 1986, was an offence of strict liability. The disqualification order envis-aged by section I(I) of the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986 was only one disqualification with a number of different categories rather than five separate categories of disqualification. The Court of Appeal, Criminal Division, so held in dismissing appeals by Philip Francis Cole, Francis Gerard Lees and David Brian Birch against their convic-tions in July 1996 at Liverpool Crown Court (Judge Richard Pickcring and a jury) of being a director of a company known by a prohibited name, contrary to see ed name, contrary to sec tion 216 of the Insolvency Act 1986

for which they were each sentenced to perform 200 hours community

Cole and Lees were disqualified for being company directors for two years and each was ordered to pay £500 towards prosecution costs and Birch was disqualified for being a director, liquidator, ager of company property for three years and was ordered to pay

1986 provides: "(1) This section applies to a person where a company ... has gone into insolvent liquidation ... and he was a director ... of the company at any time in the period of 12 months ending with the day before it went into liquidation. "(2) ... a name is a prohibited name in relation to such a person if

-... (b) it is a name which is so similar ... as to suggest an association with that company.

"(3) Except with leave of the court ... a person to whom this section applies shall not . . . (a) he a lirector of any other company that is known by a prohibited name. . . "(4) If a person acts in contravenimprisonment or a line, or both."

ection I of the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986 provides: "(1) . . . a court may . . . make against a person a disqualification order, that is to say an order that he shall not, without leave of the court — (a) be a director of a company, or (b) be a liquidator or administrator of a company, or (c) be a receiver or manager of a company's property, or (d) in any way, whether directly or indirectly, be concerned or take part in the promotion, formation or management of a company..." appear below, assigned by the Registrar of Criminal Appeals, for aid certificate, if he had the power, to provide for solicitor only to the effect of what the judge did and said in the light of the 1989

in their Lordships' judgment the Regulations and the authorities.

following principles emerged:

E1,000 towards prosecution costs. Cole and Lees: Miss Tanya Woolls. Boulton (on conviction), Mr William Charles and Mr Malcolm below (on sentence) for the

ROBERT

BRUCE

LORD JUSTICE MCCOWAN, delivering the judgment of the court, said that the appellants were directors of a company called East been carrying on business since October 1988.

In September 1991 a company called East Africa Lines was set up with the appellants as directors. The first company ran into finan-cial difficulties and in March 1992 was wound up but the appellants continued to act as directors of the second company. At a preliminary hearing sub-missions were heard as to whether section 216 of the Insolvency Act 1986 was an offence of strict liability. Initially the judge ruled that that proof of mens rea was required but having considered the guidance offered in R v Brockley ((1994) 99 Cr App R 385) in relation to a parallel provision in section II of the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986 which created an offence where a person who was an undischarged bankrupted acted a director of a company, the judge decided his initial ruling was wrong and held

Their Lordships agreed that Section 216 of the Insolvency Act assigned by the Registrar of Crimal Appeals for Birch; Mr David although the case of R v Brockley concerned a different section of a different act, by way of analogy it lent support to the prosecution's argument that proof of mens rea was not required

In their Lordships judgment the be found in subsection (4) which contained in very plain terms what the prosecution had to prove and said nothing about proving knowledge or intention to defraud or deceive. In the absence of other grounds of appeal the convictions were accordingly safe and correct.

On the disqualification under section I(I) of the Company Directors Dismuslification Act 1086 it was their Lordship's view that that Act envisaged only one dis-qualification not five separate regories.

It followed that the order made by the judge was invalid and should be made valid by each appellant being generally disqualified under section I from the date of sentence by the judge and for the period he stated.

That was not dealing with them differently, it was the way in which the judge ought to have dealt with them and was consistent with the approach of the Court of Appeal in the cases of Re Gower Enterprises (No 2) (1995) 2 BCLC 201) and Official Receiver v Hannan (The Solicitors: Solicitor, Department of Trade and Industry.

Driving when disqualification still valid is an offence

Regina v Thames Magistrates Court. Ex parte Levy Before Lord Justice Simon Brown and Mr Justice Garland Judgment June [6]
A driver was guilty of driving a numer vehicle while disqualified for driving even when the original offence to which the disqualifying period related had been quashed. The Queen's Bench Divisional application for judicial review by Darren Levy to quash his convic-tion by Mr Stephen Dawson, Metropolitan Stipendiary Magistrate at Thames Magistrates Court on October 23, 1996 of driving while disqualified contrary to section [03(1) of the Road Traffic

On June 17, 1996 he had been found guilty of various motoring offences by Highbury Corner Magistrates Court for which he was sentenced, inter alia, to 12 months disqualification from driving. He appealed against the convictions but did not apply to have the disqualification suspended pending the outcome. During the period of disqualification, he was twice stopped while driving and charged, inter alia, with driving while disqualified. On September 25, 1990 his appeal against the convictions of was successful and the convictions were quashed.

Magistrates Court he was found guilty, inter alia, of driving while disqualified although the offence to which the disqualification related plicant: Mr Andrew Colman for the prosecution.

LORD JUSTICE SIMON BROWN said the applicant had requested judicial review of the magistrate's refusal to state a case be required to state a case.

preferable approach was to face the true issue of the case and request judicial review of the legality of the conviction on Octoproceeded on that basis.

in other words, it did not amount to an offence. That argument has not been pursued in this court, and rightly so, because it seems to us perfectly clear ... that that is an

On October 23, 1996 at Thames

Miss Ruth Kirby for the ap-

His Lordship considered the ber 23. The parties agreed and His Lordship referred to the statement of Lord Widgery in R v Lynn ([1971] RTR 369, 370): The first point which was taken below but is not taken here was that, since the initial disqualification of December 3, 1969 was sub-sequently set aside on appeal, the act of driving on December 8, 1969 was not a breach of the law at all, ber 8, 1969 and for the appellant to drive on December 8, 1969 was clearly a breach of the law." The question before the court was whether that statement was right or wrong. None of the authorities referred to by the appellant: R v Barron ((1914) 10 Cr App R 81), Hancock v Prison Commissioners (1959) 3 All ER 513), Sambasivam v Public Prosecutor, Federation of Malawa [1950] AC 458) and In re G (ar infant) v Coltart ([1967] I QB 432) gave any support to his argument that the quashing of the original conviction to which the disqualification period related had the consequence of nullifying the bsequent conviction of driving while disqualified. The statement of Lord Widgery in Lynn was correct and every consideration of good justice led inevitably to the conclusion that it would be wrong to set aside the judgment of the magistrate. The appellant was guilty once and for all when pending an appeal he nevertheless drove a motor vehicle pellant was guilty once and for while an order of disqualification was lawfully in force. Mr Justice Garland agreed. Solicitors: J. D. Spicer & Co. Edmonton: Crown Prosecution Service. Thames Street.

an intention to create legal rela-tions; that the intention had to be objectively ascertained: in some cases, there was no contract, unless an intention had been established, such was the present

It was of critical significance that an assistant curate was ordained and was called to an office recognised by law: it was therefore not necessary to enter into a contract. It also made the relationship more appropriate for the spiritual jurisdiction of the ecclenetical courts.

The law required clear evidence of an intention to create legal relations over and above those which were present here.

It had never been held that an ncumbent of a parish was under a contract with the bishop or anyone

As far as his Lordship was concerned, it was difficult to see why an ordained priest was under contract. His Lordship agreed with Mr Justice Parker in In re National Insurance Act 1911 ([1912] 2 Ch 563) that a curate in the Church of England was not an employee. That legal position had not changed.

The right of an employee not to be unfairly dismissed by his employer under section 54(1) of the 1978 Act could not apply to Dr Coker because he did not have an

The Diocese of Southwark was not his employer, nor was it a legal person. Those who paid Dr Coker neither appointed or removed him. That left the bishop who had the legal responsibility for licensing assistant curates. That relationship was governed by canonical obedience. There was no private law contract. Lord Justice Ward agreed and

Lord Justice Staughton delivered a concurring judgment. Solicitors: Lawford & Co, Richmond upon Thames; Winckworth

Hudement July 3 There was no power to grant legal aid representation by solicitor only under regulation 44(1) of the Legal Aid in Criminal and Care Proce ings (General) Regulations (SI 1989

The Court of Appeal, Criminal Division, so held in dismissing an appeal by Peter Seale against his viction at Manchester Crown Court (Judge Sachs and a jury) of five offences of robbery and one offence of having a firearm with intent to commit an indictable offence, namely robbery. He was sentenced to concurrent prison terms of 18 years on each count. The appellant in person; Mr Anthony Morris, QC and Mr Paul C. Reid for the Crown. LORD JUSTICE ROSE, giving the judgment of the court, said that at the beginning of the trial the appellant had dispensed with his counsel because, he said, of their lack of commitment but he wanted his solicitor to continue and he did not want his legal aid certificate

The judge refused to adjourn but

Mr Ian McCulloch and Mr Times March 20, 1997). Duncan Macpherson, who did not that section 216 did create an

Court cannot grant solicitor only certificate Regina v Scale

Before Lord Justice Rose, Mr Justice Holland and Mr Justice

> I There was no power under regulation 44(i) to grant legal aid for representation by a solicitor only (see R v Mills (unreported, March 21, 1997)) and in so far as R v Kirk ((1982) 76 Cr App R 194) suggested otherwise, their Lordships, unlike the court in Mills, were unable to discern any difference between the old section

> > That lacuna in the present regulations was to be regretted and the observations of the court in Mills were echoed as to the desirability for urgent consideration to be given to an appropriate amendment to the new regulation 44.

regulations. 2 A judge could only withdraw a legal aid order if all legal representatives withdrew from the case (regulation 50(2)). If only some withdrew the order could not be revoked. That too merited consideration by the Lord Chancellor. 3 A judge could amend a legal aid order by substituting fresh legal

30(I) in the Legal Aid Act 1974 and representatives for representatives previously assigned (regulation 50(1)) but he had a discretion. He was under no obligation to assign new legal aid representatives or to amend the order simply because or more of his legal

In Mills the judge purported to amend the order to provide for solicitor only representation. In the present case the judge said he amended the certificate only if he had the power to do so. As he had no such power the certificate remained and the appellant continued to be entitled but had chosen to dispense with the services.

4 in some cases it might be necessary for a judge to conduct an inquiry as to why a defendant had dispensed with counsel: see R v Chambers (unreported, December 16, 1988); R v Davies (The Times February II. 1987) and R v McAllister ([1988] Crim LR 390).

Whether such an inquiry was necessary would depend on the circumstances of the case. In the present case the judge was familiar vith the circumstances and no further inquiry was, in their Lordshins' view, necessary.

5 An irregularity in the trial judge's treatment of a defendant's legal aid . . representation might lead to the.

The second residual second sec did in Chambers and Davies, bu would not necessarily do so, see R v Dimech (1991) Crim LR 846) and would not do so when the result of the trial would inevitably have been the same.

Was the judge justified in refusing an adjournment? It seemed to their Lordships that there was ample material before the judge for him to conclude that the counsel was to shop around, it was pertinent to note that in connection with his trial and appeal the appellant had been successively represented by a total of seven

It was apparent that the appel-lant did not accept advice from counsel which he did not like. Accordingly, even if the judge had exercised his discretion in the appellant's favour the case showed that counsel would have been unlikely to survive.

In the present case, there was no irregularity in relation to the appellant's legal aid. There was no reason to regard the conviction as unsafe since the evidence against him was overwhelming, to the extent that full legal representation could not have been expected to overcome.

. Solicitors: Crown Prosecution Service, Manchester,

252 1667 All Lordon 4607, 341 All Hippon An
3199, 347 Assoc & Paris,
145 124 Arts Europe
607, 477 Assoc & Paris,
145 124 Arts Europe
607, 477 Baldy
7627, 548 Br Ahrmyst
134 6 Cantal ham 8
1177, 557- 20eston (6)
144 336 Cantal ham 8
1177, 557- 20eston (7)
145 1077- 20eston (7)
146 1078- 20eston (7)
147 1087- 20eston (7)
148 1087- 20eston (7)
148 1087- 20eston (7)
149 1087-

| REVALLERS. GENERAL | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 | 1037 |

hatter myths vilempires

Equities close below best of day TRADING PERIOD: Settlement takes place five business days after the day of trade. Changes are calculated on the previous day's close, but adjustments are made when a stock is ex-dividend. Changes, yields and price/earnings ratios are based on middle prices. 255 + 10 76 - 59 120 355 - 20 153 171 - 3 - 20 225 137 - 3 - 31 185 167 - 21 97 225 - 21 97 225 - 21 97 225 - 27 28 153 530 + 10 - 43 173 + 11 - 43 162 25 - 37 114 35 + 8 42 215 250 - 1 38 153

THE	TIMES UNIT TRUST THEORINA TENSE
Control Inc. Color	Sell Bey +/- 5	Sell Buy +1- %	100 100
ABBEY UNIT 157 MURS ABBEY UNIT 157 MURS Gab. 5 region 1 125 90 1428	Appen 54.43 54.50 + 0.25	MORISAN BREMFELL INVEST FOS LTD Dealer, 1077 586 7474 Brogader, 1077 588 7177 American Grain Sci 70 594 500 + 9930 1077 407 598 Brognom Shi No. 652,20 694,207 + 1260 IN No. 100 100 100 100 100 100 100 100 100 10	Semilar Cas. Semi
Digital Control Digital Co	Table Principle Principl	MURCHAY JUNESTONE UT MiGMT COSC 100 983 121 40 122.90 + 0.70 1.86 Accument Nature Network 102.40 112.50 + 0.70 1.86 Accument Nature Network 102.40 112.50 + 0.70 1.86 Accument Nature Network 102.40 112.50 - 0.10 6.85 Accument Nature Network 102.40 112.50 - 0.10 6.85 Accument Nature Network 102.40 112.50 - 0.10 6.85 Accument Nature Natur	SMITH & WILLIAMSON OF SMERS UT71 637 6377 Austrian 511 20 548 90 + 6.50 Capital 164.80 174.30 + 110 108 Capital 164.80 174.30 + 110 108 Cab 179.52 + 007.58 1 Escopatal 195.70 202.70 - 0.80 0.22 For Dealem 174.00 184.00 + 1930 Gaussin 185.00 195.50 + 1.40 1.41
Paragraph Stage	French Growth 169,80 119,90 0.00 40-Access 120,00 119,50 0.00 186	MPT MATTHAL LIMIT MERRE LTD	Income Advis Acc. 49.55 4.991 4.04 1.18 IK, Equily Cith Acc. 117 40 124.55 1.50 1.50 Premise inc inc. 51 44 52.47 -0.10 6.90 Internation for inc. 52.45 52.66 -0.10 6.90 Internation for inc. 52.45 76.21 +0.30 1.50 IK City In inc. Acc. 66.14 62.05 +0.00 1.97 IK City Inc. for the condition of the condition o
American instanto 75.89 81.970 + 0.67 1.99 1971 407.998 Condense 11 199 1972 407.998 Condense 11 197 1972 1972 1972 1972 1972 1972 19	April		FT Japan (year) 194.20 255.10 + 3.40 FT Japan (year) 1851 3079 3271 - 0.012 0.97 STEWART ANDRY LIMIT TST BARRYS LTD 1931 225 2271 Japan 1952 325 - 1250 291 Japan 1952 325 - 1250 291 Japan 1952 325 - 1250 291 Japan 1970 1276 9 + 2.20 Japan 1970 1276 9 + 0.70 0.99 Japan 1970 1276 9 + 0.70 0.99 Japan 1970 1276 9 + 0.70 0.99 Japan 1970 1276 9 + 0.70 1976 Japan 1970 1276 9 + 0.70 115 Japan 1970 1276 9 + 2.20 115 Japan 1970 1276 9 - 2.20 115 Japan 1970 1970 1970 1970 1970 1970 1970 1970
Prison 325 91 1 12 40 137 50 1 137 50 1 137 50 1 137 50 1 137 50 1 138 50 1	Logicall is the market leader in the provision of telephony call management services. We provide the most cost effective route for your business calls at the highest	-th- Accura 161 11 171 19 + 0.24 0.34 Currentlly 122.90 161 49 + 0.80 Currentlly 122.90 161 49 + 0.80 Currentlly 162.95 161 171 181 181 181 181 181 181 181 181 18	SUN ALLAMOSE URIT TST MASHT LTD Englanes (1277 227 2000 beating, 1277 890 386 Englanes (1277 227 2000 beating, 1277 890 386 Englanes (1278 227 386 500 + 1500 1 56 Mash America (1270 174 900 - 1 140 Weeds Board (1270 174 900 - 1 140 Weeds Board (1270 174 900 - 1 140 Weeds Board (1270 174 900 + 2 44 0 0 77 Englanes (1270 194 900 + 2 44 0 0 77 Englanes (1270 194 900 + 1 2 70 UN Lussing Case (1270 100 100 600 + 1 2 70 UN Lussing Case (1270 100 100 600 + 1 2 70 High lice Stored (1270 100 100 600 + 1 2 70 SUN LUFE OF CAMADA UT MISTES LTD UNION 522-775
BARCLAYS UNICORN LTD BRING AYS UNICORN LTD DITIS 522 4000 Babased laws: Gent 8 file 10: 503.60 535.80 + 6.00 1.55 Essepana Bull 10: 57 43 101.001 - 0.10 5.01 Served 10: 10: 10: 10: 10: 10: 10: 10: 10: 10:	Quality. To find out more call Free on 0800 279 1990.	GRI & Connectible 112.79 118.727 + 0.21 6.16 1 18.727 + 0.21 6.17 6.17 6.17 6.17 6.17 6.17 6.17 6.1	Washinded 649 46.47 57.84 + 0.52 611
Property	- dis-Accum	Ground Persistate 78,144 55,281 + 0.04 100 1	-00-Accomm 410.06 494.777 + 2.64 1.086 1.006 1.0
Ligan Greath 179-W 179-W 199-W	24 Semble 114 10 12138 177 358 Smaller Ges 98.25 104.22 + 0.00 121 See Spart 30 hc. 63.22 64.05 - 0.05 140 See Spart 30 hc. 63.27 64.05 - 0.05 140 See Spart 30 hc. 63.22 64.05 - 0.05 140 See Spart 30 hc. 63.22 64.05 - 0.05 140 See Spart 30 hc. 63.29 64.25 - 0.05 140 See Spart 30 hc. 63.29 64.25 - 0.05 140 See Spart 30 hc. 63.29 64.25 - 0.05 140 See Spart 30 hc. 63.29 64.25 140 See Spart 30 hc. 63.20 65.20 64.25 140 Spart 10 hc. 79 9 9 9 44.2 64.2 65 See Spart 30 hc. 79 9 9 44.2 65 See Spart 30 hc. 79 9 9 44.2 65 See Spart 30 hc. 79 9 9 44.2 65 See Spart 30 hc. 79 9 9 44.2 65 See Spart 30 hc. 79 9 9 44.2 65 See Spart 30 hc. 79 9 9 44.2 65 See Spart 30 hc. 79 9 9 44.2 65 See Spart 30 hc. 79 9 9 64.2 65 See Spart 30 hc. 79 9 9 9 9 9 9 9 9 9 9 9 9 9 9 9 9 9 9	Company 134-01 755-19 14.70 17.2	0131 469 4000 034 500 200.36
Public GB	September 1985 19	1972 1972 1973 1975	Consider Income # 31 02 53 42 4 35 1 40 40 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1
Comparison Com	Math American 150.00 164.04 2.40 170.05 170.0	PORTITIOUS RIBID MARIAT V.TO Enr. DITT 1838 0808 fbg 10277 690 499 Aso Arc. Sam plant Arc. 44,04 5528 - 0,34 0,35 Enr. plant Arc. 44,04 5528 - 0,04 0,05 Foot of Fred Arc. 42,04 5528 - 0,05 High leaves of 57,59 2250 69 + 0,41 0,05 High leaves of 57,50 2050 69 + 0,41 0,05 High leaves of 57,50 2050 69 + 0,41 0,05 PRINCIPAL UNIT TRUST MIGHT LTD DITTS 240 700 Dealing (1900 262 445) Resident Infrared St. 130 1300 + 0,50 Enr. Sac St. 113,00 1300 + 0,50	Pees & Chelci
CAZENCINE LIMIT THUST NIGHT LTD DIT 606 9706 (Cazenet Pathole 12 70 1/9 61 + 0.94 208 (Asserted Pathole 15 70 1993 + 113 076 (Bernath 15 70 1993 + 113 076 (Bernath 15 70 1993 + 254 0.41 (Bernath 15 70 1993 + 254 0.41 (Bernath 15 10 1993 + 254 0.41 (B	-80-Access 173.90 623.70 + 710 0.20 Heb Yelds 201.20 20100 + 210 5.26 Heb Heb Stores 175.90 175.00 175 0.20 Heb Heb Stores 175.90 175.00 175 0.20 Heb Heb Stores 175.90 175.00 175 0.20	For fixed 41,270 440,100 + 1,00 0,14 40,000 + 2,00 0,25 40,45 40,40 40,000 + 1,00 0,14 40,000 + 1,00 0,14 40,000 + 1,00 0,14 40,000 + 1,00 0,14 40,000 + 1,00 0,14 40,000 + 1,00 0,15 4,25 14,00 0,15 4,25 14,00 0,15 4,25 14,00 0,15 4,25 14,00 0,15 4,25 14,00 0,15 4,25 14,00 0,15 4,25 14,00 0,15 14,	Source. FT Information Yeard connected as CAR (Compound Annual Return), 1 for Middent & Middle price; No significant data. Periode: Charge deducted from capital; @ East Charge

صكنامن الأصل

while in the

My, T-Rex, what blunted teeth you have

In The Lost World, Spielberg returns to his primeval cash cow. Geoff Brown is glad when the journey is over

Park caused mouths to drop, teeth to clench and knuckles to whiten. Computer-generated dinosaurs stampeded across the screen, crushing and chewing human beings and props. The film gave audiences some of the thrills that Roman crowds must have felt watching Christians thrown to the lions.

to the laws

District the Party of the Party

Similar stampedes occur in The Lost World: Jurassic Park, but the effect is different. Been there, done that. One

Partly, this is the price paid by Steven Spielberg, the novel-ist Michael Crichton, and their crew for relying so much on special effects at the expense of stories and characters. No technology stands still in Hollywood, least of all the business of computer-generated images. So the dinosaur lineup - among them the mighty Tyrannosaurus Rex, the nasty velociraptor, and the compsognathus, a pint-sized nuisance -- is paraded and juggled with even greater ingenuity than before.

But the intervening years of imitative, inferior product have removed the creatures' movelty. The excitement gone, we are left to contemplate the script's bare bones, and await the rustle in the tree tops or thundering foot that indicates carnage ahead. There is also time to contemplate the roundabout of Spielberg's career. which spins from Schindler's List, in praise of the survival instinct, to a film that lusts for its characters' death.

So who are the humans fed to the dinosaurs engineered on a Costa Rican island close to the original Jurassic Park site? Lord Attenborough, as the theme park's deviser John Hammond, takes a back seat, having lost control of his InGen corporation (along with - off the ground. Like too many all trace of his Scottish accent). But Jeff Goldblum returns as Ian Malcolm, the quirky chaos mathematician upgraded from comic commentator to People shouldn't be where dinosaurs are," he muses. Yet he puts himself in the line of fire to document the dinosaurs left to run wild after a hurricane destroyed the scientists base. He has sentimental reasons among others; palaeontologist girlfriend Julianne Moore is on the spot, a dinosaur's meal in waiting:

There are other newcomers sitting pretty: Goldblum's stowaway daughter (mulatto. to suit PC requirements). InGen functionaries and the ubiquitous Pete Postlethwaite as a big-game hunter hired to charm of a wan, cloying kind.

years ago, Jurassic catch species for a new theme park in San Diego. Sophisticated acting is neither required nor supplied. These people exist only to be men-aced, chased through foliage, pushed off a cliff, or ripped to > Spielberg can engineer shocks with the best, and knows all about the sentimental potential of a wounded baby T-Rex, bandaged by doting humans. But the monotony remains considerable. and one heaves a sigh when the Lost World cast, T-Rex and all, flies back to America for a finale heavily dependent on King Kong. At least the scenery is different suburban homes, city streets, the classic

The Lost World: Jurassic Park Empire, PG, 129 mins Routine return of

Lady and the Tramp Warner West End U. 76 mins Mildly enjoyable Disney revival

Remember Me? National Film Theatre PG, 81 mins Lukewarm farce from Michael Frayn

The Butterfly Effect ABC Swiss Centre

12, 109 mins Continental high finks come to south London

Hollywood background for a monster running amok.

fails to lift this blockbuster far movies, The Lost World is no living organism, but a machine, factory-assembled from existing blueprints and dupli-cate parts. Those who settle into their seats with high expectations and a bucket of popcorn may well get caught up in its cogs and wheels. But under the high-tech surface so much of the film is routine that even rabid Jurassic fans might begin to recognise dinosaurs limitations as movie stars:

seen one, you've seen them all. The Lost World appears to have frightened off other films this week. Even the latest Disney revival is one of the master's lesser works. Lady and the Tramp, the studio's first CinemaScope cartoon, released in 1955, has plenty of but little humour or action. Penole tend to remember details -- the dogs chewing different ends of the same string of spaghetti - but struggle to recall the plot.

The plot fades from the memory even as you watch: was it something about a roving mongrel who comes to the aid of a pedigree spaniel left to the mercies of a nasty aunt while her owners are away? The setting is a period one (early this century, in New England), although no benefit comes from that. At least the best songs are recognisable. Bella Notte sing the owner and cook at Tony: Italian restaurant as Lady and Tramp buckle down to spaghetti. meat balls and romance. Two Siamese cats. voiced by Peggy Lee, who cowrote the songs, warble We are Siamese if you Please as they mess up the house and pin the blame on Lady. The animation is prosaic at times, but moves on to a higher plane for the climactic scenes of the city at night, when the Dog Catcher's wagon is chased in the dim moonlight across muddy streets.

s for the characters, whether human or canine, they lack .edge. Ladylike Lady and the roguish Tramp make insipid heroes. Stan Freberg's voice makes hay with the Beaver, enrolled by Tramp to free Lady's muzzle, but the Dog Catcher - a figure of comic evil in the later One Hundred and One Dalmatians — is an opportunity missed. Lady's owners spend most of the movie out of town; just as well, some might say, since their names are Darling and Jim Dear. The whole concoction is tuneful and wellproportioned; adults and will be twiddling their thumbs. Thirty years ago, Michael Frayn wrote a television play called Jamie, On a Flying Visit, in which Jamie, a rich social gadfly, suddenly looks up a college girlfriend trapped in marriage and suburban routine. The dust blown off, the contents reworked, the "People shouldn't be where dinosaurs are," muses Jeff Goldblum (right). Tyrannosaurus Rex adds weight to his words in The Lost World Me?, a lukewarm low-budget comedy financed by Channel 4. The old boyfriend (Robert Lindsay) still disrupts suburhitmen on his trail. The British supposedly are good at comedies; this one was filmed, in part, at Ealing Studios. But you expect more than scattered chuckles from the man who wrote Noises Off and the film Clockwise. The farce machinery is all in place: comings and goings through doors, imagined improprieties in bedrooms and bathrooms. The energy to set it in motion is not. Maybe the characters are too crippled by the feelings of waste and disillusionment that Frayn, the thinking per-son's farceur, piles on their shoulders. Lorna and Ian, the suburban couple (Imelda Staunton and Rik Mayall), are bia - West Byfleet, in outer

London — but this time he is skint, with a shady past and struggling for every penny, while Lindsay's polished exterior and Rolls-Royce hide exquisite desperation. direction of Nick Hurran adds to the weight of doom: he lets scenes sag while spending time draping exteriors of the semi-detached house in fancy shots best suited to Dracula's headquarters.

the cast of familiar faces buckles down to the task, looking hafrantic while rattling off Frayn's concise dialogue. But compared to Frayn's theatrical comedies of middle-class life, Remember Me? is something no one is likely to remember for long. Spanish-language comedies set in London housing estates do not come one's way often. so for novelty's sake alone the welcome mat should be put out for The Butterfly Effect. The director, Fernando Colombo, is known locally for his comedies and, despite the London setting - one of the characters is a student at the London School of Economics - he seems not to have banked on any international audience for this thinly amiable affair. Luis (rock singer Coque Malla) is the straitlaced LSE student who unbuttons sufficiently to bed his aunt (Maria Barranco, one of Almodóvar's Women on the Verge of a Nervous Breakdown). Mother. meanwhile, fleeing trouble in Madrid, lands in the arms of the English neighbour, a Star Trek freak (dependable James Fleet). Once in a while characters address the camera about the chaos theory; but any philosophy or cultural insights make little headway among

'Mouthwatering' Every week, young film fans discuss the latest releases . . .

☐ THE LOST WORLD Damian Samuels, 20: A film of epic proportions that quite frankly knocked my socks off. Tim Thoraton, 21: Pure mouthwatering, entertaining value for money. Leslie Isaiah Thomas. You don't perhaps expect complex characterdeep, isation, but Julianne Moore managed it. Sarah Crook, 18: The most enjoyable film of the year.

☐ LADYAND THE TRAMP Damian: Not the best from Disney, but all the same it leaves you panting for more.
Tim: Anyone under ten will Leslie: You'd be barking mad to miss it. Sarah: I was deeply touched by its innocence. THE BUTTERFLY EFFECT Damian: Watch out for the witty bingo scene. Tim: A groovy little comedy. Lestie: An average comedy. Sarah: An excellent performance from James Fleet.

Riding the crest of a new Irish wave

Luke Clancy

picks the highlights

from Galway's

film feast

way of some appealing voice-over work from Rea, who also helps out as Francie's troubled

This is one of Jordan's quieter, smaller Irish pictures. The director finds roles for

Brendan Gleeson, Sean

Hughes, Ardal O'Hanlon,

Fiona Shaw, Rosaleen Line-

6 For £1

each the children got a neat movie

with a moral punch 9

han, and even Sinead O'Connor as a decidedly untrustwor-

If Jordan has been scrupulous about spreading the work

thy Virgin Mary.

musician father.

nally to have found the confidence to do without the stories of sectarian strile, country life and coming of age which for too long have been their mainstays. Fresh subjectmatter was so noticeable at this year's Galway Film Fleadh that there were guarded mentions of a "new wave of Irish film-making", with one director even offering a Gaelic neologism, "Nuascannan". which brusquely translates as Laid out at the Fleadh, undoubtedly the premier harvest festival for Irish film, was an impressive range of movies. Offerings ranged from the first film made by an Irish director at Roger Corman's West of Ireland studios, a meat-and-two-veg exploitation movie called Criminal Affair. to Tom Collins's languorous Derry tearjerker, Bogwoman, a kind of Distant Voices, Still Lives with petrol bombs.

Back in the old film world or "Seanscannán" (two can play at the neologism game). the Film Fleadh's Neil Jordan retrospective took in ten films, from 1982's Angel, featuring Stephen Rea, right up to the world premiere of his latest, an adaptation of Patrick McCabe's The Butcher Boy. also featuring Rea.

In the latter, set in Fifties ireland, the always wilful Francie Brady (played by the child actor Eamonn Owens) is not dealing at all well with the death of his mother and father, nor the desertion of his best friend. He withdraws further and further into an imaginary world, until he begins to act out the vicious fantasies of comic books and pulp TV on his schoolmates and neighbours. Jordan pulls off the difficult trick of translating the book's sprightly, unhinged interior

monologue into cinema by among a large Irish cast, one actor seems determined to do the work of ten. Brian F. O'Byrne, who gathered a large sheaf of excited reviews for the roles he played in all three parts of the Druid Theatre's production of Martin Me-Donagh's Leenane trilogy, > film sets this year. O'Byrne is the lonely provincial guesthouse keeper at the centre of The Fifth Prov-Frank Stapleton, a gently han- effort is hard to figure.

seems to have been absent from remarkably few Irish films and storytelling. Timmy (O'Byrne) is nagged by his mysterious mother, misunderstood by his alcoholic birdwatching shrink (Ian Richardson) and pursued by a disturbed European filmscript doctor, played with relish by Lia Williams.

some cultural activity in Ireland lately that did not feature O'Byrne, Graham Jones's How to Cheat in the Leaving Certificate has a cast of young actors and was put together with the assistance of schoolchildren throughout Ireland, many of whom were happy to respond to the director's request for a contribution of El towards its making. For their 100 pence the kids get a neat, tense, low-budget black and white heist movie that delivers an unexpected moral punch.

Not everyone who put money behind this year's Irish film crop received nearly such impressive rewards. On the roll of dishonour were the stalled Mia Farrow vehicle, Angela Mooney Dies Again, a sloppy and eventually shambolic would-be allegory of contemporary ireland. Another equally mistaken venture was Snakes and Ladders. Directed by Trish McAdam and set among a group of whineysomething Dubliners. McAdam's film offers a rough rebuke to all those who want to make films while having next to nothing worth saying. and little better than harnfisted cinematic language in which to say it. Why or how the Irish Film Board involved

O'Byrne also hops aboard Johnny Gogan's enjoyable punk nostalgia story. The Last Bus Home, playing the Geldofesque lead singer of aspiring snot and feedback superstars, The Dead Patriots. There has, of course, been an antique. A rental release. MOTHER NIGHT Entertainment, 15, 1996

NEW ON VIDEO Space worth watching

the hanky-panky.

MADE just before science fiction films grew top-heavy with special effects and selfimportance, John Carpenter's wonderful cornedy about spaced-out spacemen cursed with a troublesome ship bounces along with absurd humour, economical set designs and old-style élan. Carpenter began work on it as a film school project; after it, the big time beckoned.

BOUND Fox Guild, 18, 1996

TWO screenwriting brothers turned directors, Larry and Andy Wachowski, make a flashy bid for cult status with this brazen movie that tries to disguise a standard, grubby thriller about gangsters, molls and Mafia money with fancy close-ups, designer violence, and the posturings of two sultry lesbians. Attention may be grabbed for a time by the Wachowskis' cheek, as well as Jennifer Tilly and Gina Gershon checking out each other's tattoos. But not for long. Available to rent.

III DRACULA: DEAD AND LOVING IT

PolyGram, PG, 1996 TIME and fashion has passed Mel Brooks's burlesque comedy by, but the maestro does not seem to have noticed. This is his latest attempt to recapture the glory days of Blazing Saddles. Leslie Nielsen, dressed in a fruity white wig, is the blundering bloodsuck-ing hero, who falls downstairs on his first appearance. Marginally better than its predecessor, Robin Hood: Men in Tights, although the heavy humour and ponderous cutting still make the film seem

ABSORBING adaptation of Kurt Vonnegut Jr's novel, with Nick Noite as an American to masquerade as a Nazi and draws the best from hi cast. Noite is excellent: John sympathiser and pays the consequences after the war. Director Keith Gordon does Goodman, Sheryl Lee and Alan Arkin also stand out in Vonnegut's parade of devious humanity. Available to rent. nothing to ease us over the jolting shifts from comedy to drama, but he still treats his ■ RANSOM knows enough to hire actors alert to subtleties. Tension sags halfway through, then the play of character and psychology puts the film back on track. Available to rent.

Mel Gibson leaps into action in the hit thriller Ransom

Buena Vista, 18, 1996 MEL GIBSON'S millionaire airline boss finds his son kidnapped by Gary Sinise, and goes on TV to offer a fat reward for the kidnapper's head. The script, derived from a TV play and film from the mid-1950s, gives the main characters lots of shading, and the director, Ron Howard.

GEOFF BROWN

THIS

him the towering figure he became, and surely Balanchine would not have been Balanchine if he had stayed at

To see the Kirov dance

Balanchine, which they have recently started to do, is to see the inheritors of his St Petersburg Classicism meet head-on the Neo-Classicism of his exile. It is important for the Russians to wake up to Balan-

DANCE

chine and all that he implies.

but it is not yet a happy is one of the greatest of all Balanchine works. Created in 1947 for the Paris Opera, it is an exorbitant display of classical dance, dazzlingly grand in its manner and breathtakingly symmetrical in its architecture. Grandeur and symmetry are second nature to Kirov dancers; what is not in their blood is the speed and incisiveness that Balanchine's language demands. Today's

Kirov legs are not strong enough, their feet not sharp enough for Balanchine.

Phrases are fudged, and the dancers do not have the time to enjoy what should be a

Of the four ballerinas on Tuesday night — one assigned to each movement -- Uliana Lopatkina was well suited to the dreaminess of the second movement, while the third movement's Diana Vishneva

- one of the very best of the new breed — was the only one who understood that as much as Balanchine was looking sparkling virtuosity.

Symphony in C (set to Bizet) relationship.

home.

ALMEIDA OPERA: The conte opera anompose continues with the British premiure of Helmut Oehring of Dokumentation 1 seconds Dokumentation 1, an original piece of music theatre exploring deatness. The work fuses rock, lazz, classical and contemporary music.

Almeida Theatre, 108 Almeida Street, N1 (0171-359 4404) Tongfit and omarrow, Bam 🖾

ROMAN SRITAIN: Archaeological treasures deling back to the Roman occupation of Britain will be on display for the first ture in the magnificent new Weston Gallery which opens toda British Museum, Great Russell S WC1 (0171-636 1555), Mon-Sat, 10am-5pm, Sun, 10 30am-6pm 🔊 THE LEENANE TRILOGY. Family life is no comby bed of sharmook in the

is no coming be a sharmout him to Commaniara village of Martin McDonargh's thiogy: a mother from hell and her desperale daughter (The Bounty Queen of Leenane), first seen in London last your, mantat secrots the seen of Leenane (A Stutt In the second of the second of the the the second of the the second of the second revealed in the cemelory (A Stuff in Connormana), a pair of equabbling Connumeration, a pass of sequebbling brothers living alono in their dead lather's house (The Lonesome West) Garry Hynes directs.
Royal Court (Dutke of York's), St Martin's Lane. WC2 (0171-565 5000) Opens tongett, Born Then Mon-Fn. Born, Titlings on Sat Pleasets from Ser.

Bpm. Trilogy on Sat. Beauty, 1pm; Skull, JUST BRECHT: After a successful run at Hampsteed's New End Theatre the German actress Eva Meir brings a German actreas Eva Mek brings a programme of poents and songs by her comparant, Bertolt Brecht, to Islangton for a timee-week run. Accomparated on the plano by the young Irish penast Conor Lineten, site sings many of the dramatics's famous songs set to music by Kurt Weel and Hans Ecter. King's Head, Upper Speet, N1 (0171-226 1916). Opens tongist, 8pm.

ALWAYS Believe it or not, the Kind and Mrs Sampson story set to music That alaming noise is Queen Mary howing in his gravo. Victoria Palaise. Victoria Street, W1 (0171-83, 1317) Mon-Sat, 730pm; mats Wed and Sat, 3pm.

ART: Henry Goodman, Roger Allam and Stanley Townsend in this exceptionally interesting drama about friendship, unspoken resentment and an almost all-white parring. Wyndham's, Charing Cross Road, WC2 (0171-369 1736) Mon-Sat, Spin; THE BLUE GARDEN: Ted Cran

☐ THE BLUE GARDEN* Ted Crag directs Jan Waters and Amanda Mealing in a new play by Peter Mottat, author of forus Ram, set in a ternously blue garden in 1940 to which a retugee from Europa comes for shellor Warehouse Dingwall Road, East Croydon (D181-680 4960), Yue, 6 30pm, Vired-Sat, 8pm Sun. 5pm Uniti July 27

THE HERBAL BED: Peter Whelan's La trace wheels a supplied by Kale Duchène plays Shakespeare's daughter and Christopher Hunter her Puntan inquision Duchens, Catherne Street, WC2 (0171-494 5075) Mon-Sat, 7.30pm, mats Wod and Sat, 2.30pm

KING LEAR Kathryn Hunter goes where no English-speaking actress has gone before into the filte role of Shakespeaking a common to the filter of the common of of Shakespeare's suffering monarch in a modern-dress, visionary production by Helana Kaut-Howson Young Vic. 66 The Cut. SE1 (0171-928 6363) Mon-Sat, 7pm mats Sat. 2pm.

☐ MARLENE: San Philips gives an attractive performance as the singer with the golden sheath dress. More NEW RELEASES

• GET ON THE BUS (15) African American males travel to Washington DC to the Million Man March. Contentious movie from Spike Lee. Curzon West End (0171-369 1722) FBtzv (0171-737 2121)

◆ MURDER AT 1600 (15): Wesley Snipes solves a White House murder Shipes to the With Diane Lane Director. Dwight Little Odeon Merbie Arch (0181-315 4216) UCI Whiteleys () (0990 888990) Virgins: Futham Road (0171-370 2636) Trocadero () (0171-434 0031) r (5) (0171-437 4343)

SELECT HOTEL (18): Gam. sometimes louching, talo of Pa flophouse life Director, Lauren

Boulinik ABC Swiss Centre (0171-439 4470) ICA (§) (0171-930 3647) SOMEONE ELSE'S AMERICA (15) Whensical adventures of Immigrants in Brooklyn with Tom Centrand Mile

Metro (0171-437 0757) SWINGERS (15): Folibles and галеа. Gate 👸 (0171-727 4043) Oder Kensington (0181-315 #279) West End (0181-315 #221) Renok (0171-837 3402) Ritzy (0171-737 2121) Virgin

3492; Fitzy (9171-737 218 Chelson (6171-352 5096) THINNER (18) Tedious and unpleasant vention of Stephen Fung sighting a gyppy TODAY'S CHOICE

A daily guide to arts and entertainment compiled by Marit Hargie

ELSEWHERE EXETER: The Nash Ensemble pays a visit to the Exetor Fostival, treating audiences to an evening of mediffucus sounds. On the programms: are works by Mazzari. Reports; Dobussy. Beethoven and Francian.

Church of the Holy Cross, Crediton (01392 499123), 7.30pm. FORT WILLIAM: Scottish Ballot ends

Toracht, Sat and July 25, 7.30cm WARWICKSHIRE: One of the high ponts in the summor rock dary, the Phoenix Festivel opens its gates today, Artists representing a wide range of styles will feature on eight stages. with one separate stage entire to comedy. Snead O'Conner, Jamuogusi, Orbital and David Bowie are just a few of the big names lined up to perform during this four-day

> Long Marston, near Stratford-upon Avon (0641 500 044) Ends Sun LONDON GALLERIES British Library Galleries Designer Bookbinders (0171-323 7111)

performance of Lorna Scott's new pleas Tam O'Shantier, based on Robert Burns's poem, and Vespril, rilluenced by Vord's opera I Vespril Scilliani. Blanco's An Aird (01397 7017077.

KENT: Bring a picric and something to

New it carrie a bearing of magic as Opera Bravo gives the first of three performances here of Verd's masterprede, Lin Travilate. The intimacy of one of England's most romantic pardens forms the perfect setting to

Nicholas Bone's new production. Scotney Castle, Lamberhurst, Turnbridge Wells (01892 891001)

Doubontoes (971-323 711)
Design Musestim: The Power of Erotic
Design (9171-378 6055)
Duthwich
Pleture Stophen Cox (9181-993 5254)
Kersten Schabert Eadweard
Muybridge (9771-531 (933)
Leichton Houses The Location Open Muybridge (9171-631 0031)
Leighton House: The Leighton Open (971-602 3316) Lisson: Jason Martin (9171-724 2739) Matilonat: Seurat and the Bathers (9171-747 2885) Robert Prime. Lothar Hompel (9171-916 6366) Tuter Elissorth Kelly (9171-987 9000) Whitechanal Cathr de Mondeum

THEATRE GUIDE House full, returns only Some seets available Seats at all prices

The rock duo Orbital play the Phoenix Festival successful than Parn Gerre's play. Lyric, Shaltesbury Avenue, W1 (0171-494 50-45) Mon-Set, 7 45pm: mats Wed and Sat. 3cm E A MIDSHIMMER NIGHTS DREAM: Rachel Kavanaugh's delightful production, alert to the comody and the mystery Ectivardian costumes Open Air, Regent's Park, NW1 (0171-486 2431) Mon-Sal, 8pm mats, vanous dates on Wed, Thurs, Sal In rep with

■ POPCORM: Ben Ellon's bistering comedy about movie volence A Tarantinoesque director get; his come-uppance when a couplo of serial Miles. (great playing by Patrick O'Kano and Dena Daws) blame him for their misdeeds. Laurence Boswell directs misdeeds, Laurence Boswell directs Apollo, Shafresbury Avenue, W1 (0171-494 5070), Mon-Sal, 8pm; mats Wed, 3pm, and Sat. 4pm

All's Well That Ends Well

THE SCHOOL FOR WIVES Pere Bowles both touching and comic as Moliere's deluded hero. Paul Daniels as his flicker-fingered servant. Directed by Comedy, Panton Street, SW1 (0171-369 1731) Mon-Sat. Bpm. mat Wed. 3pm. Sat, 4 30pm Until July 26

☐ SHE KNOWS YOU KNOW! The ☐ SHE KNOWS YOU KNOW! The story of Hylda Baker, music hell star but (putting 4 midby) a difficult woman, written and performed by Jean Fergusson, the bike-nding Marina of Last of the Summer Wine Bridewell, Bride Lane, off Fiset Street, EC4 (0171-936 3455), Mon-Sat, 7 30pm mat Sun, 3 30pm Until July 22.

SKYLIGHT: David Hare's withy and cogent play showing two morables at odds, either the worldly-use opposed to the idealise, or perhaps the cyneal matching the deluded Vasideville Strand, WC2 (0171-836 9987) Mon-Sat, 8pm; mats Wed and

E WATTING FOR GODOT Fels: Hall who directed the British premiere in 1955, directs Alan Howard and Ben Kingsley in a revival of Beckett's first and finest dirama. Old Vic, Waterloo Road, SE1 (0171-928 2651) Tonight, 7 30pm, In rep

LONG RUNNERS

Mousetrep St Martin's (0171-836 1443).

Others: Palactium (0171-434 5020).

The Phanton of the Opens Her Majesty 2 (0171-494 5400) Ticket information supplied by Society of London Theatre

CINEMA GUIDE films in London and (where indicated with the symbol ◆) on release across the country

curse With Robert John Burke Warner ($10171-437 4343)

◆ UNFORGETTABLE (15): Mis-hilled thriller with Ray Liotta and Linda Figrantino Director, John Dahl CURRENT

◆ CRASH (18): David Cronenburg opposes not commonate retrieve as crashes and sex. Chily exercise in perversity from J.G. Ballard's novel With James Spador and Holly Hunter ABCs: Sheffesbury Avenue (0171-336 6279) Tottenham Court Road (0171-636 6148)

◆ THE DEVIL'S OWN (15) New York e THE DEVIL'S OWN (15) New York cop Harrson Ford unwitingly shehers Brad Phi's IRA terrorist Foolish drama, directed by Alan J Pakula Odeons: Haymarket (0181-315 4212) Kensington (0181-315 4214) Setss Cottage (0181-315 4220) UCI Whiteleys (0.990 888980) Warner (0.01274-272 2000) Whiteleys (5) (0990 888990) Warner (5) (0171-427 4343)

◆ THE ENGLISH PATIENT (15) Map making Reigh Flennes smoulders with passion for Kinstin Scott Thomas, Eco gent, though not quite worth all the e. Director, Anthony Minghelia klean (§ 19171-628 8391) Curzon Maytair (0171-369 1720) Plaza (0890-888 990) Warner (0171-437 4343) ◆ THE FIFTH ELEMENT (PG): Flabby

◆ THE FIFTH ELEMENT (PG): Flabby schillegic from LLC Besson, with Bruse Wills as the laxi-driver who might save the world Empire (0990 888990) Groenwich (0181-325 3005) Odeons: Kensington (0181-315 4214) Martite Arch (0181-315 4216) Swiss Cottage (0181-315 4220) Risay (07171-737 2121) UCI Whiteleys (€) (0390 888990) Virgins: Chelsea (0171-382 5096) Trocadero (€) (0171-382 5096) Trocadero (€) (0171-382 5096) Trocadero (€) (0171-382 5096)

parents juggle lids and careers Beguing correctly with George Cooney and Michelle Pfeitter Clapham Picture House (0171-496 3323) Greenwich (0181-235 3005) 3323 (Greenwich (1) 181-235 3005) Odeons: Kansington (1) 181-315 4214) Leicester Square (1) 181-315 4215] Marbie Arch (1) 181-315 4216) Swiss Cottage (1) 181-315 4220) Screeny Beker Street (1) 17-935 2772; UCI Wildelaker eys 🛃 (0990 838990) Virgin 1 Road (0171-370 2636)

WHEN WE WERE KINGS (PG) loyous Oscar-winning portrait of the power Muhammad Afi, as he fights Seorge Foreman in 1974 Director, Leon Clapham Picture House (0171-498 3323) Virgin Haymarket (0171-839

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE'S ROMEO WILLIAM SHARESPEARE'S HOMEO
+ JULIET (12) Efferescent contemporary beatment, with Leonard's DiCapno and Claire Banes as the star-crossed livers. Divector, Baz Luhmann;
Odeon Mezzanine §, (0181-315 4215)
Warner (0171-437 4343)

Old boy network

ack in 1953 the hero and heroine of Sandy Wilson's Boy Friend sang that all they wanted was a wee nest in WCI: "I'll be sitting, and I'll be knitting, and so contented we'll be, in our dear little room in Bloomsbury." Well, 12 years later the same composer-librettist brought back the same characters in another musical and suggested that marriage and money had spoilt things. There is not a lot of sitting and certainly no knitting in Diworce Me, Darling. Instead, there is the hint of a brush with the ghost of a thought of adultery amid the curly stairs. tubular columns and Art Deco palm trees of the Hotel Paradis, Nice.

I am a fan of The Boy Friend. Given a drink too many. I can intone impressive chunks of A Room in Blooms-

> Divorce Me. Darling Chichester

bury, It's Never Too Late to Fall in Love, and Fancy Forgetting. But even Paul Kerryson's splendidly lively, colourful revival failed to convince me that the sequel matches the original as 1920s pastiche or, for that matter, as anything except an excuse for energetic singing and dancing. The problem, I think, is that where there should be a plot there are multiple holes. Hole one contains Ruthie

Henshall's Polly and Tim Fla-

vin's Bobby, old chams temporarily escaping their busy, distracted spouses. There is a Three soubrettes on a spree smile, an offstage dinner, a turn up, followed by three husbands who think their glass of champagne on balconies that, Private Lives-style, happen to be next to each wives are in England and are other, but nothing "silly". themselves on the razzle; but Then her husband and his that leads nowhere. The hotel wife unexpectedly materialise manager gets off with his in the forms of Andrew receptionist. Tony's sister does Halliday and Rosemarie Ford. ditto with a blimp called ffotherington-ffitch. Sailors You wait for the inevitable flirt with sailorettes, as does a misunderstandings to deepen maid with a waiter. So much — after all. look at the title but they evaporate in a couple cursory, unmotivated loveof twinklings and all is joy play occurs that if the Chichesagain. You must not expect ter ushers had jumped onstage and started canoodling with marital disillusion or ennui from Divorce Me, Darling. the box-office staff, we would So what can you expect? not have been surprised. Well, more dramatic holes, That's by no means all. Joan

Savage inexplicably struts onstage, wearing a Girl Scout uniform, trailing a hapless husband, and doing a cheery imitation of Wodehouse's fascist Spode. Peter Edbrook appears in cinema-commissionaire garb as the President of Monomania, and there is some hanky-panky involving him and Polly's Dad, who is a Mr Brown disguised as a Mr Jones and the husband of a nightclub singer called Madame K; but this particular hole is so inscrutable that 100 Yorkshire miners could not penetrate it. Yes, the evening is fun. Yes, skin of jungle orange and-green. And, yes, David Needham's choreography must be as good as any ever seen at Chichester, culminating as it does in a great swirl called Swing Time is Here to Stay. But Sandy Wilson was more hummable, comprehensible and touching in The Boy reckoned his masterpiece. .

Henshall is sweet Flavin debonaire. Ford feisty, and Liliane Montevecci terrific as a crooner swathed in a snake-

Friend. That is still likely to be BENEDICT backward in Symphony in C. he was looking forward too. The Russians are on safer ground with Giselle. On Tuesday night the Wilis of Act II were absolutely stunning, a riveting supernatural vision huminescent in the moonlight. the side down. Yulia Makhalina is a dreary and unmusical Giselle, with no muscular or emotional comph to her dancing. And her mad scene was crassly ineffectual - acting with a capital A There are still moments when you can see what a gorgeous stylist Farouk Ruzimatov is, although there are many more-moments when you can see how he slins in and out of character. His Albrecht began well, but it wasn't long before his twotiming Count forgot which story he was supposed to be

DEBRA CRAINE

VICTORIA PALACE 0171 834

"RAVISHEMS (CLASSIC FM, LBC & GLP) CLASSIC FM, LBC & GLP)

ALWAYS

3.00pm AIR-CONDITIONED

FINAL 2 WEEKS

To advertise

ENTERTAINMENTS

Tel: 0171 680 6222

or fax: 0171 481 9313

IPYNOHUALIS 860 1736/344 4444

BEST COMEDY rence Officer Asse

BEST COMES Eve Standard Am

· 1317/678 2003

All decked out: Liliane Montevecci is terrific as a crooner swathed in jungle prints

A sermon to the converted were a had seven colours but somewhere in the past 20 years the colour indigo dropped out and left us all with six. Perhaps it was C&A which pioneered this economy version but nowadays the six-colour icon, generally shown in parallel stripes, is the badge of Gay Pride. Sorry: Gay and Lesbian Pride. Sorry again: Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender Pride. Pride for short. This sweet-flavoured "musical celebration" by Eric Lane Barnes, a success in Chicago and Greenwich Village, escorts us through some of the experiences of being lesbian and gay. Bi's and transgenders find a mention only in passing, and though the emotions darken and deepen in the second half the pervading tone is calculated, too obviously, to please and charm.

Look at us, the five personable singers

Fairy Tales Drill Hall

seem to be saying: we just want to love, just want to tell our folks about our lovers, just don't want to be hit by homophobes. Audiences coming to this show, whether gay, lesbian et al on the one hand, or reeders" on the other, will be endorsing those basic rights. The show is preaching to the converted.

Yet at the same time the songs present sentiments and behaviour as pure as the six stripes radiating from a point above the singers' heads, as though they are appealing for our approval. "I'm looking for Mr Right not Mr Right Away" sings Jason Nolan, nicely expressing his hope for true love. Barnes finds a neat rhyme for the 50th State of the Union, when around his neck to explain that "We're open-minded and that's why we / Don't give a hula if you're gay."

Julia Early and Rachel Spry make a cosily witty double-act and, by contrast, Gareth Spook expresses eloquent tenderness in the exquisite song of parting, Hummingbird. Only Christians of the Burn-a-Fag-for-

Jesus sects make Barnes angry, but even their offences are contained within the privacy of a family mourning the death of a son "misled" — the usual twaddle — by older men. Ken Caswell's direction is decent enough, and the sight of a gentle cowboy fanning himself with his hat is a masterstroke. But I wanted more aggression, more in-your-face coarseness. In a word, more indigo.

JEREMY KINGSTON

Santagar Salah Oppor for refl

· ***

The second section is

A 1-1-1-1

n na ngaraga

OPERA & BALLET

COLUSEUM 0171 632 8300 UNTIL 9 AUGUST Eves 7 30 Sats 2 30 8 7 30 16 Aug 2 00 8 7 30) THE KIROV BALLET Last per! Torught GISELLE & SYMPHONY IN C Fn Sat (måe) THE SLEEPING BEAUTY Mon. Tue, Wed & July 2

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE 0171 304 4000 for Box Office & Standay mio NEW SEASON BOOKING NOW TELEPHONE INFORMATION DESK ON 0171 212 9123 FOR DETAILS

THEATRES

ADELPHI 0171 413 1777 (2415) . 3200 614903, 0171 920 3000 9SOLUTE PERFECTION!" Daily Mail Jerry Lewis

DAMN YANKEES 'A GREAT GLAMOROU GLITTERBALL OF A SHOW. Sunctay Times Sees 7 30 Mats Thors & Sat 2.30 Final perf at the Adelphi 9 Aug PETURNS TO LONDON IN SEPTI

ADELPHI ct 344 0055/429 1239 (E1 birg tea) CHICAGO THE DROP DEAD BROADWAY

LΠE Prevs from 27 Oct Coens 18 Nov ALDWYCH 0:71 416 600762! bkg

> 0171 420 0000 (24 hrs/no bing fee) Even 7 30, Wed & Sat male 3 "THE BEST ORIGINAL PLAY IN TOWN Herald Induse ALEC: MICCOWEN GAMBON "TOWERING PERFORMANCES* Evaning Standard

TOM & CLEM a new play by STEPHEN CHURCHETT Directed by RICHARD WILSON

LAST 2 WEEKS

1 lust End July 24

THEATRES

"The Utilinate Feel Good Show" Off Richard, The Sun
Standing DARRIEN DAY
Limited Summer Season
Mon-Sat 7:30 Wed 8 Sat Mats 2:30 led mats students 5 OAP's 12 50 APOLLO 2417 cc G171 494 5070 CT 0171 344 4444 (bic) less Grat 0171 494 5454 BEN ELTON'S

POPCORN "Fest, furny and downright sury" Evening Sancard A bloody good night out." F.T Mon-Sat 800pm Mats Wed 3 00pm Sat 4 00pm

APOLLO VICTORIA C. 0171 415 6055 cc 24hrs 017; 344 4444/017; 420 0000 Grps 416 6075/413 3321 Andrew Lloyd Webber's STARLIGHT EXPRESS THE FASTEST SHOW ON EARTH

Vitale knuckle runs 19 45 daily Tue & Saf Zom Projets from £12.55 CAMBRIDGE 434 5080/416 6060 344 4444420 0000 (+ 15 g Rei

Groups 494 5454 416 6075/412 332:/436 5568 GREASE NOW IN ITS STH FANTASTIC YEAR! Starring RICHARD CALKIN "A Monster HE" D Millor

To advertise ENTERTAINMENTS Tel: 0171 680 6222 or tax; 0171 481 9313

LIFE SUPPORT

Evgs Mon-Sar 8 Mars Wed & Sar 3 APOLLO LABATTS 80 as the bio g 0171 416 6083 oc no 15kg tee 344 4444/420 0000 Grps 416 6075 treephone 0800 614 903 SUMMER HOLIDAY

ALDWYCH 0171 416 5009 171 420 0000 (24m: ho big lee Previous from July 30 Opens Aug 5 at 7.00 ALAN BATES

A new play by SIMON GRAY Directed by HAROLD PINTER

Mon-Sat 7 30pm, Wed & Sat mad 3pm GREASE NOW BICG INTO 1996

COMEDY 0171 369 1731 5ves 8 Mars Wed 3 & Sat 4:30 THE PETER HALL COMPAN PETER BOWLES

CARMEN SILVERA HENRY MICGEE
PAUL DANIELS
IN Moliere s fuzitous cornedy THE SCHOOL FOR WIVES HIS IS AS GOOD AS IT GETS To advertise in ENTERTAINMENTS Tet 0171 680 6222

or tax 0171 481 9213 CRITERION 359 1737/344 4444 REDUCED SHAKESPEARE COMPANY in THE COMPLETE WORKS OF WE LIAM SHAKESPEARE (abridg At 37 Pays of 97 Minutes "Hillarlose" Times

Mat; Thur at 3 Sat at 5 Sun at 4. Eves at 8pm THE COMPLETE HISTORY OF AMERICA (abridged)
Tuesday at 8pm
Now Booking to Jam 98
AR CONDITIONED THEATRE

DOMINOON OF THESE 1825-1939 33360990 234623/6171 420 000 (biog tea) Grps 0171 416 6096/0171 312 1997/ 0800 614902 DISNEYS

BEAUTY AND THE BEAST THE NEW HIT MUSICAL ENUINELY GLORIOUS" D Tel 'A FEAST OF GOOD FUN" DAM Mon-Sat 7 31 Wed & Sat Math 2:30

DRURY LANE THEATRE ROYAL S oc : Bicc feet 24% 7 days 0171 434 5001-364 4444420 0000 Grps 494 54544413 3311/312 8000 MISS SAIGON "THE CLASSIC LOVE STORY OF OUR TIME NOW IN ITS

8TH EXTRAORDINARY YEAR

Ever 7 45 Mats Wed 8 Sat 3pm Good seats avail for Wed Mat & some perts - apply B.O. FOR TELEPHONE/POSTAL

BOOKINGS & PERSONAL

0171 494 5060 (BKG FEE)

DUCHESS BC/cc 0171 494 5075 (no big fee) cc 0171 344 4444/ 420 0000 (big fee) THE HERBAL BED

Peter Whelan's wonderful play love story, a moral thrifer and a COURTOOM CHAIRS
THRILLING...FAR AND AWAY HE BEST THING IN THE WEST END" 5 Ten Mon-Sat 7.30 Mars Wed & Sat 3.00 NOW BOOKING TO 4 OCTOBER FORTUNE 9C & CC 017: 836 2238/312 5033/494 5988 NOW IN ITS 9th HIT YEAR

OOPER HADLEY Senten HEF's THE WOMAN IN BLACK Adapted by Stephen Makastat The most thrilling and chilling play for years" 3 Mai Mon-Sat Spr. Mats Tues 3om Sat 4on

To advertise ENTERTAINMENTS Tel: 0171 680 6222 or fax: 0171 481 9313

GARRICK (171 494 5085712 1990) 434 5388 (co big feet Groups (171 494 5454 Winner of 19 Major Americs The Royal National Theatre Producti SLIZANNE CRIY BERTISH BARRY STANTON DONAGHY

AN INSPECTOR CALLS THRELLING...MUST BE SEEN "TWO HOURS OF ENTHRALLING, VISUALLY STUNNING DRAMAD Fal Mon-Fri 7 45, Sal 500 & 8 15 Wed mat 2:30

GIELGUD 0171 494 5040 LYRIC Statestary Ave 6:71 494 745 - x bicg fee: 1544 4444 (blog fee Exes 7 45 Wed & Sal mais 3pm SHOPPING AND F"ING by Mark Roverhill "A remarkable play" Time Out Eves Born, Mars Thur Spiri Sats Spiri SIAN PHILLIPS SINGLY STREET AN PAN GENES LAST 3 WEEKS Ends 6 August Creded by SEAN MATHEAS OVER 100 PERFORMANCES

HAYMARKET 930 8800 (no blog lee Eves 8 Mass Thur 3 & Sas 5 Exchange Theatre OSCAR WILDE'S LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN STERLY GLANIOROUS LAST 2 WEEKS HER MAJESTY'S 24tr 494 5400 dig fee: CC 344 4444420 0000 (fee 3cts 494 5454 413 3311/436 5588 AHDREW LLOYD WEBBER'S AWARD WINNING MUSICAL

THE PHANTOM OF THE OPERA Directed by HAROLD PRINCE NOW BIKE TO DISC 97 Ever 7 45 Mats Hed 5 Sat 3.00. Acoby to Son Ofice daily for returns

LONDON PALLADRAM BORCO 317: 494 5223344 4444 $7 $6 serv thigh 420 00000 Gras 517: 494 545364230200 AS FACEN OLIVER 3RD FREPRESSING LICHEL BART'S MAST BELE YEAR

S.Times Eves 7:30 Mars Wed & Sax 2:30 SOME GOOD SEATS AVAIL NOW FOR WEEKDAY PERFS LYCELAN 22 017; 656 1806 500 801/400 0000344 4444 (5 Set Grad 416 8078 TOM RICE & WOREW LLOYD WEBBER'S JESUS CHRIST

SUPERSTAR ends shivers racing down th spine" D Telegraph Ever 7 45, Mars Wed 3 Sal 3 di he creites lencated to! sel grid (r ⊶පෙන පය පරිප 13am-8cm) are bookable madeance Now booking to March 1998 Some seats and al door Mon - Fr

MARLENE

NATIONAL THEATRE BO 0171 928 2252: Gaps 0171 820 0741, 24hi eo bhg fee 0171 420 0000 CLLVIER Today 200 & 7 15. Tora 7.15 GUYS AND DOLLS be on a on a story and characters of Damon Runyon, music and lysics by Frank Losseer, book by Jo Swerling and Also Burnser and Abe Buttows LYTTELTON Ton't, Toreor 730 AMY'S VIEW a new play by David Hare Tourt 6.00 DIALOGUE: LADY IN THE DARK COTTESLOE Ton't 700 KING LEAR WHEN Shalespeare. Tomor 7.30 CLOSER a new play by Patrick

OLD VIC 0171 928 7618 26'rs 421 0000 ino blog be) THE PETER HALL COMPANY
"THE MOST CREICIAL
THEATRICAL EVENT OF THE YEAR" Michael Silington 7 days a week WAITING FOR GODOT by Surnoul Beckett Ton't & Set 7:30om & conta in re-THE PROVOK'D WIFE by Sir John Vanbrugh Sai 230pm, Tue 7,30pm & conta k

GRACE NOTE by Semuel Adameon Sun Spm, Mon 7.30pm & costs in rep WASTE by Harley Granville Berker Tomor 7 30pm & conto in rep THE SEAGUEL Engleh version by Teen Skopperd oday 2,30pm, Wed 7,30pm & conto list rep AIR CONDITIONED

24% 0171 344 444/420 0000 Grps 0171 413 3311/436 5588 THE ANDREW LLOYD WESSER: T.S. ELIOT INTERNATIONAL CAIS EVES 7.45 Mats Tue & Sat 300 LATECOMENS NOT ADMITTED MOTION PLEASE BE PROMPT

To advertise in ENTERTAINMENTS

Tet. 0171 680 6222 or bar: 0171 481 9313

NEW LONDON Drury Lane WC2 BC

0171 405 0072 CC 0171 404 4079

OPEN AIR THEATRE, pant's Park 486 2431/1933cz 344 4444 (24fts) (big lee) Eves 8pm Mats Today & Set 2.30
"Sign-interreted perf ton"t only Kies Me Kale Press from July 22 PALACE THEATRE 0171-434 0909 :: 2475 (big lee) 0171-344 4444 (big lee) Gips 0171 413 3311 THE WORLD'S MOST POPULAR

LES MISERABLES NOW IN ITS 12TH Eves 7.30 Mats Thu & Sat 2.30 Latecomers not admitted UNITED NO OF SEATS AWAY. DAILY FROM BOX OFFICE PHOENEX BO/CC 0171 369 1733 BEST MUSICAL

A Playershot Novello A WILLY RUSSELL'S BLOOD BROTHERS Brings the audience to his tee and rowing its approval" D his 10TH TRUMPHANT YEAR 545 7.45 Mats Thus 3cm Sat 4cm NOW BOOKING UNTIL JAN'S PICCADELLY 0171 369 1734 Mon-Tru 8, Fn & Sat 5-30 & 8-30 THE OFFICIAL MUSICAL

"A Show Fit for a King" Time "BREATHTAKING" Gdin Fit 5.30pm All sents 2 for 1 Tet: 0171 680 6222 or fex: 0171 481 9313 PICCADILLY 0171 383 1734/017 344 44440171 420 DUTE (240 IS) ADVENTURES IN MOTION

ELYIS

CINDERELLA hevs 22 Sept Opens 7 Oc LAYHOUSE THEATRE BO. 017 839 4401/cc 316 4747 (24hs) Bar: operat 6.45 LIMITED NO. OF SEATS AVAIL DAILY FROM BOX OFFICE

THE YIEST END PREMIETE OF ANTON CHERHOVS MIDSUAMES COMEDY THE WOOD DEMON COMOC HET OF SUMMER "NOT TO BE MISSED" F Times (Limited Season) Mon-Set 7,30pm Set 2,30pm

إعلة امن الماصل

PRINCE EDWARD 0171 447 5400 First Call 420 0100 cc 344 4444

Groups 420 0200 BEST NEW MUSICAL MARTIN GUERRE "A BIG MAGNIFICENT EPIC MUSICAL A GREAT EVENING OUT" S. Times NOW IN ITS 2nd YEAR

MARTIN GUERRE Bouble & Schonbergy WISICAL MASTERPIECE int Her Tab Mon-Set 7.45 Mets Thur & Set 8.00 NOW BOOKING TO FEB 1991 PRINCE OF WALES 0171 838 638 First Call 420 0000 or: $44 4444 Gape 420 0200 feephone 0600-6149(3) HOT FROM BROADWAY, AND

RGY TO ELECTRIFY A CITY." D. Mai uniy ayard wi MUSICAL SMOKEY JOE'S CAFE HE SONGS OF LEMER & STOLLER Described by Jerry Zairs --AMESPICAN GRAFFITI MEETS WEST SIDE STORY"E SM Mon-Sat 8001, Thu-6 Sat Mate 3001 REDUCED PRICE THURS MAT HOW BOOKING TO JAN 1998

AIR COOLED THEATRE

MEAN SMOKIN', EMOUGH

ROYAL SHAKESPRARR COMPANY LONDON (DIT) 494 5077) DUCHESS THEATHE! THE HERBA BED Ton't 7.50 STRATFORD (01788 286828/054) 541051 (24105) RSC STOPOVER for details 01789 414699 RST THE MERRY WIVES OF REDSOR Today 1.30 HAMELET Tox 17.30 SWANT LITTLE EYOLF Today 1.30

730

TOP: THE MYSTERIES: THE

PASSION Today 1.30 CONCERT York 730 ST MARTEN'S 0171 836 1443 Even 8, Tum 245, Sat 5 & 8. AGATHA CHRISTIR'S THE MOUSETRAP 45th YRAR

Shakepeare's Globe Theetre Opening Seeart 27 May - 21 September 1997 BO 0171 315 4703 (245xs) 0171 401 919 Henry V, The Win uasi-Sat 2ptm and 7.30pm Sun at 4pm STRAND THEATRE BOX Off & CC

(no lee) 0171 930 8800 no (okg lee) 0171 344 4444/420 600 noupe 0171 413 3321/0171 436 558 BUDDY The Buddy Holly Story "ERRLLIANT" Sin "BUDDY" Sui In "BIIDIY"

Mon-Thom 80 Pri 5.30 & 8.30 Smir 5.00 & 8.30
LL SEATS 1/2 PRICE PRI 6.30 PERF

Now booking 'S the year 2000 VALIDEVILLE (1171 896 9967 I Nighy Stella Gor Poyet Matienal Theatra SKYLIGHT The play of the de int Her Tifb by David Haro Carecian by factors For

BEL ELECTRIFY

"ART" A new play by Yasmiria Flaza.
Tiens, by Christopher Hampion
Fly, swim or elunio just to see Now York Times Eves 8, Mass Wed 3 & Sar 5 298,000 READERS OF THIS SECTION ATTEND THE THEATRE AT LEAST 2/3: TIMES

A YEAR, 152,000 GO TO THE THEATRE ONCE EVERY 2/3 MONTHS. To advertise in The Times theatre listings please call the entertainments team on 0171 680 6222 OI

All major credit cards accepted ...

- T (E)

April 1888

14. W

1 12 14

- :44 1.

Contactor.

T. 4.47%

79.00

fax 0171 481 9313.

1.44 84. 100 - 7 46 -9312

72.4

1.0 m 1 1.0 m Total Sun

4

406

- Si ...

MIN THE RESTAURANT TO THE REST

Meeting

Angelony in C

Online.

4.1

'It's not books that corrupt'

A novel about heroin has won a prize for childro's literature. Nicolette Jones asks teenigers for their reaction to the book

6 At the end of Junk you have the complete

picture 🤊

first glance it seems a ilsguided decision. Yesrday at the South Bank i London the Library Association Carnegie Award for "an outstalling book for children" was presend to Melvin Burgess for Junk (Adersen Press), a novel about two14-year-olds who are seduced byveroin.

The boo was selected from a shortlist the has already stirred media objetions (in, among others. The Guarian. Daily Mail and Mail on Sadav) to the darkness of its subject which included arm, bullying, and the deth of a child on an operting table. A similar keuffle ensued in 1993 ben Robert Swindells novel Stone Cold worthe prize it concerned serial killer who preed on the

Some people are prize awided, during its bi year of existence, to the lies of Arthur Ransom Walter de la Mare, Mary Norton and C.S. Lewis should honour ooks about these grim subjects. But the truth is that not one of its year's shortlisted books is sensamalising or irresponsible. It is a nistake to take umbrage without reading them. And the libraria judges of the prize, 13 member of the Youth Libraries Group insist that this year, as every yar, they all read every one of the 5nominations. These judges are exerts in children's books. They kow what children actually read, of just what adults think they sould. And this year the judges were specifically encouraged t test out books on children they new, and consider their respones.

Who were the librarian judges lookin for? At one point their whom guidelies say: "According to the Junk. genre the book and the age of the ader, the plot should be constructive in the sense that ... it produces a sense of having extended knowledge [or] emotional capacity, taking the reader a step forward, even, occasionally, into a disturbed state."

The guidelines also declare that the judges will be "not airaid" of difficult or controversial subjects. But they add: "We are not looking for political correctness, or issues. The wirmer has to be a good book, over any other consideration."

They certainly do not believe that the books on their shortlist are either depressing or at all damaging to young

And that view seems to be confirmed by the reaction of the children who have been involved in a remarkable "parallel" judging operation set up when the shortlist was announced in the spring. For some eight years the Carnegie has encouraged schools all over the country to "shadow" its adjudication, inviting them to read and appraise the shortlist and submit their own winner. Many of the schools have made the most of this suggestion, building extracurricular activities around the judging which have gone imaginatively well beyond its brief.

One such school is Wolverley High School in Kidderminster, Worcestershire, a mixed state secondary. Fifty pupils volunteered to join in the shadowing: 15 (aged between 15 and 17) were selected. They not only read and discussed the books, they also prepared a dramatic episode from each to perform to Year 9 pupils, who were also then invited to vote for the best book on the basis of the dramatisation. Eighty per cent of Wolverley's Year 9 (15-year-olds, at

By the time the children "shad-

علدًا من للصل

Out of darkness: a pupil at Wolverley High School, Kidderminster, reads Melvin Burgess's Junk, about two 14-year-old children who become addicted to heroin winner (with highly commended and commended runners-up), they had not only read the books, they had also discussed character, dialogue, themes and plot. They had spent 18 hours of their own free time in rehearsal for the dramatisations. They had thought about the books more than most schoolchildren think about their set texts. And they knew what they liked.

They thought that Elizabeth Laird's Secret Friends, aimed at eight to nine-year-olds and all about bullying, "dealt with grief really well". This was the book in which a child dies on an operating table. But there was no doubt about which book commanded their uniwhomatig book is aimed) voted for versal admiration it was Burgess's

They loved its multiple viewowers" met to choose their own points, its undidactic tone, its truthfulness. One girl, Andrea, said: "It has to be one of the best books I've read." Several pointed out that Junk is an unusual book about heroin addiction, in that it captures what attracts children to drugs - the glamour - and then tells the whole story. "At the end." said another pupil, Janis, "you have the complete picture."

Their discussion answered many of the objections to the judges' choice. Did they think its 14-year-old protagonists were too young? "We ve near Birmingham." said Kerri. "We know that there are 11 and 12year-olds sleeping rough on the streets there. The drug problem threatens children that young. And the book helped you to sympathise with them."

Is it suitable for children? Kerri thought that very young readers might be upset by some of the scenes. "But adults seem to think that if children don't know about drugs they won't do it. But we do know about it. We get to know from other sources."

Are they any more likely to take drugs because of reading it? If you read Junk you don't have to go and try taking drugs to find out about it." said one pupil. Another felt that reading the book was "so much more effective than having a teacher lecturing you".

Did they think it a potentially harmful read? "Being naive is more dangerous," said Louise. "It's not books which corrupt people," said Janis. "It's other people."

Then they voted unanimously for Junk as the outright winner. At that stage, they did not know that the adult judges would also choose it. They'll probably go for something gentler, but if they don't choose it they would be covering up the fact that a really good book could be useful," was one opinion, "Children should be given a chance to think for themselves." was another.

The argument for Junk's merits could not have been put better by the author himself, although he has painful experience of drug abuse at rather closer quarters: his brother was a heroin addict. "I think it's best if children don't hear about drugs for the first time from someone who is trying to sell them some," says Burgess. "Forewarned

He is not alone in thinking this. Drug Education Forum at the National Children's Bureau, says: "I believe that Junk should be part of every secondary school's drug education programme."

That is already starting to happen. Wolverley High School is now considering using Junk as one of its set texts in the classroom. And one of the pupils on the Carnegie panel has decided to stay on at school, instead of leaving to go to performing arts college, expressly in order to be able to join in next years shadowing

The pupils say that the whole experience expanded their range of reading and increased their wish to read for pleasure. It would seem that this year's Carnegie has already been a successful venture in encouraging literacy - and that Anna Lubelska, co-ordinator of the Junk has already done much more good than harm.

chitecturally enchant-Ang though it is, the lady Chapel at the east end Lichfield Cathedral does not have the most favourble acoustic for chamber msic. It could be worse, however the back of the high altar rms a kind of reflective screenbehind the performers . and, wile much of the sound seepsihrough the exquisite Gothi carving into the nave or dris up to the high vaulted roof, useful and distinctively spiritalised proportion of it does enetrate to the audience. it epends too on the sensitivity of the musicians involve. If neither Mendelssoms Piano Quartet in B mino, Op 3, nor Brahms's in A mjo. Op 26. was well chose for the surroundings.

Opportunity for reflection conscious of the problems.

Although the strings could probably have been more assertive in the Mendelssohn to compensate for the attenuation in the sound at the front of the platform, textural clarity was most conscientiously and effectively well preserved.

It is a pity that the 15-year-old composer didn't wait until he was at least 30 before writing what must be the longest finale in all his chamber works, but it was — onicaa imagine Messiaen's fascinating to hear how much Quartor here - the Schwbert of the mature musician was already formed, and already Ensemble of London was very

CONCERT

the Midsummer Night's Dream overture) irresistible.

The other work in the programme was one of the rare items of new music to be heard at the Lichfield Festival these days. Commissioned by the Schubert Ensemble of all be heard on this highly recommendable disc, in which the soloist is the young Finnish virtuoso Kari Kriikku. His refined tone and virtuosity --

the twin attributes mentioned in contemporary accounts of Bārmann — would surely have inspired Weber too: this is playing of quite exceptional quality by a master of the

The Finnish Radio Symphony Orchestra is conducted by Kriikku's compatriot Sakari

Oramo, Rattle's appointed successor in Birmingham,

though by way of a filler there is also a fine performance of

Weber's Clarinet Quintet in B flat major, where Kriikku is instrument

London, John Woolrich's piano quartet, Sestina, turned out to be ideally written for the

The ear, drawn into the atmosphere by the strings, was initially in fear of inappropriate sound from the piano, but the gentle chord clusters associated with its first entry were reassuringly in place. The poetry was sustained to the end, passing through for-mative but only vaguely defined allusions to music by other composers (helpfully identified by Woolrich as Debussy, Schubert, Beethoven Schumann and Stravinskyl to a fairly clear echo of the Monteverdi madrigal which not only gave the work its name, but which also fitted it so convincingly to the scene of its first performance.

Gerald Larner

AN EXCLUSIVE READER OFFER

THE SETIMES

50% off US trekking tours

Plus 20 pairs of return tickets to the US to be won his week, readers of The Times can enjoy ■ savings of 50% on a three-week adventure tour of north America with Trek America, the specialists in off-the-beaten-track adventures. Plus everyone who books a tour will be entered into a prize draw, courtesy of US travel specialists Flightbookers, with the chance to win one of 20 pairs of tickets flying with American Airlines who have up to 20 flights daily to any one of more than 200 US cities. Bookings must be made by Aug 31, 1997 when the draw will take place. The 50% offer applies to the Best of the West tour which includes horseback rides with Navajo Indians, biking, hiking or flying in the Grand Canyon and visits to Disneyland and Hollywood. When travelling to the USA, Flightbookers can pre-book all your travel arrangements, including flights, car hire, accommodation and insurance. For further information on US holidays with

HOW TO APPLY

Flightbookers call 0171-757 2000.

Call Flightbookers on 0171-757 2000 to request your Trek America and Footloose brochures. When you return your booking form, attach the four differently numbered tokens from The Times to the completed voucher, right, to validate your discount. (If you cut out Monday's voucher, still please use the address for Flightbookers, not the one printed on that voucher.) The 50% discount applies to the Best of The West treks originating at San Francisco and starting on September 17 and 24. October 1, 15 and 29, 1997. The normal cost is £715 but Times readers pay just £357.50. For departures on July 30, August 13 and 20, and September 3 and 10, 1997, a 20% discount is available off the normal prices of £715 to £756. Flights between the UK and US are not included in these prices. You can also get 20% off any other tour featured in the Trek America or Footloose brochures with treks lasting from seven days to nine weeks. Flightbookers insurance is compulsory with the above offers.

THE TIMES

American Airlines

THE TIMES TREK AMERICA VOUCHER
Attach four tokens from The Times and send this form, to: The Times Trek America Offer, Flightbookers, 177-178, Tottenham Court Road, London W1P OLX. The holidays are subject to availability, so hurry and book now.
Mr/Mrs/Miss/Ms
Sumame
Address
Postcode
Day Tel Evenings
If you would prefer not to receive information and offers from organisations carefully selected by The Times, please tick lying role of Georges Brown, minor and E flat major, along but, and has now been who returns from the Stuart with the Concertino for Clarisnapped up by Sony. net and Orchestra, Op 26, can

Getting the giggles on the ramparts

NEWCLASSICAL CDs: Simple opera; fine Weber; Russian piano sensation

Jon Higgins

BOLEDIEU La Damblanch Massis/Fake/Fouchecourt/ Naouri/Insemble Orchestre de Paris*k*finkowski

EMI 5 5855 2 (two CDs),

£30.99 ±

BOJELDEU'S White Lady is a ghost wich stalks the castle rampartsit midnight. Inevitably she trns out to be flesh and blog and sings in the soprano tgister. Add hidden treasure ind a few secret corridors to a plot which Scribe cobled together from a couple of /alter Scott novels, and La lame blanche becomes ope to the odd giggle. Nonetheles it notched up more than ,000 performances at the Open Comique in Paris during theirst 40 years of its life in the 1st century. That we mainly due to Boieldieu's core: simple and a bit repetitie, but very melodic and highlysingable given the right cast. MI has turned to the vetera. American tenor Rockwell lake for the high-

CDs reiewed in The Times on be ordered from in Times Music Shop en 345 023498

wars in amnesiac state. Georges recovers his marbles with the help of the Scottish folksong Robin Adair and also gets an attractive aria early on. Blake's voice is past its prime but he has a game shot at a part which really needs a light lyric tenor. Two young French singers are bet-ter: Annick Massis (who makes her Glyndebourne debut in Le Comte Ory on Sunday) as the White Lady. and Laurent Naouri as the villian. Very lively conducting from Marc Minkowski.

ORCHESTRAL

Barry Millington

Clarinet Concertos 1 & 2; Concertino: Clarinet Quintet Kriikku/Finnish RSO/Oramo Ondine ODE 895-2, £14.49

-JUST as Mozart had his Smiler, and Brahms his Mühlfeld, so Weber had an inspirational clarinettist acquaintance. In the latter case, was Heinrich Joseph Barmann (composer of the Adagio long attributed to Wagner), who drew from Weber three concertante works in

joined by the New Helsinki CHAMBER Hilary Finch

NOLODOS Piano Transcriptions Arcadi Volodos Sony SK 62691 £15.49  THE piano flavour of this month - and perhaps even longer, who knows? -- is the 25-year-old Russian pianist Arcadi Volodos, a healthily late developer who recently a single year, 1811. made his Wigmore Hall de-The two concertos, in F

For his recording debut, nothing too solemn too soon: Volodos will alienate himself from purists and endear himself to transcription addicts in a recital which moves from daringly bold performances of two unpublished pieces by Vladimir Horowitz to Volodos's own decorative musings on two Rachmaninov songs. Volodos's initial studies as a singer prepared him well for Liszt's Schubert transcriptions. One can almost taste the excitement of the invisible words in Aufenthalt and Liebesbotschaft, two wonderful examples of the power of transcription to metamorphose one composer's response to another, and liberate an entirely new creation.

Cziffra's totally manic transcription of Rimsky-Korsakov's Bumblebee is outdone only by Samuel Feinberg's outrageous antics with the Scherzo of Tchaikovsky's Sixth Symphony. Here, Volodos's playing would have been enhanced by a touch more fancy, and something of the brilliance and sheer flair he brings to his own transcription of Mozart's Turkish

* Worth hearing  Worth considering

March.

CHANGING TIMES

hortly after my release from captivity in Beirut I by Michael Burke for the BBC. We sat together in the library of the Travellers. The conversation turned towards the unusually unpleasant intrigue that had surrounded my attempts and the attempts of others to release

"Mr Waite," he said. "Was there never a time during your negotia-tions when you felt out of your

"Michael." I replied. "There was never a time when I felt in my

Five years have passed since that interview. Ten since the full force of intrigue hit with me with a blow that was to propel me back to Lebanon in a vain attempt to retrieve the broken threads of a donmed intervention.

Time is a great healer but the passing of the years does not erase the pain totally. When Hala Jaber, the author of this succinct analysis of the history and development of Hezbollah, first asked to see me I stalled, even though Terry Anderson urged me to see her. Now, with her book lying on my desk for review. I experience the same reluctance to re-visit old memories. Within its pages is a grim black and white photograph of the "Hostage Hilton" in the southern

This unfinished school, later used as a barracks, was where I,

An unbroken circle of violence problem lay with Iran. Others, with equal conviction, urged me to develop contacts in Syria and of course in Lebanon itself. Ms Jaher does a creditable job in attempting to examine the role of the different players, not only in relation to the hostage crisis but to the general politics of the region, and admits that there remains a considerable area of uncertainty as to "who did

HEZBOLLAH Born with a Vengeance By Hala Jaber Fourth Estate, £18.99 ISBN 185702-381-1

tages, was kept for the first weeks of my incarceration. This one picture brings memories flooding back to me. Memories of doubledealing, deceit and a loneliness that was so acute it was almost palpable. I remember, too, the utter bewilderment which I felt when relatives of yet another Western hostage would come to see me at Lambeth Palace in a desperate aftempt to get someone to do something on their behalf. Ms Jaber notes that a total of 17 different phantoms claimed re-sponsibility for the abductions ranging from "Islamic Dawn" to "Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine". That was one of the first problems I had to tackle. Who exactly was responsible for the abductions? Was there one overall group operating through a series of interdependent units and in pursuit of a common goal, or, was it simply a series of kidnappings organised by groups with either a loose attachement, or no attachWhen finally I was able to establish face-to-face contact (albeit blindfolded) with a group of the kidnappers, they would only admit and supply evidence that they held a small group of American hostages certainly would not tell me whom they repr-in tracing the history of Hezbollah. Ms Jaber, with first-hand exregion. illustrates the multifaceted strategies deployed by the principal actors in the ongoing drama: Lebanon, Syria, Iran, Palestine, Israel and of course a whole gamut of Western powers. It is this very fact that made, and continues to make, the political problems and consequent disasters facing the people of the region so compli cated and difficult to analyse.

In attempting to find an entry point into the problem, certain highly placed informants assured me that the key to the hostage The "truth" of events is, of course, interpreted in a variety of ways according to the position and about the situation in Lebanon. The various players acted and interacted one with another and the strands woven across the years have not always made an intel-This difficulty is well illustrated by an interview Ms Jaber conducted with the Shifte doctor who was used by the kidnappers as an intermediary and whom I met on several occasions. His memory of events in which I was a participant differs radically from my own. Is he telling the truth as he honestly remembers it, or is he suffering from that failure of accurate recollection that unfortunately afflicts all of us sooner or I have no doubt whatsoever that he is totally mistaken and that the more likely reason for his version of events is that he is attempting to paint himself in the best possible light, given the fact that he found means of knowing. One should recognise that he is not the only person in Lebanon to have "massaged" the facts. This small and not particularly significant event reminds me of what a mire of deception Lebanon was in the Eighties and how difficult it is for anyone to give an accurate rendering of events. The reader needs to keep in mind that in every interaction recorded in this book a plethora of games are being played out by individuals and groups who have mastered the skills across the ne of the significant values of this book is what it tells us about the growth and developments, the author tells us that members of Hezbollah reacted strongly against being called ter-rorists. Indeed they did and they often told me so. If we take it that the root of the word is terror and that a terrorist may be described as nyone who attempts to further his or her views by the use of coercive intimidation, then perhaps the grounds for objection begin to

At the same time, given some of the actions alleged to have been committed by Israel, America.

Syria and the other players n the region, can anyone escap this designation? Like the tragisituation in Ireland, the rots of Hezbollah extend back intolistant history. They involve a grup of people with little or no polical or economic power, united by a common religion and gridually driven into an extreme psition. The graphic accounts in the book of "terrorist" attacks whee individuals have been conviced of their immediate heavenlyreward are a chilling reminder of the power of religious ideogy to motivate the most inhinan of actions. It is the very terr itself, which is committed by a parties, that eventually takes (er and clouds the root issues.

I have long argued the terrorism is but symptomatical much deeper disorders in sociel. One of the problems is that the are and mistrust caused by terrosm prevents anyone from gettig to the fundamental issues.

At the end of her intrmative book Ms Jaher states whashe sees as the fundamental issue uccinc-ly: "So long as the West ad Israel continue to regard the prolem [of Hezbollah] as a crusad against terrorism they are in facilenying their own responsibility r fostering the conditions which are rise to Hezboliah, but as longs Israel continues to defy the interational decree which calls for the d of its presence in South Lebana, there is very little hope that theircle of violence will end."

Making a movie of his life

Nicholas Wapshott on the dark secrets of the father of film noir

The reputation of Fritz Lang as a master of early German cinema is largely overshadowed nowadays by his Hollywood years, when he brought psychological depth and visual artistry to a succession of American film themes, including the crime thriller and the western. But while he is revered as the father of film noir — where would Orson Welles have been without him? - it is his German work that ensures his place as a giant of the cinema. There were other Germans and. like Lang. Austrians breaking startling new ground in the early years of the century, among them Ernst Lubitsch, F. W. Murnau, Georg Pabst and Josef von Sternberg, But few can match's Lang's work at its best. Dr Mabuse. Gambler (1922). Metropolis (1927) and M (1931) film-making and among Germany's most important 20th-century works of art. despite Lang's pre-eminence, there has been a reluctance to grant him the credit he deserves. The French critics may love his dark, pulp films, but other Europeans tend to regret that he so quickly assimilated himself into the American way of storytelling, that his Hollywood films rarely give a hint of the full gothic extravagance of his German work. But more damaging to Lang's reputation is the questioning of the events surrounding his departure from Germany under Nazism. He was torn between his mother, who was Jewish, and his wife, who became a party member, and he is accused, at the least, of not leaving Germany quickly enough. Was Lang soft on the Nazis? Did Goebbels ask him to lead the Nazi film industry? Patrick McGilligan's judgment of Lang's behaviour at the most dramatic turning point of his career displays a respect for the truth which few movie biographers attempt. And his verdict on Lang is Lang liked to tell a story about his last night in Germany. He was at the avenging deity, and many first in his own words and then to devote a chapter to an analysis of its meaning and implications. Drawing on a wide range of scholarship, he brings out well how, over the centuries, the keepers of the tradi-rion have sought to soften the impact of these stories and sometimes to censor them out altogether.

He is particularly good, as one might expect, at disentangling the legal implications of many of the biblical terms and episodes, and at bringing out how different readings serve different political

Thus with the story of how

Jacob's sons Simeon and Levi take their revenge on Hamor and Shechem for the "rape" of their sister

Dinah, the Bible clearly condemns them through the mouth of their father: but revisionist scholars.

especially in Israel, have argued agendas.

His method is to retell the story summoned by Joseph Goebbels to a meeting in the propaganda ministry. Goebbels began explain-ing why his new film, The Last Will of Dr Mabuse, needed a few cuts and insertions to bring it up to Nazi standards. Lang felt intimidated, angry and anxious. Then out of the blue Goebbels asked Lang to head up the Nazified German film industry. Lang avoided making a decision there and then and decided instead he must leave the country without delay. As he sat sweating in his chair, he realised that the banks were shutting. And so, penniless and in fear of his life, he slipped onto the night train to Paris to the start of a life in exile.

Fritz Lang told the tale as if it were a movie. The setting, Goeb-and starkly fur-FRITZ LANG nished office, is The Nature of the pure German Ex-Beast plot echoes the heightened drama By Patrick McGilligan Faher, £30 of the psychologi-ISBN 0571 191754 cal thrillers Lang made his own. But reading the con-flicting accounts of the incident brought together by McGilligan it is difficult not to come to the conclusion that Lang was dressing up denial as hyperbole. There is little evidence the meeting took place at all; Goebbels did not think the encounter worth entering in his diary. And far from leaving the country immediately and penniless, it seems Lang took his time arranging his affairs before leaving

Germany for good. While those in Hollywood who remembered Lang from Germany always harboured their doubts about him, his ambiguous brush with Nazism did him no apparent harm in the industry. He worked consistently and well. The subjects handed down to him by studio executives suited him and he always enriched them with a psychological complexity which eluded others. This well-written account of Lang's life does credit to the career as a whole and offers an intelligent and persuasive argument to look again at Lang's films with a feeling

Metropolis: such scenes influenced a tradition of dark pulp fiction in art, film and video

onathan Kirsch, a Los Angeles The had the bright idea of bringing together and discussing some of those hibtical stories which priests Bible and rabbis and Sunday School teachers prefer to pass over in silence the incest of Lot and his daughters, the rape of Tamar by bashed her brother Amnon, the mysterious episode of God's seeking to kill Moses and being bought off by the quick thinking of his wife, who cuts off her son's foreskin and throws it

Gabriel Josipovici THE HARLOT BY THE

SIDE OF THE ROAD Forbidden Tales of the Bible By Jonathan Kirsch Rider, 117.99 ISBN 0712672095

that Jacob is mealy-mouthed and that Simeon and Levi are to be praised for their single-minded desire to avenge their sister. The Bible, suggests Kirsch, in fact offers us "two visions of the stranger and two approaches to dealing with him: one that exhorts us to make war, the other that encourages us to make peace and even, as the story of Dinah and Scheeehem may secretly suggest, make love." The trouble is that by relentlessly seeking out the sexual implications of what the Bible recounts, Kirsch too often trivialises these stories. This becomes painfully evident in his retelling of the stories, which is almost embarrassingly banal. 'Amnon relaxed his grip ever so slightly, then tugged sharply on her arm, and Tamar tumbled headfirst into his bed. He rolled on top of her, pinning her long legs with his own legs and pressing down on her hips with his own hips. Soon, only her head was free, and she whipped back and forth like a snake. The Bible merely has. "And when she had brought [the cakes] near unto him to eat, he took hold of her, and said unto her. Come, with my, my sister.' And she answered him: 'Nay, my brother, do not force me: for no such thing ought to be done in Israe!."

It is not just that the style Kirsch adopts is so Mills and Boonish; it is that the very fact of turning biblical narrative into a modern novel draws us into the psychology of the characters and loses precisely what is so rich, both artistically and theologically, about the spare objective narrative of the Bible.

His mentors, he readily acknowledges, are Harold Bloom, the author of The Book of J. and Jack ; asylum, while her country erupts in Miles, the author of God, A Biography, both of them books which have the same virtues and failings as his own. His third mentor is Joseph Heller, the author of God Knows, that wonderful novel about King David which manages to avoid nearly ail the pitfalls of the genre, interested readers should start there.

Some are less equal

METAMORPHOSIS has been a feature of novels since literature began: but the 20th century, for obvious reasons, has been more fascinated by it than most. Kafka's masterpiece is the greatest of Ovidian fantasies, but here is a best-selling French version by Marie Darrieussecq.

Pig Tales is narrated by a young woman who works in a massage parlour. Her burgeoning pig-flesh is at first appreciated by her clients. who indulee in "farmyard ways", and enable her to not only bring nome the bacon but least on flowers - a rarity, in a future of euros and social breakdown.

Eventually, the "poor dumb creature" becomes too porky to poke. She poses for a political poster. Take a perfectly healthy girl ... have her gain a smidgen of weight, tire her out and you'll see what I mean") then disappears, first into the underground, then to a lunatic corruption and cruelty. Finding love with a werewolf, she remains unenlightened but eventually pre-(#75 to stay as a pig in order to enjoy life in the country.

As fat is a feminist tysue, we may read into Pig Tales any number of tiresome messages which, with the rise of models like Sophie Dahl. now look somewhat dated. Women Amanda Craig undergo a natural metamorphosis during pregnancy: it is what happens inside the head that is more interesting. We are left with a book that has neither the bite of saure nor the swish of pornography.

PIGTALES By Marie Darrieusseeq Translated by Linda Coverdale Faber, 59,99 ISBN 0-571-19186-X

What is really objectionable about Pig Tales is the absence of beauty and pity which, as Nabokov observed, is the hall-mark of The Metamorphosis. Where Kalka's story minutely details the essentially insect-like patterns of behaviour and indifference within a petitbourgeois family. Darrieusseco has nothing new to say about lust and our animal nature.

Her combination of erotica, intellectual pretentiousness and melodrama is, dare we say it, peculiarly French. It is something the British reader will unerringly detect as pure hogwash.

Amanda Craig's A Vicious Circle is published in paperback by Fourth Estate, priced 45,99,

Dangers of the people's sovereignty Robert Blak

Burke's death. A number of books are being published to mark the occasion and a commemorative party has been given by the Burke Society in the Speaker's House by courtesy of the occupier. Burke is generally regarded as a great parliamentari-an, though in his day he was far from commanding the attention of his colleagues. He spoke at immense length in a strong Irish brogue, and became known as the Dinner Bell, because Members filed off for food and drink when he rose to his feet in the evening. But greater men and orators have had the same experience. Winston Churchill in the 1930s often found himself addressing empty benches.

Jim McCue, who writes for The Times, is a notable Burkean expert. He has edited and abridged in Conor Cruise O'Brien, whose Irish and political background made him such a percipient biographer. The quintessence is there, but one regrets the excision of the enjoyable correspondence between the author and Sir Isaiah Berlin. Mr McCue is himself author of an excellent book, the title derived from Burke's Thoughts on the Cause of the Present Discontents (1770) which was an attack on the excessive interference by George III in the House of Commons. There is no such threat from the modern monarchy, whatever some silly Old Labourites may say, But there is such a thing as the tyranny of the majority. Tony Blair at the head of a triumphalist and arrogant party, supported by about the same popular vote numerically as John Major in 1992, shows signs of a worrying contempt for the traditions of the Commons. Perhaps he should read Burke, and substitute

Prime Minister for King. Burke was a great believer in what was called a mixed constitution - one in which the functions of the monarchy, the Lords and Commons resulted in a pragmatic division of contending powers, each restraining the other. As Mr McCue observes, vestiges of this concept still exist, but what Burke most leared is fast happening: the "sovereignty of the people" is overriding all checks on the Commons. The Monarch is a figure-head, and the Lords will soon become an overcrowded quango of placemen.

Burke is regarded as the symbol and exemplar of "conservatism" in its later meaning but for most of his life he was devoted to "liberal" causes. He set out in famous words to the electors of Bristol the right of their MP to be a representative, not a delegate. They did not thank him and chucked him out. He opposed the coercion of the American colonies, the incompetent administration of Ireland and the malpractices of the East India Company. He devoted years of his life to the impeachment of Warren Hastings. He failed, but India was better governed thereafter.

Until 1790 Burke had been the intellectual power behind the Whiggism of Rockingham and Fox. He played a similar role to that of Disraeli in support of post-1846 Toryism — a useful but largely mistrusted necessity. But Burke

EDMUND BURE His Life and Legay Edited by Ian Crow Four Courts Press, E. ISBN 1851823069 EDMUND BURKE ND OUR PRESENT DISCONTENTS By Jim McCue Claridge Press, £14.95 ISBN 1870626176 EDMUND BURK By Conor Cruise O'Bra Abridged by Jim McCe Sinclair-Stevenson, E12.9 ISBN 1856196984

never reached the Cabink By Disraeli's day the political world could climb to the top of the greasy pole. But after Burke's famous denunciation of the FrenchRevolution the Foxites and he parted company. It seemed a toli volteface from all that he had prviously stood for. Was not the Revution a cause for rejoicing amongsil true lovers of liberty — a momet when it was bliss to be alive! Tories naturally detested it, but fon Whig to attack it in immortal laguage seemed an outrage to wha would

- 12 - 12

414.0

1.17

_ ு. கூடை சே ஆ

· 🚉 🙀

医放射症 拳

14 15

Land

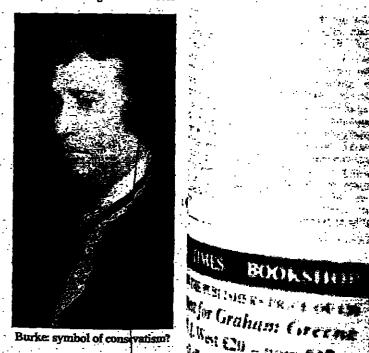

가야 그 날개를

BOOKSHEE

THE PROPERTY OF

Wat Col - new E17

The second second second

Burke symbol of consevatism?

now be called the Left — s dazded by France then as therispiritual descendants were to be 7 Russia And the second s A Marie To Had after 1917. Burke predicte than an egalitarian revolution wold result in a despotism in the nate of The People. He was right.

Of this trio of books he most helpful introduction to Bike is the volume of essays eding by lan Crowe, which covers belly most aspects of the person hom Dr Johnson described as arguraordinary man. Burke is usuay regarded as a Conservative ion A.J.P.
Taylor called him a "Vig hack".
But New Labour has leftesed to accept a Tory monopol of Burke. Side by side there are easys in his praise by John Redwood and Lord Plant. Nothing could illustrate better the final extincted of British socialism.

In Directory on Saturday: Lisa Jardine on Angela Carter

NEW AUTHORS PUBLISH YOUR WORK ALL SUPLIEUTS CONSIDERED FIGURE AND FIGURE A MINERVA PRESS

Season of betrayal

Jonathan Mirsky wonders just how solidly the Government supported Hong Kong's last Governor in the dealings with China newest book has caused a sensation in Britain, as did his last, on the Prince of Wales; but this time because of the public rather than the private life of his central figure. The sensation arises from a mighty factuse: that some of the best-known men in British diplomatic life - Lord Howe of Aberavon, Sir Percy Cradock, Lord Wilson of Tillyorn and Sir Robin McLaren are guilty of "arrogance, cynicism, a dis-honourable conduct ... Britain's reputation there will be indelibly stained by the mark of appeasement." Most damn-ingly: Mr Dimbleby suggests that Hong Kong "liberal opin-ion" accuses these men of "betrayal" - which he careful ly encloses in inverted com-

onathan Dimbleby's

The charge of "betrayal", in a long and elegantly written book, centres on

THE LAST GOVERNOR

Chris Patten and

the Handover of

Hong Kong

By Jonathan

Dimbleby

Little, Brown, £22.50

ISBN 0316640182

1986 and 1987 when Britain was faced with tions to a White Paper looking forward to very modest elections in 1988 for the Council. The Horig Kong Government decided to test public opinion and discovered that an overwhelming number of people favoured such a small political reform. It then, with what Dimbleby calls a breathtaking a breathtaking sleight of hand ... designed to suggest the reverse was true with an effrontery usually only associated with totalitarian states and banana republies", declared to the Hong Kong people that they opposed 265.078 favoured such one and only 94,565 did not. This was more or less understood at the time. What Mr Diribleby states flatly in his - "Apart from Major himself. book and is utterly base if true. Patter would become the most is that Lord Howe Robin powerful man in the Cabinet."

McLaren, and Lord Wilson (then Sir David Wilson), advised by Sir Percy, warned the Chinese that the poll would go against them, and then connived to rig it; Mr Dimblebysays that London "advised the Chinese informally" that they should instruct their friends in Hong Kong to write to the government polling office indicating their opposition to elections. Chris Patten describes this as a pretty peculiar business" and "bogus

Mr Dirableby also says that the Foreign Office, astoundingly, neglected to tell the new Governor in 1992, before he arrived in Hong Kong, that two years earlier the Foreign Secretary, Douglas Hurd, and the Chinese Foreign Minister, Qian Qichen, reached an agreement on certain arrangements for future elections. One of these, had Mr Patten been told, cast into doubtful legitimacy a section of the Governor's reforms, the very package which caused Beijing to call him a whore.

Mr Patten got a whiff of this just before going up to Beijing to discuss his plan with his opposite numbers, who naturally thought he was the messenger for a fundamental breach of agreement. He didn't dare tell them of the cock-up. Douglas Hurd told Mr Dimbleby that he had forgotten about his agreement with Mr Qian and admitted it had been a mistake agreement and the series of the control of the cont had been a mistake not to inform the Governor. Also listed as not telling Mr Patten are Sir Percy Cradock - who says convincingly that he was certain Mr Patten had been properly briefed - Sir Robin, who drafted the British documents" and Tony Galsworthy, Mr Patten's For-eign Office political adviser and now Britain's new Ambassador to China. Mr Patten was forced to walk naked into the presence of his enemies. This sounds like a mam-

> What seems to me genuine betrayal is something not yet noted in last week's hasty scrambles to name the guilty men. In 1993 Mr Hurd invited Mr Patten, less than a year after his appointment as Governor, to return to London and, as Leader of the House of Lords, "help shepherd the Government and a beleaguered Prime Minister towards the next election."

Mr Patten, not tempted for a moment", would, however, have returned out of "loyalty and political conviction" if the Prime Minister had " asked him unequivocally In 1994, three years before the handover, John Major himself made an improved offer: Leader of the Lords, Foreign Secretary, and Deputy Prime Minister, all rolled into one:

That troubled the Governor, who was able to refuse again, was that for the Prime Minister, who always insisted in public that he stood solidly behind Mr Patten, " Britain's mission in Hong Kong somehow mattered less in 10 Downing Street than the future of his administration: "For a while Patter brooded on this: it did nothing to cheer him."

People in Hong Kong will have the right to wonder after all this, together with Mr Dimbleby's accounts of the Archbishop of Canterbury and his predecessor refusing to stay in Government House because it might anger China, the rows with Michael Heseltine, James Callaghan, Lord Young, Michael Howard, and most of the Foreign Office "sinologues." if Chris Patten, during his five years there, had been out on his own limb - which many in London, at the highest level of

BOOKSHOP

THE PUBLISHERS PRICE OF £26

The Quest for Graham Greene

by W. J. West £20 - now £17

Also save £1 off any Graham Greene novel

SAVE ON THE 1997 KATE GREENAWAY MEDAL WINNER

The Baby Who Wouldn't Go To Bed

by Helen Cooper £9.99 - now £8.99

● You can also boy ANY English language book currently in print

● FREELIK p&p ● Dalivery in 7-10 days, subject to availability.

Friday, Sem to 4pm Seturday, and 10am to 4pm Sunday.

CALL: 0345 660 916 CALLS CHARGE

Call +44 990 134 459 from overseas and the Republic of Ireland, tex+44 1326 374 688. e-mail: bookshop@the-times.co.uk

Or post coupon to: News Books, FREEPOST, PO Box 345, Falmouth, TR11 2BR

Please send me these books (order additional titles on a separate sheet):

I enclose cheque/PO(s) payable to NEWS BOOKS for a total of £

Please write your name and address on the back of all cheques

For Republic of Ireland and overseas orders add 20% to total book cost. Delivery is without prior notice. Tick box if you prefer not to receive details of other offers by armail in Europe, surface to rest of world. (Airmail outside Europe add 35%.)

The suggested netall price of a book can be subject to change by the publishe

Debit my Mastercard/Visa/AmEx, Switch or Delta account no:

● 24-hour service. Staff available 8am to 6pm, Monday to

Chris Patten receives the Union Flag, lowered for the last time from Government House in Hong Kong on June 30 government, were striving to

Finally, an unavoidable question hangs over Mr Dimbleby's entire account: can we trust it? He says he had "easy access" to Mr Patten who agreed to discuss "his strategy and tactics at every stage of what was to be a serious and sustained diplomatic crisis. "How did Mr Patten, whose authorised memoir in fact this is, convince

Mr Dimbleby? Did he show him state documents? During the Legislative Council crucial vote in 1994 on Mr Patten's programme, Mr Dimbleby was present during a discussion of what must have been telephone intercepts only minutes before from Beijing to its allies in the council building. Mr Patten used to insist there was not "the thickness of a piece of paper" between him and the Prime Minister on

Hong Kong matters. In The Last Governor we learn that a very large pantechnicon could have been driven between the two men on a fundamental issue: the need for the Governor to stay at the helm until the midnight of the 1997 handover. As for the rest of the charges, which may or may not traduce men whose hon-Dimbleby must now move from allegation to proof.

It's good to exorcise

Bounty is Derek Walcott's bid to lay the ghosts of his life and Derek career while elegising his late mother, Alix Walcott, and reminiscing on his experience of the world, of art and of the Caribbean. It is a book in which the poet returns to his beginnings but continuously broods about his end, and also about the excessive bounty of the earth, of landscape, art, kinship and memory.

The first part is about the death of his mother, then he reflects on Europe, its cultural treasures and the haunting tragedies of its sins. He recalls the French Impressionists, ancestors of his watercolour painting which adorns the cover of the book. He reflects on Italy, on modern and classical Rome, ending with an allusion to Oedious at Colonus whose tragic fate was bequeathed to his daughter. but which could also be Walcott himself passing the mantle. Bounty underscores issues and themes that are important to Walcott, to literature and to all humanity, such as "the pain of exile" and "the self-importance of despair". He compresses almost his whole life in the book, even composing his own epitaph while at the same time ironically reliving the great cities of Cervantes and Manet. "Here lies/ DW. This place is good to die in'. It really was."

David Dabydeen

THE BOUNTY By Derek Walcott Faber, £14.99 ISBN 0571 191304

Although at times a bit selfindulgent, the poet is conscious of his unending preoccupation with the sentiment of elegy. He asks his friend and fellow Nobel laureate. Joseph Brodsky, who died in 1996: Joseph, why am I writing this/ when you cannot read it?" Of his mother, he asks: "But can she or can she not read this? Can you read this/ Mamma, or hear it?" He reflects the "self-importance of despair" in such lines, and in many others in which he echnes Auden's remark on the lonely individualness of suffering and Dylan Thomas's metaphor of the River Rowy which flows on as "obliterating hurt".

But while Walcott stresses the continuance of indifferent business as usual in spite of his grief, and while the poetry will sometimes tire with repetition, the metaphors of death are deployed in Romantic fashion to celebrate bounty in all its meanings. He takes his title from a line of Yeats - "the hounty of Sweden" - and indeed, a past criticism of him was that the influence of some

British and European poets was too evident in his verse. He refers to Shakespeare as well as to Dante Alighieri whose terza rima verse form of he uses to such perfection in Omeros and in Part One of this book. His work draws strength from John Clare, Eliot, Lawrence, Dylan Thomas, Marvell and Synge.

But the greatest influence detected here is of Walcott himself. The Bounty rings with repeated echoes of his earlier verse, including In a Green Night, Another Life, The Gulf and Omeros, with an abundance of revisited themes and fossil-metaphors. He returns to his repeatedly used linguistic and syntactic metaphors such as "... then winter, where you stand like an exclamation on a page of white ground" and "squirrels spring up like questions". The most important issue, however, is that despite the several other repetitions from the past, Walcott is no longer learning "to suffer in accurate iambics" or rooting for "scraps of fayour" as he was in the 1960s. Bounty is hardened by the best verse one is likely to find anywhere in the world and even if there are debts to the wider literature, the result is all Walcott's. With originality and confidence, he shapes a craft whose assured excellence, even now, does not cease

John Weightman lays Lacan bare

Analysing the analyst

party. I heard a lady remark: "Mon fils vient de sortir de son Oedipe" (My son has just got over his Oedipus complex), much as she might have said that he had recently had his appendix removed. This brought home to me the fact that for a surprising number of French intellectuals, Freudianism is not simply an interesting body of parascientific speculation, but a dogmatic system to be accepted as the truth. Consequently, its history, like that of all revealed religions, has been endlessly fraught with doctrinal disputes. No wonder, then, that this extraordinary book about the most flamboyant French neo-Freudian of the 20th century should read like an account of the schisms in the medieval Church and be redolent with odium theologicum.

تعلدًا من الموصل

At first, one might take Ms Roudinesco for an anti-Lacanian. because she paints such a damning picture of Lacan, the man, An unfaithful husband to two wives and a neglectful, capricious father, he was "a womaniser and a libertine", "greedy", "snob-bish", "devious" and possessed by "an immense desire to be recognised and famous". But she praises the professional: "Lacan towered over all the members of his own generation in terms of personal charisma, as well as clinical and theoretical genius".

owever, she is strangely schizoid, since her book L contains amole evidence to contradict this positive view of Lacan's achievement. She doesn't seem to notice that she herself undermines her encomium by frequently demonstrating that he plays fast and loose with Freud and even, as she puts it, "massacres" him in translation. She also shows that many eminent people who came into contact with Lacan or tried to read his big, sibylline text, Ecrits, had a negative reaction. He claimed to have incorporated into Freudianism concepts derived from, amongst others, Claude Levi-Strauss, Ramon Jakobson and Martin Heidegger, but Levi-Strauss refused to comment on his work, saying ironically that he couldn't understand it. Jakobson was careful to keep his distance and Heidegger dryly remarked: "The psychiatrist needs a psychiatrist." I must declare a prejudice; I once attended a lecture he gave, and was so put off by his spasmodic. oracular delivery that I left before the end.

But not everyone is allergic to gurus, far from Roudinesco describes how the audience at his "seminars" (his teaching was mainly oral) gradually increased over the years, so that, by 1963, when he broke with mainstream Freudianism and founded his own Ecole Freudienne, he had an army of

JACQUES LACAN An Outline of a Life and History of a System of Thought

By Elizabeth Roudinesco Polity Press, £25 ISBN 07456 15236

fervent, if quarrelsome, disciples, From being a brilliant Socrates" in a limited context, he eventually allowed himself "to be worshipped like a god and his teaching to be treated as holy

She blames his followers for this, but was it not a consequence of his own colossal vanity? At an early stage, he developed the maniacal conviction that he was the only person capable of Freud. Being both a law unto himself and economical with the Lacan: lies from the couch?

truth, he disregarded the rules of the International Psychoanalytical Society while claiming to respect them, and so fell foul of various members, including the Freud, Melanie Klein and Marie Bonaparte. His own Ecole had a stormy existence under his dictatorial and erratic leadership; well before his death, it had begun to explode into what Ms Roudinesco calls messianic

In his last phase, when he tried to combine Freudianism with Joycean word-play in the manner of Finnigan's Wake, he seems to have become definitely deranged, probably through some physiological deterioration of the brain, due to old age: certainly, the last texts quoted by Ms Roudinesco cannor described as sane

Thanks to his celebrity and to the high fees he charged for analytical sessions, and even "non-sessions" (ie, a few minutes in the silent, or near-silent, presence of the Master), he had long been a rich man. In one respect, at least, he conformed to original Freudian symbolism; he preferred to keep his wealth in gold ingots.

angers of

e people's vereignty

S. 15. 15.9

.

ξ _ _ = P⁺⁺P

建线标准

The industry's new confederation, launched today, reflects the restoration of its confidence after the 'double dip' recession, Philip Bassett reports

Builders regroup to welcome recovery

ritain's building industry is emerging from the doldrums of the Nineties, boosted by a growing economy and policy changes introduced by the new Govern-

Instead of job losses and firms facing closure, the talk in the construction industry is now of demand, new jobs. opportunity and growth.

Sir Martin Laing, chairman of John Laing, says the industry is now out of recession though he stresses that it was hit harder and for longer than other industries, with construction going back into a slump as other sectors pulled

He judges the "double dip" recession to be over now and is looking forward with

The building industry will mark this change today sector with the launch of its new Construchas been tion Confederation. In the restored hit hard spleadour Shakespeare's by stop-go Globe Theatre on London's South economics British construction companies will celebrate what they hope will be their own splendid restoration after the rough days of the 1990s - as companies, and as a coherent representative force in dealing with the new

"Historically, the construction industry has done better under Labour governments than Conservative governments," says Sir Martin, who is president of the new confed-

It is odd, then, that construction companies have been among the most financially generous supporters of the Conservatives. Stressing that Laing's itself does not make financial donations to any political party, Sir Martin acknowledges the point — though industry leaders recognise that because of it, they may well have some ground to make up with New Labour.

lan Deslandes, chief executive of the new confederation, is specific about how construction views the new Government.

"The first two months can hardly have been better," he says. "For construction, the real difference is that the last two years

The

Optimistic Sir Martin Laing

were so uncertain. Construction is an investment industry. and the uncertainty in the lead-up to the election meant that people investing in construction who were looking for long-term direction couldn't The industry has been hit hard by stop-go economics, so the Government's strictures against boom and bust emnomics are particularly welcome. So too are the changes aimed at improving stability, including giving operational independence to the Bank of England.

Gordon Brown's recent Budget also drew plaudits from the building trade. Its emphasis on investment and on long-term growth suits construction firms. The Chancellor's decision to allow the phased spending of local au-thorities' council house sales receipts will, the industry feels, lead to a regeneration of public house-building — a sector of the construction business hit hard in the Conservative years, and which is still showing few signs of improve-

Equally, construction bosses like the cut in corporation tax - not just for their own firms. but as a new means of attracting investment to Britain and the Government's welfare-to-work plans. The industry has seen more than 100,000 jobs go in the 1990s. but the recovery in its prospects means that it will now need to hire new people. Sir Martin Laing told The Times this week that the industry will

10,000 people over the next.18 months to two years, and he sees the welfare-own benefit and that of out-ofwork youngsters. Building companies happy, too, with "their" minister - Housing Minister Nick Raynsford, who is expected to attend today's Confederation launch. As a former housing activist before entering Parliament, he is seen as someone who knows the industry well. If all this sounds upheat, it is though the industry didn't like the increase in stamp duty and the scaling down of mortgage interest tax relief. artly the optimism is because business in construction is growing, though building leaders such as Sir Martin are sceptical about talk of a housoutside London and parts of the South East, there is as vet little sign of it. Recession lies behind today's launch of the new umbrella body. For years, construction was the best example of incoherent business representation: a plethora of competing employers' organisations, immensely confusing to the trade, wasteful of resources and performing poorly in their relations with Government

Eventually the large com-panies decided they had had enough. They told the competing employers' bodies that they had to rationalise themselves or the big firms would withdraw and cause their collapse. The building bodies have managed to respond to the challenge. The new Con-struction Confederation is moving to premises in the City, with a new spirit and new ambitions to represent construction companies as well as it can.

Trade associations sound very 19th-century," says Sir Martin. "We have to make sure that what we are in the future is 21st, rather than 19th, ing boom, pointing out that

Cranes looming over the city tell of the building industry's renewed growth, investment, jobs and opportunities

An industry that's on the up and up

PROSPECTS for the UK's £55.2 billion-turnover COTIstruction industry are looking better than at any time over the past decade, Stephen Hoare writes.

An upturn in commercial property, renewed confi-dence in the private finance initiative, and lottery-funded schemes such as the Greenwich millennium exhibition are among the market forces buoying just about every sector of the industry.

While industry as a whole began to climb out of recession from 1992, it is only in the past year that construction started showing a growth in output. Orders over the past year rose by 20 per cent across the UK. lan Deslandes, chief executive of the Construction Confederation, says. "We're in the early stages of a recovery. The next two to three years will see construction growing along with GDP at the modest rate of 25 per cent and that is an encouraging prospect."

As economic output grows construction follows. An increase in commercial activity creates the demand for more offices and factories; a rise in consumer spending sparks retail development. With sectors like housing more complex economics are at work. John Stewart, an economic adviser to the Construction Confederation, says: "Private housing is dependent not only on real income growth but on factors like the health of the housing market, the ECONOMIC ANALYSIS mortgage rate and the employment situation."

Some of the biggest rises in output have been seen in the southeast of England where private housing construction leads the field with a rise of 15 per cent over the past year and a £1.4 billion turnover. London has seen some of the fastest growth over the past year - notably the 27 per cent growth in infrastructure construction - helped by massive projects like the Jubilee Line extension and the Heathrow Express - and a 22 per cent rise in commercial property development. There has also been a surge in the private repair

centre office buildings converted to luxury apartments or hotels. The biggest part of this sector's workload is accounted for by smallscale building. Construction Forecasting and Research (CFR) is concluding a survey into the market and estimates activity to be in the region of £12 billion.

and refurbishment sector as commercial premises are upgraded and redundant city-

According to the Office of National Statistics figures, 56 per cent of all new investment last year was construction related. Construction's share of GDP looks set to grow higher under Labour.

tained welcome news for housing and schools. Local authorities were told they were free to release £5 billion in capital receipts to fund new housing and the refurbishment of run-down stock — a move designed to tackle the £18-20 billion repair backlog in social housing and the 70,000 a year short-fall in the building of new rented accommodation. Education received a £2 billion bonus, most of it earmarked repairs to buildings.

The speedy review of PFI led by Malcolm Bates, chairman of Pearl Group, and the setting up of a Treasury task force promises to fulfil the last government's target of signed up or completed by the end of the next financial year, 1998-99. The decision to go ahead with 14 major hospitals schemes paves the way for a £1.3 billion injection of private capital into the health service.

Added to this, the operation of PFI roads, prisons, government offices, schools and colleges has laid the foundations for a multi-billion pound facilities management (FM) sector - a field the construction industry is set to dominate. Neil Ashley, and FM group Amy, says: "Facilities management is very much what these PFIs are about - the long-term

In business,

things will never be the same again. Deregulation has stimulated competition: accountability and privatisation reign in the public sector - with international takeovers leading to the spread of global companies and hence, global strategies.

The old, more predictable market conditions are unlikely to return.

We recognise the need to become more responsive to customer needs, more innovative and ready to adapt to changing and increasing demands from diverse customers in different markets. It is only through this process that we can maintain the uniqueness that is critical to our continued success.

The issue is not whether a company will undergo change, but how successfully it can both anticipate and maximise the opportunities it presents.

Tarma WORKING TOGETHER

الملة اسنه الملصل

bength for the buom

Tarmac plc, Hilton Hall, Essington, Wolverhampton WV11 2BQ. Tel: +44 (0) 1902 307407. www.tarmac.co.uk

post pc

$1.7 t7 1997

there was ever a time the construction industry feared an incoming Labour Government, the speed with which it picked up and ran with Private Finance Initiatives (PFI) has removed any lingering qualms. Like the construction industry, it recognises private finance is the only practicable way of providing public services and infrastructure. Neville Simms, Tarmac chief executive and chairman of the Major Contractors' Group. says: "PFI is healthy for Britain and it is healthy for the construction industry".

A founder member of the Government's PFI panel, Mr Simms has been a leading influence in shaping PFI since 1992. Tarmac is one of a clutch of construction companies prominent in the consortiums set up to raise finance, design, build and operate big PFI projects. He was heartened when the review of PFI led by Malcolm Bates, chairman of Pearl Group, promptly accepted all the industry's recommendations and announced the set-ting up of a Treasury task force to educate public-sector clients in the process.

The recent announcement that only 14 out of an original 43 big hospital schemes were to go ahead has at least brought certainty to the market, and in the education sector barriers to PFI are quickly coming down.

In future such schemes have to demonstrate a genuine public need and a strong business

So can the construction in-dustry deliver? Backed by big financial institutions and equity funds, the PFI consortiums seem to have no shortage of venture capital for schemes, above the £20 million mark. Most major contractors have set up facilities management (FM) subsidiaries capable of operating and maintaining schemes once they are built. But contractors could find themselves financing small local-authority schemes unless these can be made attractive to the investment banks. Mr Simms warns: "Major contractors are prepared to take risks, but if the construction industry doesn't dig into its pockets now to fund the PFI process it won't happen. Constructors have also seen their traditional schemes were mar-UK and tested. Mr Simms reckons industry' that over the past four years £4 billion of public-sector contracts have been cancelled, adding hardship when the construction industry was stuck in recession.

The huge costs of bidding for PFIs speak for themselves. By the time the deal was signed. Tarmac's £115 million. bid to build Dartford and Gravesham hospital had swal-

Outside funds will help boost public works

The Kuala Lumpur railway system in Malaysia is a fine example of joint enterprise in legal fees and consultancy as well as the detailed design needed to guarantee cast-iron huild costs.

This level of costs is a constraint on how many PFI schemes a contractor can take on. Taylor Woodrow is currently bandling seven projects at various stages. Di-Brian rector Hendry says: "We like this up front hood of bringing the project to a close. Most of the costs come in the final stages." partnership approach would help contractors save on the costs of bidding and enable them to tackle more public and private sectors can streamline the bidding process, standardise contracts and bring projects quickly to a close. The construction industry is well placed to identify areas where innovative design can reduce lifetime costs of a building and make operating easier and more efficient. The Government, for its part, has to accept the responsibility arising from future changes in legislation. Мг Simms says: "A partnership and the private sectors means risk is transferred to the party best capable of man-

Neville Simms Major Contractors offer. Mr Hendry says: "If it proves too difficult to get PFI

tracts, which look set to provide construction companies

FM arms with assured workloads throughouf the 20 to 25-year duration of the PFI concessions. Mr Simms says:

"We're expecting each of these operations to make a profit."

But PFI is a global market,

and one where

British contractors earned their

Taylor Wood-

row's £300 milion

light-rail system,

are far bigger than anything

Britain has to projects to a close in the UK, contractors could turn their

STEPHEN HOARE

attentions overseas.

ging it." With risk comes the reward. PFI opens three new business activities to the construction industry. By taking equity stake in the projects, contractors are acquiring assets that could one day be traded. Then there is the increased design capability and the operating and maintenance condes res, built for us by robots, and delivered lock, stock and barrel to the site of our choice as the Japanese do? Whatever the outcome, most in the industry believe that advances in information technology — even the use of satellites — will nnovation is becoming a buzz word in the construction industry, but will we vironment, Transport and the Regions spends £23 million each year on construction-related research. About £1.6 million is spent on pro-moting a climate of innovation and speeding the implemenration of existing research

Trevor Higgs, director of the technical department at the Construction Confederation, says: "The last major innovations in the industry were in the late 1960s and early 1970s. Now concerns are threefold: cost and time efficiency, and environmental awareness.

We are just starting work on a scheme to reduce waste on building sites, which will also reduce the landfill tax companies have had to pay since last October.

"One big contractor said recently that almost 20 per cent of their materials ends up as waste. We are looking at its recycling building materials at special centres to avoid waste." Professor Alan Houper of Nottingham Trent University. is conducting a study into industry and innovation, with trade organisations such as the House Builders Federation (HBF). He says: "Interest in

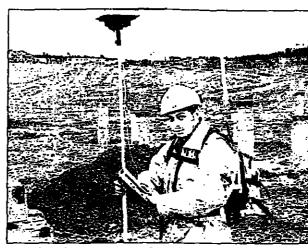

Satellites

Amanda Loose reports on new techniques and attitudes in the industry soon be able to order our own come into the picture probably lead to dramatic changes in the next decade. The Department of the En-

while in the

RESEARCH & DEVELOPMENT

High-tech: an engineer sites piles via satellite signals

the past few years. Toyota has created a prefabricated house. designed to customer specification by computer-aided design, and built by robotic construction in a factory. They build about 4,500 of these each

Many UK builders such as Laing and Bovis have set up their own innovation departResearch Establishment is about to appoint its first director of innovation and Information technology has had much influence on the construction industry. Brian Zelly, the group director of Laing's integrated engineering constructions unit. which looks at innovations as they develop, says: "We use computer-aided design to build a three-dimensional picture of the building as we go along The computer is cost-effective because we know exactly what we need." Laing is also looking at ways to simplify construction, using units such as the service chunks of air-conditioning plants built off-site, and delivered ready to connect. Modularisation is another possibility: designing a building in repeatable units, built off-site, with combinations that can be slotted together to create variations.

t Bluewater shopping and leisure complex, which is being built at Dartford in Kent, piles are being positioned by satellite.

Barry Burman of Lend Lease, which is working on construction with Bovis, says: We have three satellite stations on site, and need four satellites to be in relatively close proximity. The co-or dinates of where the pile must be placed are stored in the onsite computer, and sent as a signal to the satellites.

When the signal comes down, and the co-ordinates lock on, the site engineers, with headset and probe, hear the bleep, and mark the spot. This gives an accuracy of plus or minus 20mm."

O'Rourkes, the frame contractor at-Bluewater, has deeloped a precasting facility for many of the concrete columns and beams, while a precast shell is made for the loadbearing primary beams, filled in situ. Mr Burman says this has improved accuracy and raised construction rates by up

Building for the 21st century

THE new Construction Confederation, the predominant representative organisation for one of the largest and most diverse sectors of British industry, came into operation at the end of last month.

The confederation comprises eight constituent organ-Federation of Builders, the Major Contractors Group, the National Contractors Federation, the Civil Engineering Contractors Association, the Scottish Building Employers Federation, the British Woodworking Federation, the Federation of Building Specialist Contractors and the House

Together these are responsible for more than 75 per cent of construction work in Britain. The confederation has four main functions:

■ To represent the interests of its members to the Government, the European Union and European parliaments, as well as other decisionmakers and opinion formers.

THE FEDERATION

■ To negotiate agreements on behalf of these organisations and represent their interests bodies such as Confederation of British Industry and the Construc-Industry which the Government has cal representations. These key

■ To provide information and advice. To take appropriate action

Training Board.

to promote the interests of the industry. Specific lobbying interests, ing: the industry's contribution to the environment, and the wider use of partnering in construction Specialist departments will drive these policies forward through political and techni-

struction's role in the wider economy:

the promotion of public-private partnerships; urgent action to improve the quality and affairs, employment, the law, and technology and the environment. lan Deslandes, chief execuinclude

tive of the confederation, said: This new organisation will provide a unified and much more powerful voice with which to speak for one of Britain's largest and most important industries. It will enable construction, which accounts for half of Britain's total annual investment and is the largest single industry employer of labour, to punch its full weight in the quarters that matter. We are creating an entirely new organisation which will anticipate and confirmed are on its agenda, departments comprise public the 21st century."

Construction Confederation

Speaking for the Industry

The Construction Confederation represents the interests of over 5,000 construction companies who carry out over 75 per cent of the total turnover of the UK construction industry.

Its mission is to promote and secure the interests of building and civil engineering contractors and to provide high quality and cost effective services to member firms to help them improve both their service to clients and their own profitability.

CONSTITUENT ORGANISATIONS British Woodworking Federation Civil Engineering Contractors Association Federation of Building Specialist Contractors House Builders Federation Major Contractors Group National Contractors Federation National Federation of Builders Scottish Building Employers Federation

Construction Confederation 82 New Cavendish Street London W1M 8AD

Telephone 0171 580 5588

Fax 0171 631 3872 Internet Web Site http://www.construct-confed.demon.co.uk

Hallam (#Goodfacts

reputation into the next millenium.

Brook's House OADBY Leicester LE2 4AN Tel: 0116 272 0811

Fax: 0116 271 0466

Midland Bank wishes the new Construction Confederation every success for the future

Congratulations from one strong organisation to another.

Strength for the future

UK firms are heavily involved in Hong Kong's new airport at Chek Lap Kok

Never leave home without it

Whether you're a multi-national corporation, or have ambitions to become one, the criteria are the same when you venture overseas. To be a success, the enterprise must be affordable, achievable and profitable.

In 30 countries around the world, Bovis is already there to help you realise those goals. We speak your language and the local dialect. We understand your priorities and how to provide the services you need.

Above all, we share your commitment to the new venture.

Global companies such as BP, Bank of America, Cargill, Daewoo, Intel, Lend Lease, and Marks & Spencer all rely on Bovis to manage their international construction projects.

We know their objectives and we'd like to know yours. Whatever your business, wherever you're going next, Bovis can help you make more of the opportunity.

YOUR PASSPORT TO THE GLOBAL MARKET

Bovis Construction Group, Liscartan House, 127 Sloane Street, London SW1X 9BA Tel: 0181 422 3488, Fax: 0171 730 4722, http://www.bovis.com

Foreign contracts beckon

Steve McCormack on the rewards for UK firms who have the nerve to venture abroad

ritish contractors have a tradition of operating overseas. Today, British firms are active in more than 100

In terms of our international competitors, Britain's construction industry is consis-tently ranked among the top five. According to the latest figures from the Department of the Environment, total British construction industry exports for 1995-96 amounted to around £10 billion.

Of this total, overseas building and civil engineering contracts secured during 1995 were worth 55.5 billion, 45 per cent up on 1994 and 72 per cent more than in 1993. However, these figures alone can give a distorted view, as the majority of British contractors have little or no interest outside the home market, and 90 per cent of all overseas income is earned by the too ten contractors. It is now acknowledged that exports must become more important to British contractors if the industry is to avoid the danger of further shrinkage. According to Sir Frank Lampl, chairman of Bovis, the industry has tended to be too dependent on the domestic market for the past two de-

OVERSEAS

industry could be more successful overseas," he says. "But you can only expand worldwide if you have a sound basis in your home market."

British contractors in having 60 per cent of its turnover, and about half its profits, from overseas projects. Of the overseas markets, North America remains the largest, accounting for 36 per cent of all new contracts in 1995. Other growing markets include the Far East, including China, with Hong Kong accounting for two thirds of work won there. Europe remains strong, while the figures show a decline for the Middle East and Oceania and static performance in

Some observers predict that British contractors will remain at a disadvantage on the world stage because of their relatively small size. Others argue that UK contractors are experts at establishing relationships with companies with whom they can cooperate.

There is some concern in this age of large, privately financed projects that the smaller UK contractors will trying to safeguard the pub-lic. The National Federation of Builders has set up its Construction Skills Charter

Scheme, a register of qualified builders. Genuine builders will insure their work against defects, often accepting the cost of the premium.

still tend to get tarred with the same brush when cowboys are around, though,

and Mr Moon says even larger companies can be tarnished. "The problem is at the small end of the market with companies that are difficult to trace, but the cowboys can price the larger

Small legitimate builders

Passenger terminal building at the new Hong Kong airport, due to open next year only be able to take on a greater risks are now being limited number of them," says Alick Goldsmith, director of the Export Group for the Constructional Industries. This trend is recognised by Frank Kennedy, managing director of Tarmac Construction International. He says: "The: wider introduction of lump sum bidding and design and construct contracts mean that passed on to the contractor. However, this can also be a good thing for the larger contractors working overseas as the rewards can be higher."

But if British contractors are to succeed in procuring big international projects, espe-cially in the developing world. government support for Brit-ish companies must become

Union and the British Government must support the building industry in stamp-

Mr Moon says: "The Government has indicated that if the building industry does not put itself in order to allow consumers to distinguish good builders from the ing out cowboys.

more effective. It must at least be equal to that enjoyed by our competitors, many of whom enjoy significant advantages due to their stronger and protected home markets.

According to Mr Goldsmith, all the industry wants is a level playing field. "Governwinning business in emerging

THERE is a lot that people can do to protect themselves against cowboy builders. Rodney Hobson writes. As Stephen Moon, director not want to know you if you are registered for VAT."

Legitimate builders are at the National Federation of Builders, says: "When people employ builders they do not take enough time to check their reputations or get references. That leaves them open to exploitation. Nobody buys cars or holidays that way. yet building work can cost thousands."

Brian Tierney, national president of the Federation of Master Builders, agrees: "By evading VAT, income tax, National Insurance and levies, the black-economy builder can offer savings of up to 30 per cent.

"Members of the public go out to get a cheaper deal and get caught by the cowboys. There are customers who do CONSUMERS

Don't get saddled with a cowboy

ket," he says. "Large companies often have smallworks teams. Just because a job is small, it doesn't mean that a large company won't be

Builders say that although there are builders operating in the black economy who do a good job, cowboys and the black economy tend to grow in tandem, as both offer the customer a cheaper deal. Many complain bitterly that Brussels and Westminster have neglected the situation. Mr Moon and Mr Tierney both believe the European cowboys, then it will take action. That would probably come in the second or third year of the current Parliament.

"My fear is that legislation will harm the legitimate builder without touching the cowboy. He adds: "Changes in consumer policy can only be part of a wider package. The level which businesses must register for VAT is a major cause for concern. It is possible within EU guidelines to reduce VAT rates in cases of social need, and our housing stock is deteriorating."

• Be on guard against the cowboys: get a proper estimate; ask for the builder's telephone number and make sure it is a fixed line, not a for the job before it is done: do not agree to buy your own materials; ask for references and check them; employ an established building company, inquire if the builder provides a guarantee backed by insurance; do not hand back the invoice — it will be sold illegally to a builder who can reclaim VAT.

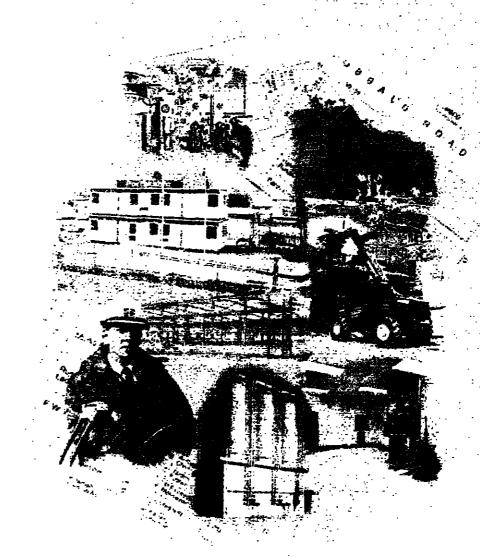

- Laing was the first construction company to win the British Quality Award.
- John Laing Construction was Building's Major Contractor of The Year for two consecutive years.
- · Laing Homes has won the Blue Riband in the British Housebuilder of the Year Awards, twice in five years.
- John Laing International holds the Queen's Award for Export Achievement.
- Laing projects have won the British Construction Industry Supreme Award for the last three years.

These major accolades – and many individual contract awards - are tangible results of the Company's dedicated commitment to quality, combined with craftsmanship and engineering skills.

BUILDING CONFIDENCE IN BRITAIN'S FUTURE

LAING

John Laing plc Page Street, Mill Hill London NW7 2ER Tel: 0181 959 3636

Shepherd Building Group operates internationally and provides the highest standards of products and services by a highly trained and motivated workforce.

Now one of Europe's largest private Building Groups, Shepherd has extensive interests in design, contracting, engineering services, specialist clean room technology and plant hire. It is Europe's leading manufacturer of module-based building systems, bulk handling systems and a wide range of amenity, security and safety products. Shepherd is a significant housing, commercial and industrial developer.

The Group is committed to further long term progress backed by substantial financial and technical strengths.

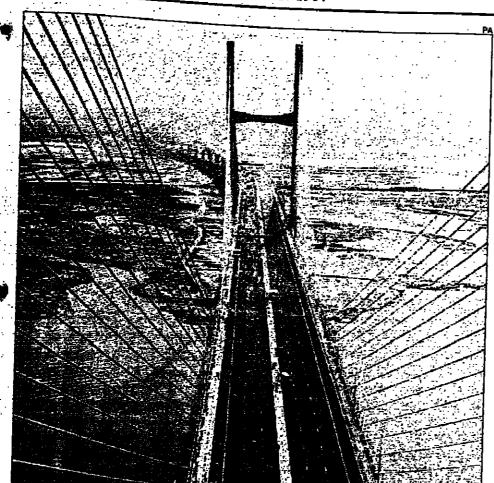

Fulford Moor House Fulford Road, York YO1-4EY Telephone 01904 653040. Fax 01904 611501

(حلَّذ ا منه الأصل

The same of the same · Ellon,

AMINISH ST.

ETIMES THE PASSAGE

The Severn Bridge is one of the British construction industry's finest achievements

Time to bridge the gap are a trading nation and it is right that we should provide infrastructure so we can import and export," he says.

There is now a hunger on the freight side of the railways

that will put more business to take freight off the roads in order to build up the railways

We do not necessarily have back on the tracks.

he dividing lines are blurring between civ-Civil engineering plays a crucial role in industry but il engineers and others in the construction industry such as architects, builders, maintecivil engineers will not be RECRUITMENT nance companies and financiers — and that is good for the industry as a whole. So says Peter Andrews. chairman of the Civil Engineering Contractors Association. People have got to be bold enough to see their roles changing just as everything in life is changing at a pretty fast rate," he adds.

"We can combine our skills to produce a better construction industry. We need to remove confrontation between different disciplines as much

Mr Andrews believes that greater teamwork will help to improve the poor though improving safety record in the construction industry. It will also help to improve training and to attract more recruits.

Training is something that the industry has not supported through the recession," he says. "It is a budget that is relatively easy to cut. You can do that for a while, but when you want to turn on the tap as things get better the trained badly needs investment, reports Rodney Hobson

"We have to start at schools and make the industry more roads, not enough cash is attractive. The knowledge that being provided to maintain what we have already, let careers masters and mistresses have of civil engineering is alone add to the road network. very sketchy. It does seem difficult to attract girls into the He also believes that the country must find the political industry and the position is will to produce a balance improving only slightly. between road and rail. "We would benefit from having a lot more females at every

Andrews wants to hammer home the message that civil engineers are vital for the comfort and wellbeing of the public and UK plc. Transport infrastructure such as roads, rail, harbours and airports, and even the humble sewage system are built and maintained by civil engineers," he says. "There is very little that people do in life that does not depend on civil

Mr Andrews fears that although we are still building increasing amount of freight carried. We have to be able to cope with more movement of

The £ló billion that Railtrack is proposing to spend is obviously going to improve the standard of the rail network." Rosemary Beales, the association's director, agrees that more money needs to go into road projects The environment does not and that ways of raising finance must just belong to protesters in be found. It is a false economy not to invest in the transtrees, it belongs to all of us port system," she says. "When bridges are closed because they need strengthening, traffic is diverted onto unsuitable roads. It takes longer to make the journey and damages the environment. Closing roads is the cheapest form of mainte-

Mr Andrews adds: "Local authorities are spending far less than is necessary because of budget cuts. The easiest way to save money is to cut down we must have an infrastructure that can support the economy. On country roads roundsmen used to clear the gutters so rain could run away into the ditch. The greatest enemy of roads is water. The Romans knew it but we have forgonen it. If this neglect goes on those roads will need total reconstruction."

While decisions on building new roads are ultimately the Government's responsibility. Mr Andrews does not believe that civil engineers can sit on the sidelines and absolve themselves from criticism by environmental protesters. "We have a duty to try to help and put over our point of view." he says. "It's a wider role than sitting there and letting someone else decide. We have to ensure that what we do is as environmentally sensitive as it can be. There has always got to be a balance but the environment does not just belong to protesters in trees, it belongs to all of us. Bypasses built around small towns are of benefit to those who live and work there. Protesters who take the view that we must stop everything have got it wrone."

A bright future with new trainees

IT will take an imaginative and committed training programme to put construction back on the road to recovery. Between 1990 and 1996, during the worst years of the recession, the industry lost almost half a million workers throughout the UK - people who left the industry for other employment and who will never return. Stephen Hoare

TRAINING

Poised for recovery, the construction industry must boost training efforts if it is to avert serious skills shortages. Paul Shepherd, chairman of the Constructors' Confederation, says: "We lost a generaapprentices. That. situation now needs to be Any skills shortages will appear first in Greater London and the southeast where commercial and supplementthe Jubilee Line Extension and the Heath-Express. The Greenwich millennium exhibition project

During the next three years the industry aims to recruit and train 10,000 entrants a year - in addition to the 14,000 already going through the system — and is pinning its hopes on the Government's Weifare to Work programme paid for by the windfall tax on

The Construction Confederation and the Construction Industry Training Board are involved in creating a £140 million Welfare to Work nackage for the industry extra cash that will fund sixmonth pre-training for 3,500 entrants a year.

The initiative will break the attitude of only recruiting leavers aged 16-17. Under Welfare to Work, the industry will be spreading its net to attract 18 to 25-year-olds. The introduction of the modern apprenticeships and the new national traineeship to be launched in September will provide a comprehensive man, says: "We support the idea of Welfare to Work. Recruiting from an older age group would help offset the high dropout rate among 16 to 17-year-olds on construction training and bring muchneeded stability."

Hugh Try, the CITB chair-

Set up in the Sixties and one of only two industry training bodies to have survived, the CITB meets the needs of a fragmented industry. Major contractors no longer employ their labour directly. Most of their workers are supplied on short-term contracts from labour only subcontractors. As a result, the bulk of workplace training is carried out by small firms of fewer than 14 employees. While the CITB's levy system channels money from employers to support industry training, work place-ment is a key year review of the CITB coming up April, the struction Confederation and rominent dustry figures are setting down some markers.

Mr Shepherd, chairman of Shepherd Construction, would like to see the training board getting tough. My personal view is that the CITB levy should be increased dramatically so that if you don't train, it becomes expensive. Last year the CITB distributed £36.2 million to employers in the form of training grants and a further £23.7

million via the Training and Enterprise Councils to support colleges and private training providers such as Tarmac and Jarvis. The recession, coupled with tighter funding from TECs -Training and Enterprise Councils — has hit the college construction departments hard. Fourteen colleges have back. Once gone, the training provision is lost forever. Mr Shepherd says: "I'd like to see something bold from the Government: support for is more expensive in terms of resources to train up a brick-year we ve Grants Scheme.

in the North West since 1907

BUILDING CIVIL ENGINEERING JOINERY ELECTRICAL

Preston Road, Grimsargh, Preston PR2 5SD Tel: 01772 794830 / Fax: 01772 704903

The CITE is providing £38 million in grants this hear for training in the construction industry. We return $1.00 for every pound we levy, either as grants or other financial support. Our aim, which we know is shared by the Construction Confederation.

must computent workforce possible. So we invest a further 50p for each pount of levy received because we generate extra cash is to ensure that the construction industry has the elsewhere. The additional investment covers new entrant training, developing NVOs and SVOs, and general careers advice.

Our new entrant training programme is the largest in the industry with some 12,500 trainees on courses each year.

Phrough our Grants Scheme we offer everything from new entrain training for school leavers including Modern Apprenticeships, through to new skills training for experienced personnel. Courses can range from half a day to several months. And we help up to 100,000 people a year. To get an information pack or details on the Grants Scheme, all you have to do is contact the CITB on 01485 578 333, quoting ref TSA

Construction Industry

Visor helps Hawksley Hill scale heights

BY RICHARD EVANS RACING CORRÉSPONDENT

JACK RAMSDEN, master punter and husband of the trainer Lynda Ramsden, cannot abide blinkers being fitted to horses and he is not exactly wild about the use of visors. So it was with some trepidation that Andrew Balding, assistant to the successful Thirsk duo, dared to suggest last week that headgear should be applied for the first time to

RICHARD EVANS

(4.00 Bath) Next best: Dummer Golf Time

(3.15 Leicester) The Times Private Handicapper (Gerald Hubbard) tound five winners at Yar-mouth yesterday, including Raeha (15-2) and What A Fuss (4-1)

Hawksley Hill, their consistent handicapper.

However, the son of lan Balding, the Kingsclere trainer, was the toast of the Ramsdens yesterday when Hawksley Hill, complete with a fetching blue visor, produced a career best effort to win the £90,000 Hong Kong Jockey Club Trophy at Sandown - the most valuable mile race ever run at the Esher

Apart from earning a share of the £40,000 first prize, Lynda Ramsden also won two free tickets and five days' stay

THUNDERER

GOING: GOOD DRAW: NO ADVANTAGE

4.45 Beau Venture.

Hawksley Hill holds off Supercal to land the Hong Kong Jockey Club Trophy at Sandown yesterday

in Hong Kong for the international races in December. "A lot of the credit must go to Andrew [Balding], who suggested, not without some trepidation, over breakfast a ek ago that we should try Hawksley Hill in a visor, .Mrs Ramsden said. "Jack is not exactly enthusiastic about headgear and normally responds by saying he has never heard such rubbish."

Although a home workout with a visor made no discernible difference, the headgear enabled Hawksley Hill to give Jimmy Fortune an armchair ride yesterday. "He was altravelling supremely well and it was just a matter of the split coming at the right time," the leading northern jockey said. The four-year-old, named after a hunting cover in the Zetland country, burst through a gap betwen Gold Spats and Bold Words to hit the front just inside the final furlong and won by a cosy half length from Supercal, who While Balding junior had every right to be thrilled, Balding senior showed he has not lost his touch when com-home. Hawksley Hill, carrying the colours of Paul Morrison, Sheikh Mohammed's northern spokesman, may make a quick reappearance in the Scottish Classic at Ayr on pleting a near 9-1 double on Rokeby Bowl and Commander Charlie, both of whom were strongly backed on course.

After missing all of last season because of a broken pelvis, Lord Of Men is on course to make up for lost time after winning the HBSC Trophy. despite giving his backers a scare two furlongs out. The John Gosden-trained runner appeared to be travelling sweetly in front for Frankie Dettori when he suddenly caught sight of a flock of ducks - and lost his rhythm.

For a moment it looked as though Silence Reigns might overhaul the hot favourite but, once Dettori gave him a couple of cracks, he lengthened his stride impressively at the furlong pole to win going

While the horses on view yesterday gleamed in the sun-shine and looked in the best of health, there have been too many stories of late concerning former racehorses found to be suffering from neglect or ill-treatment. Not before time, the British Horseracing Board has decided to provide funds for helping such animals — as part of a package of welfare

The initiative follows a report by the International League for the Protection of Horses, which concluded that, while there was no evidence of widespread abuse of former racehorses, racing should do more to deal with such cases.

3,30 Montendre

4.30 Hill Farm Blues

SIS

A ...

3.00 Baytord Thrust The Times Private Handicapper's top rating: 4.00 LIDO.

Our Newmarket Correspondent: 2.00 Petoskin. 103 (12) 0-0432 8000 TMES 74 (CD,8F,F.G.S) (Ms; D Robinson) 8 Holl 9-10-0 ... 8 Vites (4)

GOING: GOOD TO FIRM DRAW: 5F, LOW NUMBERS BEST

2.30 Admirals Flame

2.00 WHITE HORSE SELLING STAKES ($2,234: 1m 3i 144yd) (5 runners)

(2) 0031161 PETUSION 23 (D.F.S.) (Mrs. J. Rondledge) J. Panico 5-9-7
(1) 06-2043 SHABANAZ 13 (D.F.G.S.) (Pagcad Thomographer Ltd), W. Madr. 12-9-2
(3) 08-6500 YOUNG PRESENTED N. Rod 9-8-11
(4) ORGA (J. Goldenstein N. Budin 4-9-11
(5) 0650/O- MELOS 465 (S. Jampes) B. Thomas 4-8-11 ETTRIC: 4-5 Peterskin, 7-4 Shakesez, 10-1 Young Fredunck, 14-1 Meles, 20-1 Kite.

1998: FLIGHT MASTER 4-9-2 S Sandars (7-4 lav) P Malas 7 can

FORM FOCUS PETIOSKIN basi Casile Sacrat short-bead in 5- I ERICK 181 7th of 11 to Mustaro in mades hand-runner claimer at Woherbaropton (AW., 2m). SHABANNAZ seck and 51 3rd of 5 m Wedsh Mill in claimer at Haydook (100 41, good). YOUNES FRED-Selection: PETIOSKIN

2.30 JAMES & COWPER ACCOUNTANTS LIMITED STAKES (£3,397: 1m 5yd) (4 runners)

BETTING: 13-6 Swort Arm, 9-4 Bientary HBI, 7-2 Admirals Flame, 9-2 Startet Crescent. 1996: NO CORRESPONDING RACE

FORM FOCUS

3.00 tote bookmakers handicap (3-Y-0: £5,792: 5] 11yd) (7 runners)

1998: MINORACE 7-10-Martin Dwyer (12-1) K brary & ran

3.30 LONGLEAT CLARKING STAKES

R Havier (3)

1998: TUBERLEWSED PEARL 8-9 J Raid (4-11 for) B Marchan 7 rae

BANDBOX 51/4 3rd of 7 to Welcome Sunset in auchon making at Michigham (St., 1950 11 10th and Simble SHOPE SI 14th GALLY MOLL 71/4 2nd of 14 to 13th indian is making at hispotox (St., 1900). REGALD 51/4 8st of 12 to Petary (St., 1900) is soil). SCENE SI 11th of 20 to Premium auchon making how (SI 7yd, good in fam), STRID-106 (SMS 9) 3rd of 14 to Palmahasa, in auction.

(£3,054: 1m 2t 46yd) (12 runners)

BETTINCE 7-2 Fill Form Blaces, 9-2 Your Most Welcome, 11-2 Mono Lady, 13-2 Cuben Red, 7-1 Saddlest Hope, Bathe in Light, 10-1 Off The Rails, 14-1 others.

FORM FOCUS

BATH: 3.30 Lucky Dip. LEICESTER: 2.45 Suggest, 4.45 Silver Purse.

Uttoxeter deal

BBC television has signed a three year deal with Uttoxeter racecourse to cover its two major race meetings annually from 1998 to 2000. The contract features live coverage of

2.15 MOUNTSORREL MEDIAN AUCTION MAIDEN

TOTE: JACKPOT MEETING

STAKES (£2.679: 1m 1f 218yd) (11 runners)

LEICESTER

2.15 Go For Salt. 2.45 The Imposter. 3.15 Delight Of Dawn. 3.45 INCHALONG (nap). 4.15 Eagle Canyon.

Our Newmarket Correspondent: 2.15 GO FOR SALT (nap). 4.45 Indian Relative.

Richard Quinn, stable jockey to Paul Cole. is likely to be out of the saddle for six to eight weeks after breaking a wrist in a fall from Balance Of Power at Brighton on Tuesday. 5-1 Webpite Heights, 6-1 Lores Gold, 13-2 Delight Of Dame, 10-1 others

Dealer North

L.40 SELLING STAKES (2-Y-0: £2,469: 50) (13)
201 (2) 0054 AMGRY ALBERT 14 (V) C Smith 8-11 C Lowder (7) 202 (9) ASK SPEEDY SMAPS J Bradley 8-11 R French (3) 303 (1) 50 CORSEGAN 10 S Dow 8-11 M Roberts 204 (7) 5 LAKE WORSEGOVE 31 John Berry 8-11 M Forbion 205 (8) 04 MEANS BUSINESS 50 B Nearn 8-11 M Forbion 205 (10) 05 SUGGEST 104 (8) M Meado 8-11 F Norton 207 (5) 63 THE NAPOSTER 6 D Marray Smith 8-11 K Darkey 208 (12) 53 AMBRITON GRR. 21 P Feats 8-6 J F Egan 209 (11) 3422 DAYNABEE 7 IN Tinker 8-6 J F Egan 210 (13) 000 LEVYS IN THE KNOW 28 C Marray 8-6 D Section (5) 211 (4) 0 LIGNELS LUCKY LADY 31 J S Moore 8-5 IN Henry (2) 211 (4) 0 LIGNELS LUCKY LADY 31 J S Moore 8-5 IN Henry (2)	- 81 88 89 96 94 78
212 (3) PIP'S ADDITION 1 Grove 8-6 G Carber 213 (6) D ROMANTIC SECRET 40 R Judges 8-6 V Stattery	-
7-2 Suggest, 9-2 Amengion Girl, 11-2 Daynabee, 6-1 The Imposter, 7-7 others	.
3.15 BOLLINGER CHAMPAGNE SERIES
HANDICAP (Gentlemen amateurs: £3,500: 7f) (18)
301 (13) 240 BEANO SCREPT 10 J Hartson 4-12-0 C B Hills (4) 302 (7) 006 DUMMER GOLF TIME 14 (CD.F) Lord Humagelon 4-11-12	94
301 (13) 240 BEANO SCRIPT 10 J Harson 4-12-0 C B Hills (4) 302 (7) 006 DUMMHER GOLF TRAE 14 (CD,F) Lord Humangdon 4-11-12 A Balding	90
301 (13) 240 BEANO SCRIPT 10 J Harson 4-12-0 C B Hills (4) 302 (7) 005 DURMER GOLF TIME 14 (CD.F) Lord Humangdon 4-11-12 A Badden 303 (11) (015 DOUBLE GOLD 9 (D.F.S) M 8e8 3-11-11 C Rayson 44)	90 91
301 (13) 240 SEANO SCRIPT 10 J Harson 4-12-0 C B Hills (4) 302 (7) 006 DURMER GOLF TRUE 14 (CD.F) Lord Hustangdon 4-11-12 A Safating 303 (11) 1015 DOLBLE GOLD 9 (D.F.S) M Bell 3-11-11 . C Russon (4) 304 (14) 0010 SLVER LINNIG 10 (CD.F) A P Jones 3-11-7 . J Goldstein	90 91 91
301 (13) 240 BEANO SCREPT 10 J Harson 4-12-0 C B Hills (4) 302 (7) 005 DUAMARE GOLF TRAIE 14 (CD,F) Lord Hartengdon 4-11-12 A Sabiling 303 (11) 1015 DOUBLE GOLD 9 (D,F,B) M Betl 3-11-11 . C, Ranson (4) 304 (14) 1001 D	90 91 91
301 (13) 240 BEAND SCREPT 10 J Harson 4-12-0 C B Hills (4) 302 (7) 005 DJAMAER GOLF TRAE 14 (CD,F) Lord Hartesquion 4-11-12 A Sahalong 303 (11) (1015 DOUBLE GOLD 9 (D,F S) M Bed 3-11-11 . C. Russon 44) 304 (14) 0101 SILVER LEWIG 10 (CD,F) AP Jones 3-11-7 . J Boldstein 305 (5) 6005 ATTARROW 12 (8) Mars A Mang 4-11-5 D Michael (4) 305 (18) 4200 . TULSA 10 (4) B Goldby 3-11-5 D Michael (4) 307 (16) 4500 FALED 10 HT 20 (6) Michael 4-11-5 J Michael (4) J Michael (4) 307 (16) 5002 FALED 10 HT 20 (6) Michael 4-11-5 J Michael (4)	90 91 91
301 (13) 240 BEAND SCRIPT 10 J Harson 4-12-0 C B Hills (4) 302 (7) 006 DUAMER GOLF TIME 14 (CD,F) Lord Humangdon 4-11-12 A Bailding (14) 0010 SLVER LEWIS (16) 00 (LF) A P Jones 3-11-11 . C. Rausson (4) 304 (14) 0010 SLVER LEWIS (8) NES A Mag 4-11-5 D J Berball (4) 305 (15) 6005 ATTARROW 12 (8) NES A Mag 4-11-5 J Crowley (4) 306 (18) 4200 TULSA 10 (4) B Galdy 3-11-5 J Crowley (4) 307 (16) 5002 FAULED TO HIT 20 (8) NI Demoston 4-11-5 J Monts (4) 308 (2) 900 SASSY STREET 59 R Houston 4-11-2 P Phillips (4)	90 91 91 91 98 98 97 -
301 (13) 240 BEAND SCREPT 10 J Harson 4-12-0 C B Hills (4) 302 (7) 005 DUMMER GOLF TRAE: 14 (CD,F) Lord Hartingdon 4-11-12 A Bahding 301 (11) 015 DUMBLE GOLD 9 (D,FS) M Bed 3-11-11 L C. Russon (4) 304 (14) 0010 SLVER LRINGS 10 (CD,F) A P Jones 3-11-7 . J Gottse (4) 305 (18) 4020 LULSA 10 (4) Bodby 3-11-5 D McPhall (4) 305 (18) 4020 LULSA 10 (4) Bodby 3-11-5 Dumby (4) 307 (16) 5002 FALED 10 HT 20 (6) McDronoch 4-11-5 J Monts (4) 308 (2) 9020 SASSY STREET S9 R J Houghton 4-11-5 P Phillips (4) 308 (12) 6220 McZORAMO 27 (VCD,D) A Montas 5-11-1 R Tock (4) 302 (12) 6220 McZORAMO 27 (VCD,D) A Montas 5-11-1 R Tock (4)	20 51 55 50 55 - 24 50 51 55 50 55 - 24
301 (13) 240 BEANO SCREPT 10 J Harson 4-12-0 C B Hills (4) 302 (7) 005 DUAMAER GOLF TRAE 14 (CD,F) Lord Hartengton 4-11-12 A Babillong 303 (11) 1015 DOUBLE GOLD 9 (D,F B) M Betl 3-11-11 . C, Rauson (4) 304 (14) 0010 34 URE LIMBER (9) (CD,F) A P Double 3-11-11 . C, Rauson (4) 305 (5) 6005 ATTARROW 12 (8) Mrs. A Mag. 4-11-5 D McPatiel 0. 305 (16) 4200 TULSA 10 (9) B Goldby 3-11-5 D McPatiel (9) 307 (16) 5002 FAULED TO HIT 20 (6) M Limmoston 4-11-5 J Mortes (4) 308 (2) 900 SASSY STREET 59 R J-Hougton 4-11-2 P Phillips (4) 309 (12) 0230 McZOZONAMO 27 (V,CD,F) K Mongas 5-11-1 R Thomason 10 (4) 0402 DELISHT OF DAWH 10 E Albester 5-10-13 J Dembers (4) 310 (4) 0402 DELISHT OF DAWH 10 E Albester 5-10-13 J Dembers (4)	90 91 93 BB 77 - 92 95
301 (13) 240 BEAND SCREPT 10 J Harson 4-12-0 C B Hills (4) 302 (7) 005 DUMMER GOLF TIME: 14 (CD,F) Lord Hartesquion 4-11-12 A Bahaling 303 (11) (015 DOUBLE GOLD 9 (D,F) M Bed 3-11-11 L G. Rausson (4) 304 (14) (0019 SLVER LAWGE 10 (CD,F) A P Jones 3-11-7 J Gotshard 305 (5) 6005 ATTARRON 12 (6) Mrs A Jing 4-11-5 D Method (4) 306 (18) 4200 TULSA 10 (4) B Gotby 3-11-5 J Crowley (4) 307 (16) 5002 FALED TO HIT 20 (6) M Lamordon 4-11-5 J Phillips (4) 308 (12) 6002 SASSY STREET 59 R J Houghton 4-11-5 J Phillips (4) 309 (12) 0220 MEZZORAMO 27 (VLCD) A Moogas 5-11-1 R Thomston 310 (4) 0402 DELISHT OF DAWN 10 E Rheeler 5-10-13 J Downbart (4) 11 (10) 6005 SMARTE GUEST 11 (2) 651 D Skap 5-10-12 S Durch (4)	99 91 95 88 97 - 52 95 St
301 (13) 240 BEAND SCREPT 10 J Harson 4-12-0 C B Hills (4) 302 (7) 005 DJAMAER GOLF TRAE 14 (CD,F) Lord Hartesgelon 4-11-12 A Sahalong 303 (11) (015 DDRAMER GOLD 9 (D,F 6) M Bed 3-11-11 C, Russpa (4) 304 (14) 010 SILVER LURWG 10 (CD,F) A P Jones 3-11-7 J Goldstein 305 (5) 6005 ATTARROW 12 (8) Mars A Mary 4-11-5 D McPhall (4) 305 (18) 4200 LULSA 10 (4) B Goldby 3-11-5 D McPhall (4) 307 (16) 5002 FALED 10 HT 20 (6) Hultmorden 4-11-5 J Monts (4) 308 (12) 6000 SASSY STREET 59 R J-Houghton 4-11-2 P Pailips (4) 303 (12) 0220 MEZCORAMBO 27 (V,CD,F) X Montgas 5-11-1 R Thombox (4) 303 (12) 0220 MEZCORAMBO 27 (V,CD,F) X Montgas 5-11-1 R Thombox (4) 311 (10) 6005 SAMART GUEST 11 F, 63.5) C Stap 5-10-12 S Dursch (4) 312 (1) 030- RESE US PARRISHO 334 (4) DW Massagn 9-10-12 T McCordby	99 91 98 88 97 - 52 95 £ 90
301 (13) 240 BEAND SCREPT 10 J Harson 4-12-0 C B Hills (4) 302 (7) 005 DUMMER GOLF TIME: 14 (CD,F) Lord Hartesquion 4-11-12 A Bahaling 303 (11) (015 DOUBLE GOLD 9 (D,F) M Bed 3-11-11 L G. Rausson (4) 304 (14) (0019 SLVER LAWGE 10 (CD,F) A P Jones 3-11-7 J Gotshard 305 (5) 6005 ATTARRON 12 (6) Mrs A Jing 4-11-5 D Method (4) 306 (18) 4200 TULSA 10 (4) B Gotby 3-11-5 J Crowley (4) 307 (16) 5002 FALED TO HIT 20 (6) M Lamordon 4-11-5 J Phillips (4) 308 (12) 6002 SASSY STREET 59 R J Houghton 4-11-5 J Phillips (4) 309 (12) 0220 MEZZORAMO 27 (VLCD) A Moogas 5-11-1 R Thomston 310 (4) 0402 DELISHT OF DAWN 10 E Rheeler 5-10-13 J Downbart (4) 11 (10) 6005 SMARTE GUEST 11 (2) 651 D Skap 5-10-12 S Durch (4)	99 91 98 88 97 - 52 95 £ 90

3.45 TATTERSALLS AUCTION NURSERY

been last turning for

401 (5) 0001 KORG DARIUS 16 (D.S) R Hannon 9-7 Dame O'Nell 83 (2) 334 WHISKY MAKE 17 R Hanton 9-6 R Phosphas 84 (2) (11) 5233 LAKELAND PRIDE 27 P Evins 9-5 J F Egan 89 404 (10) 113 JACKERN 64 (V.F.G) B Rotheel 9-4 M Festion 9-7 405 (7) 000 WHACKER-00 17 R HEIRCHARD 8-10 J Carroll 82 407 (5) 135 WHO MOSE S (B.CD.F.G) 6 Mechan 8-8 M Tochour 91 408 (9) 300 O' HISGINS 79 R 9ccs 8-8 K Darloy 90 409 (6) 4820 PKRICA OLIVE 8 M Tomplans 8-4 M Henry (2) 95 410 (3) 0405 MILIAT MAGGE 8 K NOT 8-4 M Address 9-5 411 (15) 5212 WICHALONG 6 (0,6) M Britain 8-4 C Carter 89 410 (4) 0402 STRANSEA 14 B Bargh 7-11 N Caristic 99 2 Increasing 5-1 Jackero, 11-2 King Darloy 7-1 Labeland Prids, 9-1 others.	MAREHGAP (2-Y-U: £3,535: 5f 218y0) (12)
405 (1) 444 THE GROVELER 13 P Eners 9-3 W. J. O'Connor 91 405 (7) 607 WHADCES-DO 17 R HEBRISTAND 8-10 J. Carroll 82 407 45; 1135 WHO NOSE S (B.CB.F.E) 8 Meetam 8-8 M Toublost 97 408 (5) 300 O' HEBGINS 79 R 96ss 8-8 K. Darley 90 409 (6) 4820 PARTICLA O'LIVE 6 M Tombists 8-4 M Henry (3) 95 410 (3) 0405 MELIANS MAGEL 8 K Norty 8-4 N Admits 95 411 (13) 5212 MICHALONG 6 (D.5) M Britains 8-4 G Carter 11 412 (4) 002 STRANSEA 14 8 Bangh 7-11 N Carleste 95	402 (2) 334 WHSSKY MACK 17 R Hanton 9-6 R Hoopbes 89 403 (11) 5333 LAKELAND PRIDE 27 P Evans 9-5 J F Egan 89
409 (6) 4820 PARTICIA DEME 8 M Tomptons 8-4	405 (1) 444 THE GROVELLER 13 F Ears; 9-3 W J 0"Comor 91 906 (7) 004 VHACXER-DO 17 R Halfreshead 8-1 J Carroll 82 407 (5) 1135 WHO MOSE 5 (8,05,Fs) 6 Meeton 8-8 M Tebbot 97
412 (4) 002 STRAVSEA 14 8 Bangh 7-11 N Captale $5	409 (6) 4820 PATRICIA OLINE 8 M Torophins 8-4 M Henry (3) 95
	412 (4) 002 STRAVSEA 14 8 Bangh 7-11 N Captisle 95

4.15 CLAIMING STAKES ($2,595: 1m 4f) (9)

11-4 Eagle Carrest: Welch Mill. 4-1 Rock The Barney, 5-1 Two Socks, 8-1 others COURSE SPECIALISTS

12.8% Li Roberts 12 hom 94, 12.8%; 6 Carter, 12 from 110, 10.9% by 1½ lengths.

4.45 BURTON HANDICAP

($3,321; 31 210)01 ($20) 601 (3) 0044 INDIAN RELATIVE 19 (BF,D,F) R Buest 4-10-0 D Griffing (3) GEZ (7) 3003 DEMBRAE 17 (D.F.S) D Murzey Smith 5-9-13 C Londing (7) 603 (19) 0040 SOLLIN HARRY 18 (D.F.S) T Extenty 5-9-12 . J Carroll 604 (16) 000 PARTHER 13 (V.D.F.S.S) P Brass 7-9-12 J F Epan 605 (8) 0402 BEAU VENTURE 5 (D.F.S.S) 8 Palling 9-9-10

606 (7) 6021 MERANTI 5 (D.F.G.) J Bradley 4-9-8 (Tec.) R Princets (5) 607 (20) 0-00 DOUBLE MATT 24 (D.F.) Ms P Sy 5-9-5 ... N Carlishe 608 (4) 0055 CRISSEM 14 (F) R Hollinstrand 4-9-5 F Lynch 609 (5) 6000 SLVER PLRSE 6 (V.D.F.) A P. Inner 3-9-1 J D Smith (3) 610 (8) 000 SAVID STAR 29 (V) D Haydu Jones 5-9-1 ... S Oromic 611 (13) 3000 HAMBIAH'S USHER 33 (D.F.G.) C Morray 5-8-13

☐ Goretski made it five victories from his last six outings in the Low Green Handicap at Catterick yesterday. The Nigel Tinkler-trained elding ran on in

SHEEHAN on BRIDGE

BY ROBERT SHEEHAN, BRIDGE CORRESPONDENT

This hand is from the third round of the 1997 Gold Cup, in which a team containing live previous winners, including your correspondent, was beaten by a team containing Peter Donovan. the bridge correspondent of the Daily Mail. The humiliation is so unbearable that I've switched to chess.

Love all

+Q952 YA7 + Q 10 ♦KJ732 ÷K 10 3 . N +64 ♥KQ543 ₩J 1096 W +A974 +852 +Q865 +AJ87 ₹82 +KJ63 ♦894 1 C 3 S

Contract: Four Spades by South. Lead: king of hearts

i was West. It is debatable have been wrong if the declarwhat I should have done over South's One Spade. As my hearts were so poor I decided it was better to show the twosuited nature of my hand, but that gave an important clue in the play. ing trump, and now the only Peter Collins, Declarer, playing with Donovan, took the ace of hearts, with Brian Senior (East) dropping the jack. Declarer continued with the queen of spades. That was the right play - with West marked as being short in the black suits it was possible that East had K IO x x of spades, and playing the queen might enable declarer to pick up all of East's trumps. I won the king (ducking is better), and continued a less than dynamic defence by returning a spade. That would section on Saturday

WORD-WATCHING

CANNIZZARO

b, White Chianti

a. A musical direction

c. A chemical reaction

b. Mark at royal tennis

c. An area of North London

Answers on page 46

HAZARD CHASE

a. An obstacle race

By Philip Howard

MOBIUS STRIP

b. A single surface

b. A mountain goat

. c. A Bulgarian road sign

c. Swedish football gear

a. A nightclub

KLEPHT

a. A brigand

Q # Q # Q # Q # · 全主 · 全主 · 全主 · 全主

Diagram of final position

7年11世

WONE !

5 ¢3 6 N¢3 7 h3

snooker player.

Pizza Express, London Wail 1997

Bc4 0-0

11 Od2

13 Kh1

15 Kh2

White: Steve Davis

Black: Daniel Johnson

Philistines v Academics

Giuoco Piano

qualification a degree from Oxford or Cambridge) and Philistines ended in victory for the Academics by 62-32. The most brilliant game was played by Daniel Johnson of

The Times. who offered his queen to devastating effect against Steve Davis, the er had had five club tricks and East the king of diamonds. though it was better than the club switch found at the other Declarer drew the remain-

IMPs

problem was the club suit. Thinking from my double that it was likely I had nine cards in the red suits, which with the three spades I had already turned up with marked me with a singleton club, he played a club to the king. He continued by finessing the nine of clubs on the way back. to make the contract. Good

☐ Robert Sheehan writes on bridge Monday to Friday in Sport and in the Weekend

By RAYMOND KEENE Here is a game by the second CHESS CORRESPONDENT prizewinner at Dortmund. White: Artur Yusupov Academics win

KEENE on CHESS

Black: Viswanathan Anand A match between chess-Dortmund, July 1997 playing VIPs divided into a team of Academics (basic

Queen's Gambit Accepted 4 B/c4 5 N/3 e6 ⇔5 20 Ox54 21 Rx53 28 Fota3 30 Obs Ræ Ræ3

White resigns Times book

32 0∈5~

The Times Winning Moves 2 contains 240 chess puzzles from international grandmaster Raymond Keene's daily column in The Times, and is available now from bookshops or from B. T. Batsford Ltd (tel: 01376 321276 at £6.99 plus postage and packing).

Raymond Keene writes on chess Monday to Friday in Sport and in the Weekend section on Saturday.

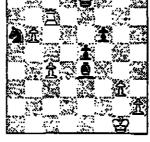

WINNING MOVE

By Raymond Keene

White to play. This position is from the game Hommeles

— Timman, Holland 1997. What is the quickest way for White to make use of his passed pawns on the queenside?

Solution on page 46

Going, good to firm

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS

Sandown Park Going: good to firm

2.05 (Im 3f 91yd) 1, ROKEBY BOWL (L.
Dettori, 7-4 fav): 2, Porza Figlio (Pat
Ecdery, 4-1), 3, Knawafi (D O'Donohoe,
4-1) ALSO RAN: 9-2 Technicolour (Sh),
7 Smart Pay (Rh), 5 ran, '31, '3, 2h-1, 81, l Balding at Knosciere Tote (2:30, C1.30,
22.10 DF 54.90 CSF, E7 60

22.10 OF £4.90 CSF. £7.60
2.35 (1m 21 7yd) 1, LORD OF MEN (L. Detroit, 1-2 lav): 2, Silence Reigns (J. Red, 14-1), 3, Papus (M. Roberts, 20-1). ALSO RAN 9-2 Heicon (501), 9 Ismanos (40), 16 Bahaman Knight (601), 6 ran. 2hl. nk. nk. 3hl. 7l. J. Gosden at Newmarket. Tote £1.60, £1.20. £2.40 DF £5.00 CSF. £3.37
3.10 (1m 14yd) 1, HAWKSLEY HILL (J. Forture, 10-1), 2, Supercal (D. Holland, 50-1); 3, Gold Spats (J. Red, 12-1); 4, Bold Words (M. Roberts, 20-1), ALSO RAN 9-2 law Danceng Image (601), 11-2 Red Robbo, 7 Ply To The Stars, 10 Right Wing, 11 Cosmo Prince, 14 Amustriarak. Harry Wolfon (501), Hombearn, 16 Clan Ben, Lonely Leader, 20 Armak Ageb, 33 Concer Un, My Lewicz, 40 Salfon 18 ran. kl, 1 kl, 1shd, 1 kl, nk, 1 Ramssden at Thirsk Tote, £14.00, £2.90, £3.90, £3.40, £4.90 DF £519.90
Tim £5.609.40
2.40 (1m 61), GEORGIA VENTURE (G.

CS.609 40
2.40 (fm 6h 1 GEORGIA VENTURE (G
Duffield, 9-1), 2 Silently (R Pirenct, 101): 3, Shining Dancer (J F Egan, 8-1)
ALSO RAN 3-1 far Yudor Island, 5 Percy Isle (5th), 6 Birtsey (6th), 7 Mazurek, Midyan Blue (4th), 10 Bowchite Court 9 ran 44, 344, sh hd. 11, 11-1 S Woods at Newmarket, Tote 214 80, 52 80, 52 30, 52 40 DF 562 10 Tho 5226 90 CSF
599 49 Tricast; 6992 46 Tote

E89 49 Tricast 2692.46 Tote
4.10 (71 16vd) 1, COMMANDER CHARLE (Plat Eddery, 5-2 fav), 2, Outsourcing
(D Holland, 11-2), 3, Seeedah (J. Derton,
7-1), ALSO RAN, 3, Radar 9 Damig
News, 16 Celechal Bay, Middle Temple
(4th), Simier (6th), 20 Lord Warlord, 25
Fair Game, Proogal Son, 33 Kings,
Fair Game, Proogal Son, 33 Kings,
Hussar, Shawron's Secret (6th), Zada,
66 Porthrily Buoy, 15 ran 11-1, 13-1, 3-1, 3-1, 3-1, 18-alding ar Kingscher Tote,
E3-60, £1-70, £1-90, £2-60, DF: £10-80,
Tino £12-00, CSF: £15-28,
4-40 (51-6)-yd), 1, FATH ALONE (R Mullen),

Tho £12 00. CSF: £15.28.

4.40 (5) Gyd 1. FAITH ALONE (R Mullen. 100-30 bay. Thundarer's napl. 2. Willow Dale (R Cochrane. 11-2); 3. Tapisto (R Proc. 20-1) ALSO RAN 9-2 Clan Chef., 7 White Entry 9 Half Tone (4th), 10 Dande Flyer (5th), Lord High Admiral, 12 Hoh Returns (6th), 16 Kiloullen Lad. 20 Master of Passion 11 ran Nr, Nr, Nr, 14, 21. C. Wall at Newmarket Tote £4.50 £2.10, £3.00 CF £10.40 Tro: £274.20. CSF. £1896. Thosat. £292.57

Jackpot: £10.097.00 (0.36 winning tickets. Pool of £9,101.60 carried forward to Leicaster today).

Placepot: £426.60. Placepot £426.60.

Quadpot £270.90. Catterick Bridge

Going, good to firm
2.15 (7i) 1. LEND A HAND (J Weever, 17 tay), 2. On The Mat (J Carrot, 33-1), 3.
Good On Yer (J Farrang, 12-1), ALSO RAN 12 Rodertle, Sheet Jov. 25 Dougs
Droam (6th), 33 Gay Abandon (4th), 40
Western Lord 50 Czar Wars (5th), Mecca
Princess, Mr Fund Switch 11 ran NR
Buzz 11i, hd. 51; N. 1-51; M Johnston at Middleham Tote $1 10; £1 10, £3-90, £1 70 DF £8 40 Triz £19.90 CSF.

517.56
2.45 (Im. 3f. 214yd) 1, MY MILLIE (T. Wüllern, 7-2), 2, Durgams First (A. Cuthane, Event fav) 3, Rieley Rose (D. Galfiths, 4-1), ALSO RAN 7 Havana Heights (4th) 14 Fox Sparrow, Pett Flora Rith, 33 Lady Sik (5th), Single Man 8 can 1-1, 121, 51, 111, 11, D. Barker at Richmond. Total 52.50, £1.10, £1.50, £1.70 DF £4.30 CSF £7.36
3.20 (51), CORESTER (Commont), 4.6 $1.70 DF £4.30 CSF £7.36 $20 (5)) 1. GORRETSKI (1. Chamock, 4-6 (ax); 2. Johanyo (J. Quirn, 10-1); 3. Pleasure Time (P. Fessey, 9-1). ALSO RAN 5 Swan At Whalloy, 7 Borndiffe Grange (8th), 10 Blazing Imp. 14 Captain Carat (5th), 20 Ramsey Hope, 50 Imp. Express (4th), 9 ran 12(, nk, sh hd, 1), 13(, N. Tinkler at Matton, 100 £1.90, £1.30, £1.70, £4.30 DF £9.40 Tim £56.20, CSF £10.95 Tricast £49.45.

3.50 (5f 2f2yd) 1, SPOTTED EAGLE (A Whetan, 11-4 jf-lav); 2, Sir Tassler (A Culhane, 25-1); 3, Henry The Hawk (J Carolt, 16-1). ALSO RAN: 11-4 jf-lav Sense of Priority (6th), 3 Docklands Cartage, 7 Silk Cottage (4th), 10 Juddy, Loch Style (5th), 16 Chalce, 66 Morning Star. 10 ran. 13l, shd, 11l, 2. St. Martyn Ware at Richmond, Tota; E3-40; E1-10, ES-20, E2-60. DF: E33-80 Tho: £138-80. CSF. £72-68 CSF: 572,68
4.20 (7) 1, MYSTIQUE AIR (J Quinn, 13-8); 2, Moon Fairy (F Lynch, 11-10 leay); 3; Daintree (Dale Gibson, 3-1) ALSO RANK (IO) Joyku Joy (Arr), La Perdonne (Sth), Psum Sativum, Thewrightone (Sth), Fran, 141, 2, 61, 3H, 3H, E Weymes at Leybum, Tote: 52.50; C1 50, C1 10, DF: 51,70 CSF 53,49.

E1.70 CSF E3.49.
4.50 (Im 3f 214yd) 1, THE ROUNDS&LS (A Cuthane, 8-1); 2, Kingdom Pearl (L Charnock, 8-1); 3, Hadidi (D McKeown, 11-4 fav), ALSO RAN: 3 Fullopep (Aft), 4 Widmoor (601), 9 March Mangold (501), 12 Coral Island, 14 Gymcrak Gorjos, 20 Zarabay, 33 Tabal Mischaef, 10 ran, 3, 4, 11, 34, 11, R Johnson Houghton at Didcot, Totar E9 00; 13:20, 23:30, E1 90. DF: 522.90. Trio E21 70. CSF. £69 37 Tricast E207.38

Placepot: £15.90. Quadpot: £17.10. Yarmouth

Going: good 25.10 CSF 171.81. 2.25 (67 3yd) 1. Headhunter (M Hills. 15-2), 2. Store of Destrry (16-1), 3. Royal Rights (8-13 fav) 8 ran, 1 ki, 2 ki, W Haggas Tore (27 50; 61.30, 53.20, 61.30 DF 632 60, CSF, 6113.23. 2.55 (1m 3yd) 1. Rasha (A McGione, 15-2) 2. Go For Green (33-1) 3. Prana Verde (6-4 lav) 10 ran. 11, 11-1 R Armstrong. Tota 03 10, 02.60, 05.70, 01.30 DF. 6143 30 Tror 5307 20 (part won Pool of 055.23 carried forward to Leosets 4 45 (octay). CSF, 6202 19. Trocast, 6493 33. 3.30 (7) Syd) 1. Bluerygreen (6 Hind, 6.4 lav). 2. Kataf (9-4) 3. Seventy (11-2) 8 ran. 3/1. 3/3/1. P. Chapple-Hyarn. Total 51.90. 1.10. 51.40. 51.30. DF: 52.90. CSF: 54.52.

4.00 (7) 3yd) 1. Immoz (A McGrano, 7-4), 2. Serently (9-2); 3. Kermist (8-1), Medited 13-8 tay 5 ran. 31, 34, H Cassi, Tota. 22-43, 51.10, 52.10 DF, 65.40 CSF 28.84 CSF to 34 4 30 (71 3yd) 1, Yorkie George (K Darley, 7-2), 2, Imisab (9-1); 3, Turnbleweed Ridge (2-1 law) 10 ran 2 14, rk L Current Total E3 90, £1 60, £2 70, £1 60, DF £11 90, Tro: £14 60, CSF, £35 20, Tricast; £74,16, Stack. 4-1): 2, Burning (5-1): 3, Leading Note (100-30 lay). 9 ran. Std., 41 B. Hantury. Total: 64.20, 61.10, C1.10, C2.30 Dr.: 022.30 Top: 028.60, CSF: 924.73 Tricast $70.99. Placepot £7.80. Quadpot £3.10.

Yorkie George shortens up YORKIE GEORGE, trained by Luca Cumani, was shortened in the betting for the Vodafone Stewards' Cup at Goodwood on August 2 after his impressive victory at Yarmouth yesterday. Coral reduced the three-year-old from 25-1 to 16-1 after he beat Intisab by 2½ lengths in the Filby Bridge Rated Stakes. Corai's bet: 4-1 Danetime, 12-1 My Best Valentine, 14-1 Clan Chief, 16-1 others.

RACELINE

[علدًا منه الأصل

FORM FOCUS

RETTING: 8-11 Mastendre, 9-2 Lucky Dip, 6-1 Hard To Figure, 10-1 Mos Bruce, 12-7 Chief's Lady, 20-1 Deimb, 25-1 Moor Hall Princess, 33-7 others. 1996: TAFAHHUS 4-9-2 M Roberts (5-4 tar) M Polytese 9 san-4.00 AVEBURY MEDIAN AUCTION MAIDEN STAKES (2-Y-0: £2,793: 5t 161yd) (14 runners)

,793: 51 161yd) (14 rumbers)
653 BANDERN 12 (BF) (Bandhor Robard) S Mellor 9-0
32 LIDO 13 (G Paud) B Hills 9-0
800 RESALD 33 (Spanish Consection) D Hyde 9-0
633 STREINIS (RING 12 (F Taplin) M Clemmon 9-0
SUN DIANCER 64(sh Wood Riching) N Smith 9-0
THOMAS CHANLLEY (C Washboom) R C'Sollhern 9-0
DOVER SULL, (R Marchang) P Malin 8-9
5 GALY MILL 22 (Rich 6 Belderg) B Baiding 9-9
GRINGER FORL, (R Washboom) S Robath 8-9
MUSTICULE DREAM (W Said) R Charlon 8-9 4000 SESDE 40 (P DROM) M Maude 8-9
TIARA (Robbard Lib) B Meetan 8-9
TIARA (Robbard Lib) B Meetan 8-9
TIARA (Robbard Lib) B Meetan 8-9
USES SELVAND (M Caston) M Chandon 8-6
0 TUT 12 (Dragos Massistal Services D J Evers) K Michalille 6-9
Lude, 5-1 Tasa, 11-2 Shading King, 7-1 Bandhor, Mustiges Demen, 12-7 6ath

BETTING: 6-4 Udo, 5-1 Thes., 11-2 Shading Klog, 7-1 Bandhox, Musikess Dreem, 12-1 Sadly Mill. Toggy Shano. 20-1 others. FORM FOCUS

4.30 WESTONBIRT FILLIES HANDICAP

1998: ROYAL THEMBLE 5-8-8 Marie Dwyer (12-1) N Chance 7 ras

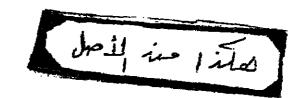

sajor in handica UR MOST WELCO handicap at Wandso				Lucia in 14-cum good to firm). Solution: HELL	a patrocate :	at Leicester (le
·.:		OUR	SE S	PECIALISTS	40.00
TRAINERS R Charton J Serry H Candy R Revent	17 11 4	8003 47 41 17	35.2 - 25.5 22.5	JOCKEYS Pat Eddery Paul Eddery J Rand	Wirmers - 30 - 15 - 19	Bites % 113 28.5 86 17.4 117 18.2

Blinkered first time

two Grand National trials.

HALL FARM BLUES but Anal-Ku 3 in 10-namer handing over course and distance (good).

WHSSPERMS DANNEY IZ BRY of 12 to thirty Tilby in combiness case at Window (Im 2, good to smill on penuliname start with ELLWAY LOVY, Sib werest off 47 11th ABLOLDER'S ROPE 41 7th of 12 to 12 to 14 to 14 to 15 t

Black day for athletics as selectors fail leadership test

f 400 metres running is the strongest arm of British athsalvage some national pride from head in 1989 with no one nominatletics at the moment, leadership must be the weakest. The row that has erupted this week over the dropping of Roger Black from the individual event for the world championships in Athens next month says much about the sport as it limps from one public relations disaster to another.

THE ROLL OF THE ROLL OF THE PARTY.

Mary and the second second second second

事情 おとりか

A STATE OF THE STA

Parties de la company de la co

Mark of the state of the العربين المراجعين الدي

e di in Biote

COMMENT OF THE COMME

Black missed the British trials because of a virus and it may be that he was never going to recover quickly enough to make the startline in Athens. But he is now furious that he will be given no chance to prove his fitness and that, almost unbelievably, he learnt his fate not from the selectors, but from the press. Nobody," Black said of the selectors, "had the foresight to say we had better give him a call." At the heart of this sorry saga is the inane way in which his non-selection has been handled. Black the Olympic Games in Atlanta last summer. There he ran with a maturity and commitment, admired by fellow competitors and the public alike, to take silver in the 400 metres.

He is a popular athlete who has had a long career punctuated by injury that would have forced many others to give up. But he came through to help set the stage for the new crop of 400 metres runners - Iwan Thomas, Mark Richardson and Jamie Baulch among them. He was a natural. selection when it came to finding a successor to Linford Christie as captain of the British athletics men's team.

Christie was originally made "captain" by a somewhat bizarre procedure. It was a position that had never really existed in British athletics outside of the significant championships. So Britain went ed as captam.

As the contest went on and it grew ever more possible that Britain might win, the officials realised that somebody would have to go up to collect the cup. Christie was made captain on the spot and has effectively remained captain" since.

At the start of this season Black was named as the man to take over from Christie and he gave an illuminating analysis of what that might mean. "You could argue that the captain in athletics is not as important as in football, cricket or rugby, but that is changing."
Black said.

"There have been problems in the past that should have been dealt with and, if young athletes had realised there was somebody they could go to to talk it through, the role would be a valid one. Linford has played that role with certain athletes and I hope I can do so with a wider spectrum.

BRYANT'S

There is a communication part to be played with athletes, management and press, and one of motivating the troops. I think that has been missing the last few years. This is not a criticism of Linford because there has been no defined captain's role."

If the captaincy of Britain's athletics team is to be anything like the man who could make it so. He, along with Geoff Parsons, the high jumper, has been instrumental in setting up the British Athletes' Association, which has done much to broker peace between the British Athletic Federation and the athletes.

In a sport that has essentially been rudderless since the departure of Peter Radford, it is painfully obvious that men like Black are badly needed. We may have an embarrassing number of talented 400 metres runners, but we have a dearth of people who can run the sport.

From the instant that Thomas crossed the finishing line in a British record of 44.36sec, towing his fellow competitors to some excellent performances, picking the 400 metres team was always going to be a difficult call for the selectors. But that is what selectors are for. There was no simple improving athlete. He is popular, a joker and a great character. He seems to be somewhat amazed at his hasty selection and it may well be that, by picking him in these circumstances, the selectors will have put him under more pressure than needed. It is tough to be labelled "the man who got Roger Black's place".

lack said: "I would never take a place from Jamie if I did not think I could do better than he could. He is running OK, but he has not broken 45 seconds this year, which I did 12 times last year."

Black had asked for time to demonstrate his fitness and the sensible path to take was to see how he performed in Hechtel, Belgium, this weekend. With Michael Johnson, the reigning Olympic champion, nursing an injury and likely to appear in card entry, a healthy Black would present, along with Thomas, a serious medal challenge.

In its coverage of the British trials, Channel 4 featured a bookmaker quoting odds on the 400 metres. It would be interesting to see what prices they would quote if Black and Baulch lined up in Athens. It may well be that the selectors know their sport better than the bookmakers, but I would not bet on it.

Black says that "leadership lasts through the bad times as well as the good times". If he recovers from his virus and makes the 4 x 400 metres team, he intends to play his part as captain in Athens. head held high. British athletics is sadly in need of men like him. On the track he has already won an Olympic silver medal for his 400 metres running. He could yet win

GOLF: FORMER CHAMPION REACHES MAJOR CROSSROADS

Faldo must fear that strife begins at 40 easily gained are not worth aiming for in the first place. Most people need to be liked. Not Faldo. What he craves is respect, not affection. His dearest wish is that one day people would be proud that they had seen him at his best. Like every other human being, Faldo has flaws. He who has none is either a saint or terminally boring. He knows that he is neither, but if boring means winning, he will settle for that.

Even as he moves through the last 24 hours of being thirty-something, Faldo is still in search The fortieth birthday is classically a time for assessment. For many it is a crossroads from which they of nirvana, that blissful state of peace that is coveted by many but attained by precious few. He has can either take the right turning and get where they are going, or get it wrong and find themselves in a achieved much in his 39 years and life outside the game may be carwith a passion. The fear for this most dedicated of golfers is that he peted with roses, but without the may have reached not a blind alley, fertiliser of victory they may be but the end of the road as a contenlosing their bloom. ter in the tournaments that truly The suspicion is that, even matter to him. though he might be comfortable Faldo is a dedicated man on a with his new life in the United lifelong mission to prove himself States, Paldo still feels unfulfilled. against a world that he sometimes The plasma from which he draws his lifeblood is the winning of seems to believe is hostile to him. In his dogged, bloody-minded way, he major championships, and as he might even prefer it so: ambitions tees off today he must be wondering if he may have shouted his last hurrah, for he is undoubtedly not the player he once was.

He has done little of note since he won the Nissan Open in Los Angeles early in the season and, in an attempt to rekindle a faltering touch on the greens, he has gone back to a favourite putter with which he won the Masters in 1989 and 1990 and the Open in 1990. There are sound technical reasons why he has returned to his old ally; superstition tinged with desperation may also have played their part in his decision.

Faldo is a firm believer in the work ethic. If dedication brought its due reward, he would have won a dozen major championships and more. Many would give their eye teeth to have won six, but it is not sufficient for this singular man.

He wants more, and more yet, and not even his faithful coach. David Leadbetter, may be able to give it to him. At times in the past decade the temptation has been to scream aloud when he suggested for the thousandth time that all that was needed for the definitive performance was a little more "fine tuning with Lead", a sort of golfing ailing spirit. As he opens his 22nd Open Championship campaign it is a mantra that is beginning to sound a little hollow. He may be on the verge of another glorious chapter in a golden career; on the evidence of the past few months, it seems unlikely. Contented he might be, but if he really has passed the Major Road Ahead sign for the last time, can he be truly happy? Surely not.

Cup deadline puts pressure on Pavin By Mark Souster

THERE are two enduring images of Corey Pavin: the aggressive Californian who, bedecked in Desert Storm peaked cap, took gamesmanship and sporting jingoism to its limit during the infamous "War on the Shore" at Kiawah Island in the 1991 Ryder Cup; and the little man who, having fired a superb four-wood to the 18th green on his way to winning the 1995 US Open, raced up a hillock to see his ball stop five feet from the flag.

Little has been heard of Pavin since. That US Open victory at Shinnecock Hills heralded the beginning of a slump that can immediately follow success. Although he won the Colonial tournament in 1996, this year has been his worst of the decade. Pavin, 37, has managed only one top-ten finish in 25 tournaments and won a paltry $81,464. He stands 136th in the US money-list but, of greater significance is the fact that in Ryder Cup year, he is only 37th in the points table. Unless there is a dramatic and immediate improvement. Tom Kite, the US team captain, with whom Pavin played a practice round at Royal Troon on Tuesday, will be hard-pressed to pick him as one of his two wild-card choices for Valderrama in September.

"Knowing that I have been slipping out of Ryder Cup contention has been the most difficult to deal with. I really be on the team again and I have just got to play well," Pavin. who accepted an invitation from Kite to play at Valderrama last Sunday. said. "Tom is obviously thinking about picking me, but at the moment I don't believe he could. "I haven't played well for almost a year now: I lost confidence in my swing and when that happens it is a gradual process to get it back. I'm pretty confident that things are

SPEEDWAY

SPEEDWAY STAR CUP: Semi-final, sec-ond-leg: Bradford 56 Eastbourne 34 Eastbourne win on aggregate 92-68

PREMIER LEAGUE: Hull 50 Long Eaton 40. TENNIS

STUTTGART: Men's tournament: Second round: S Bruguera (Sp) bi F Dewulf (Bet) 7-6, 3-6, 8-1; F Mannila (Sp) bi F Melegera (Br) 6-4, M Larsson (Swe) bi G Rused-ski (GB) 7-6, 6-7, 6-4; A Portas (Sp) bi T Muster (Austria) 6-4, 7-5; F Claver (Sp) bi M Rossel (Switz) 7-5 6-1; Y Katerinkov (Russ) bi F Santoro (Fi) 2-5, 6-3, 6-4; A Costa (Sp) bi S Dosedel (Cz) 6-3, 7-5; B Becker (Ger) bi K Alarm (Mor) 7-6, 7-6; K Kucera (Stovens) bi A Mediceder (Mor) 6-2, 6-4, A Beraestegui (Sp) bi F Vicente (Sp) 6-4, 6-2; H Gurry (Arg) bi B Ulinsuch (Cz) 7-5, 6-2

WASHINGTON: Men's tournament: First round: M Mendon (US) by J Sabenstein (US) 4-6, 6-1, 6-3, M Tebbutt (Aus) bi N Pereira (Yen) 6-2, 6-4, 8 Sleven (N2) bt Jensen (US) 7-6, 6-3, 8 Ellwood (Aus) bt M knowles (Beh) 5-4 ret Second round: M Chang (US) bt L Henrera (Mex) 6-3, 6-7, 7-6, 9 Aorda (Cz) bi D Nankim (SA) 6-4, 6-2, 1 Slotlenberg (Aus) bi A Chertesov (Russ) 6-2, 6-3; L Smith (US) bt L Rourc (Fr) 6-3, 5 Draper (Aus) bt G Solves (Fr) 7-5, 6-1, M Joyce (US) bt N Goddwin (SA) 7-6, 7-6

PALERIMO: Women's tournament: First round: B Schett (Austra) bi S Maior (Ger) 6-1, 1-0 nd. P Begerow (Ger) bi L Grandi-Rub (Fr) 6-4, 4-6, 6-2, S De Ville (Bel) bi L Dolf Angelo (I) 6-2, 7-6

PRAGUE: Women's tournsment: First round: 8 Schult McCarthy (Holl) bit R2-batows (Sovatia) 6-2 6-1; B Dragomit (Born) bit M Graybowska (Pol) 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, K Habaudows (Slovakla) bit G Leon-Gamca (Spi 6-4, 6-3, W Probis (Gen) bit P Schnyder back on the right track for me." The question remains, though: what prompted the sudden downturn? Various theories abound. Some say that a change of clubs did not help, nor dispensing temporarily with the services of his coach, Chuck Cook. Others believe that having shed the tag of the best player never to have won a major championship. Pavin simply became overgolfed, stale and tired. The answer probably lies in a combination of all these factors but correcting the problems, which are as much mental as anything else, is not easy. Hence the use of Richard Coop, a sports psychologist.

There are still skeletons in the closet." Pavin said. "I have done things I haven't been very pleased with because my swing wasn't very good. So I have to rid myself of those, too. That's probably the hardest thing, to get rid of the bad

It was very different earlier this decade when Pavin, who has amassed more than $8 million in prize-money, could do little wrong. He used his competitive instincts and tremendous short game to overcome shortcomings elsewhere. His swing is not the liquid gold of Fred Couples and he has never been long off the tee, but Pavin was virtually unrivalled in his ability to get up and down and hole out

It is the streetfighter in Pavin that refuses to concede that he cannot once again scale the summit. A born-again Christian who converted from the Jewish faith on marrying his wife, Shannon, Pavin is convinced that it is a matter of when, not if. But he also knows that, where the Ryder Cup is concerned, time is running out, with Kite due to name his two wild cards on August 18.

(Switz) 3-6, 7-6, 8-4; D Chiadrova (Cz) bt M Nekvapitova (Cz) 6-7, 8-0, 6-1, M Manuska (Austra) bt K Studenikova (Slovaka) 6-0, 6-2; N Louas-sabshvili (Bielanus) bt S Kleinova (Cz) 3-6, 6-2, 6-2; A Dechaume-Ballent (Firl bl E Marincova (Cz) 6-4, 4-6, 6-4; R Boblova (Cz Repi bt E Melicharova (Slovaka) 6-3, 6-1; L Indherova (Cz) bt R Pelikanova (Cz) 6-3, 6-1; J Kruger (SA) bt O Barabanchchikov (Bela) 6-3, 6-2; V Marinek (Ger) bt P Langrova (Cz) 6-4, 6-3; C Costea (Riom) bt A Gerst (Cz) 6-2, 0-1 ret.

POOLS DIVIDENDS

LTTLEWOODS: Treble chance 24pts 1965-628 00, 23 £14,487 46, 22 £403 25, 21 £145.25

ZETTERS: Trable Chance 24 pls £16,067 90, 23 £1,331 95, 22 £27 80, 21 £7.50

ressure

FOR THE BECORD

BASEBALL AMERICAN LEAGUE: New York Yarleses 12 Cleveland 6: Oeldand 8 Seattle 5; Detroit 7 Boston 5 (12mrs): Batimore 8 Toronto 4; Minwaukee 5 Kansan City 2; Minnesota 8 Chicago White Sox 4; Anahiwm 6 Texas 2. NATIONAL LEAGUE: Houston 5 Chicago Cubs 3; Los Angeles 8 Colorado. 5; Montreal 5 Tiorda 0; St Louis 7 Cincinnett 4; Prissungh 4 New York Mets 3; Philadelphia 8 Atlanta 1: San Francisco 16 San Diego 2.

before he has got it right.

126th Open Championship coinciding with his birthday tomorrow, it is right to ponder if life for the pride of Welwyn Garden City has ended, and not begun, at 40.

It might sound a little extreme to suggest that if Faldo is destined no longer to be a winner of major championships, then his sporting life is effectively over. But it is not, for his professional credo is winning, commanding admiration,

treading where no British golfer has been before.

BOWLS EASTBOURNE: Open Tournement: Slich round: JSmith bt ATowner 21-15; C Murray bt A Herntungs 21-13; D Booth bt T Sution-21-19; A Mayne bt O Woosnern 21-5; J Honnor bt M Biggleston 21-13; J Jones bt D Cruit 21-9; O Dyer bt R Plent 21-15; M Jones bt D Thompson 21-11; Quarter-finals: Smith bt Murray 21-17; Booth bt JMayne 21-8; J Jones wb Hornor sor; M Jones bt Dyer 21-18; J Jones wb Hornor sor; M

AON RISK TROPHY (one day): Welbeck CC. Derbyshire 187. Nottinghamshire 189-3 (G.F. Archer 127 not out). Nottingham-

CYCLING TOUR DE FRANCE Eleverath stage (Ancierra to Perolignan, 1923m); 1. L. Desbens (Fr. Coficie) Sirr Seria Sect. 2. C. Frico (I), MGJ, 3, S. Cularchekov (Uie, Polif) both serire time; 4, F. Moncassin (Fr. Garr) at 18sec. 5, E. Zabel (Ger. Felekovit; 6, M. Traverson N. Mercatone Unc); 7, F. Seldato (I. MG); 8, F. Andreu (U.S. Coficie), 9, A. Baffi (it, US Postal); 10. G Pierobon (it, Beilk) 51. C Boardman (GB, GAN); 52. M Sciendri (GB, La Française des Jeux) same time same time. Leading overall positions: 1, Ultich (Ger, Teleton) 60th 6min 17sec; 2. R Virencue (Fr, Festina) at 2min 38sec; 3. A Olano (Sp. Barnesto) 4468; 4. B Ris (Den, Teletom) 453; 5. M Partini (R. Mercaton Uno) 529; 5. F Escartin (Sp. Neirra) 548; 7. L Dufaux (Switz, Festina) 7:00; 8. C Camerzind (Switz, Festina) 7:00; 9. F Casagrands (ft. Secolo 7:20; 10, C Vasseur (Fr, GAN) 7:31 79. Sciandri 11r 1mo 54sec; 91, Boardman 1:10:42

CAPE TOWN: World championships:
Merc Epéc: Saint-finais; E Srecki (Fr) bit R
Andregiul: (Fo) 15-6; P. Kolobkov (Russ) R
R Leroux: (Fr) 15-4. Finat: Srecki bit
Kolobkov 15-14. Women: Foi: Serni-finais:
G Trilimi (II) bit bit Weber (Ger) 15-7; S Bau
(Ger) bit D Standhad (II) 15-10 Finat: Trilinbit Bau 15-10.

INTERNATIONAL TOURNAMENT: Carry City 3 Cettic 2 Newcestle United 3 PSV Enchoven 2 (both at Lansdowne Road, Dublin) OTHER MATCHES: Ski 3 Totieshem H 2 Purilest 0 West Ham 4; Caemarton Town 3 Wrednem 4; Bournemouth 1 Ponsmouth 0 ARGENTINIAN LEAGUE Deported Espa-fiol 0 Platerse 0.

ST AUBAN, Frence: World chempton-ehipe: Final day: Open (368km poly; all 18 completed): 1, 5 Kawa: (Pol) 124.5(ch. 972pts; 2, R Schröder (3er) 123.8, 961; 3, 974pts; (Fr. 123.1, 950; 4, G Lherm (Fr. 122.8, 944; 11, P Jónes (GB) 173, 791; 18,

R May (GB) 108, 950. Overall positions: 1, Lhern 7,533; 2, Hauss 7,528; 3, Schroeder 7,518; 13, Jones 6,037; 16, May 5,287, 15m (342km poly; 31 completions of 33]: 1, M Grund (Ger) 1149, 990; 2, J Wals (GB) 114,8, 996; 3, T Gostner (ft) 1139, 974, 16, S Jones (GB) 1027, 974; 29, A Kay (GB) 94,4,656, Overall positions: 1, W Mouser (Ger) 7,800; 2, Grund 7,574; 3, G Galetto (tt) 7,800; 5, Walls: 7,255; 11, Kay 9,896; 12, Jones 6,848, Standard (318km poly; 35 completions of 39); 1, A Davis (GB) 125,3, 318; 2, P Hertmann (Austria) 1232, 2782; 3, 2784; 10, 28 Spreddiay (GB), 120, 758; 30, M Wells. (GB) 108,9, 2267, Overall positions: 1, JM Californi (Fr) 7, 370; 2, J-D Barrois (Fr) 7, 136; 3, J-C

HANG-GLIDING

HAWKSTONE PARK, Shropshire: Law-rence Levy British blind masters fourma-ment: Lesding, second-round scores: 138: D Morte 83, 76, 151: M Gerdener 72, 79, 162: B Richie 73, 76; S Traquel 77, 75, 154: A Stewert 80, 74.

Championahips: First day: 1, G Rigg 4,108pts; 2, D Arlawight 3,952; 3, A Barries 3,823; 4, C Ashman 3,441; 5, S Cook 3,279 HOCKEY

REPRESENTATIVE MATCH: England Under-21 4 Combined Services 2 (at Muton Keynes).

RIFLE SHOOTING

BISLEY: NRA Imperial Meeting: Mistch rife (Hopton Cup): 1. S Colings (Mistch rife) (Hopton Cup): 1. S Colings (Mistch RC) (85). 105; 2 W Meldhum (MFC Scotland) 955: 105; 3. J Carmichae 852.84. Brian Green Trophy (Tyo?) R Lygoo (928,74. Albert Cup (1,000 1,100 and 1,200 yds): 1. A Henderson (N London) 213.20; 2. W Hannz (ATRC) 297.20; 3. T Smith Cambridge U): 207 18: 1,200 yds agg: 1,8 los (1): 241.18; 2. Cargill-Thompson 28.14; 3. K Ramsey (CURA) 238.14. Victoria Aggregate: 1, Meldrum 394.44, 2. Henderson 392.44; 3. Cargill-Thompson. F W Jones Cup (M R Tearris): 1, NRC Scotland 850.65; 2, England 542.40; 3. Wales 517.30; 4, Normandy 488.23; 1,100 Wales 517.30; 4, Normandy 488.23 1,100 yds aggregata: 1, Powell 407 40, 2, Pugsley

TOUNTSTRYTURES

Tatley's Challenge Series 11.0, second day of thres CARDIFF: Giarnergen v Australians Britannic Assurance county championship 11.0, second day of four, 104 overs menmum

11.0, second day of four, 104 overs minu CHELTENI-MA: Gloucestershire v Derbyshire CANTERSURY: Keni v Leicestershire OLD TRAFFORD: Lencashire v Sussex NORTHAMPTON: Northernploreshire v Essex Essex TRENT BREDGE: Nottingharrahire v warwiczenie GUILDFORD: Surrey v Hampshire s:::ARBORDUGH: Yorkshire v Durham REPRESENTATIVE MATCH (one day):

The second secon

ARSENAL

Lords: NCA young Cricketers v Combined Sarvices.
SECOND XI CHAMPIONSHIP: Second day of three: South Shields: Dusham v Leicestershire Chelmstord; Essex v Lar-cashire. Southampton: Hampshire v York-shire. Southgate CC: Middlessex v Gloucestershire v Wellingborough: North-amptonshire v Notinghamshire. Hove: Sussex v Glemorgan. Halesowen: Wordestershire v Derbyshire. Third day of lour. Taumbon: Somerset v Wellinghamshire.

FOOTBALL PRE-SEASON MATCHES: Macclesheld v Dundee (7:30), Scarborough v Oldhem (7:0).

OTHER SPORT HOCKEY: Representative match: England Under-21 v Centenary Club XI (at National Stadium, Milton Keynes, 4.30).

UPDATING DAILY DURING THE SUMMER NEW PASIER CALL 0930 -- CALL CHARGE ACCESS CODE NOW 0930-- PER SECOND MAN UTD MIDDLESB 168 806
168 811
168 864
168 845
168 845
168 845
168 821
168 821
168 822 168 808 SHEFF WED 168 824 SHEFF UTD SHEFF UID SOUTHAMPTON 168 820 168 807 EVERTON 188 805 SPURS
HUDDEASTIELD 168 861 STOKE CITY
LEEDS UNITED 168 803 SUNDERLAND
LEICESTER 168 835 W.B.A.
LIVERPOOL 168 804 WEST HAM
MAN CITY 168 802 WOLVES

405.43: 3, A Hissey (English VIII) 405.40 Army Rifle Association Bioley Cup (Present and Retred): 1, J Lews 149.2025.12, A Claskel 149.2025.4, 3, Sgt 0 Copley (Roys' Signals) 148.17 Target rifle learn match: 11 Signal Regt 2.423 Quisten's Regiment Cup (sniper rifle learns): 1, 3 RSME Regt 424.38

Faldo seeks Leadbetter's advice at Royal Troon yesterday

RUGBY UNION

Ontario: Try: Pagano. Con: Patilgrew Pen: Petigrew Wales XV: Tries: Applayaid, Boobyer, G. Wyatt 3, Jarves 2, Jarvis 2 Const Jarvis 3 Pen: Jarvis (at Hamiton)

SWIMMING BALA LAKE CHAMPIONSHIP (6 miles):
Merc 1, D Quartermen (City of Seliord) 2th 3tmin 29sec, 2, S Backer (Scarborough) 2:53:23, 3, D Pany (City of Liverpool) 3:03:58 Breasstatoke N Thomeon (City of Liverpool) 4:16:53 Women: M Yales (Warrington Dolphina) 3:06:47. Breasstatoke: K Barton (Howondge Marlins) 3:48:40

THE WAS TIMES SPORTS SERVICE

RACING Commentary Call 0891 500 123 Results

CRICKET Reports and scores from the Britannic Assurance county championship

Call 0891 100 123

Calls cost 50p per minute

Call 0891 525 019

BT's ISDN lines allow you to work from home, turning your journey to work into a stroll to the study. Why not change the way we work?

Call Free fone 0800 800 800

CRICKET

Smith gives selectors six reasons to rethink

By Alan Lee, cricket correspondent

CHELTENHAM (first day of four; Derbyshire won tossi: Gloucestershire, with six firstinnings wickets in hand, are 186 runs ahead of Derbyshire

DAVID LLOYD, the England coach, came to the opening of the Cheltenham festival yesterday, hoping to see Mike Smith bowl himself back into contention for the Headingley Test. By lunchtime, the job was done.

Smith dismissed Derbyshire inside two hours, swinging the ball late and venomously. His six for 47 made him the first bowler this season to pass 50 wickets and. with Dean Headley once more missing a championship match with a niggling injury. Smith will today be brought into the England party.

The addition ought to be unnecessary, for the one thing that made no sense in an otherwise astutely swift re-selection after Old Trafford, was the eviction of Smith. Leeds, where the ball invariably swings, is undoubtedly his ground, as he emphasised with ten wickets in Gloucestershire's championship win there last month.

The quality of his bowling and his angle as a left-armer are complemented by the value of his footmarks to the off spin of Robert Croft. Lloyd, who required no personal persuasion of all this, watched with satisfaction as Smith demolished Derbyshire, then spoke by telephone to the chairman of selectors, David Graveney, who is holidaying in Spain.

Headley's incapacity makes it easy for the selectors to rerecruit Smith but, in another sense, is alarming. He took eight wickets on his debut and was much the most impressive England bowler, but his fitness is unreliable.

marvellous day for Gloucestershire. The special sense of anticipation that Cheltenham brings was expressed in a decent crowd and the usual semi-circle of well-filled marquees. It was also expressed on the field, by players who genuinely believe they can sustain a challenge for the

The euphoria induced by Smith was briefly subdued when Devon Malcolm, charging in from the college green, took their first three wickets in four overs, but thereafter the day belonged to Shaun Young. The Tasmanian left-hander made his maiden first-class hundred for the county, striking the ball with punitive force and establishing a potentially decisive lead.

The command of Young, who shared century stands with Tim Hancock and Mark Alleyne, put the earlier events sharply into context. Although ten batsmen were out before lunch, and an eleventh Vandrau, retired requiring stitches in his jaw, this is an admirable pitch, even of bounce and allowing negligible lateral movement.

It was just as good in the corresponding festival fixture last year, which Gloucester shire bewilderingly lost inside two days. If there is to be a two-day finish this time, they will be on the right end of it, deepening the gloom that is settling over Derbyshire.

Already bottom of the table. they also remain in the grip of a conflict between players and committee, the central feature of which is a heavy fine, levied on Kim Barnett and now subject to appeal. A committee meeting on Tuesday apparently agreed to seek a compromise, but little short of a complete climbdown will satisly Barnett. His value as a player remains high, as he emphasised yesterday. While the rest submitted feebly on a heavy, overcast morning, Barnett's technique saw him through until, with only Malcolm for company, he was last out for 58.

Twice, Smith was on a hattrick and if Lynch had clung on to a sharp slip chance from Barnett, the ball after Clarke's departure to a misguided hook, it would have been thrice. In his second over, Smith removed Rollins, legbefore to a vorker, and bowled Adams through an airy drive mated he had missed by a foot. Later, DeFreitas and Harris also went to consecutive balls.

Gloucestershire's start was no better, a reminder of the batting shortcomings that inhibit them, but Derbyshire's bowling wilted in the aftermoon sun. Dropping short to Young is a crime, one which the seamers repeated with severe consequences. By evening. Derbyshire looked fatalistic as Young accelerated past 150, with 106 of the runs having come from boun-

Adams, with the college chapel at his back, is utterly defeated by Smith, the Gloucestershire left-armer

Roberts anchors Northamptonshire

BY BARNEY SPENDER

NORTHAMPTON (first day of four. Northamptonshire won toss: North-amptonshire have scored 354 for nine wickets against Essex

NORTHAMPTONSHIRE, despite their lowly position in the Britannic Assurance county championship, have a knack of producing promising youngsters. Yester-day it was the turn of David Roberts. 20, who compiled a fine maiden hundred in only his fifth championship match. His innings of 117 was all the better for the fact that his colleagues eschewed the OLD TRAFFORD (first day of four; Sussex won toss): Lancashire have scored 380 for five

ALTHOUGH three days remain, it is hardly rash to venture that the defining moment of this game came in its first session when John Crawley, without a run to his name.

attempted to drive Mark Rob-

Greenfield, in the slips, spill a

Almost four hours later.

when conditions had eased considerably. Crawley was celebrating his second hundred of the season, succumbing soon afterwards for 112, an innings which included 15

fours. He put on 243 in 58

overs for the third wicket with

Given that Sussex have totalled 331 in aggregate in their past four championship innings, a third successive victory beckons strongly for waist-high chance.

wickets against Sussex

Reprieved Crawley

makes Sussex pay

By RICHARD HOBSON

chance of cashing in on a friendly pitch and some surprisingly wayward bowling, and so missed out on the chance of posting a truly imposing total.

They were even in danger of failing to reach 300 when Paul Grayson, bowling his left-arm spin, picked up four for one in 34 deliveries, but some robust defiance from the last pair of Ripley and Boswell not only took them past that mark but beyond 350 as well, to ensure maximum batting points.

Of the top eight, only Bailey was unable to make it into the twenties but none apart from Roberts went on beyond 36. The most eccentric performance came to No 4, scythed his way to 32 off 41 balls, as if it were a one-day game.

Roberts watched with a detached air of bemusement, showing a phlegmatic tem-perament when he spent just under an hour stuck on 26. Instead of getting ruffled, he quietly got himself going again and flexed his muscles when the opportunity arose, a fierce pulled six off owan momentarily upstaging Loye. After reaching his 50 shortly after bunch, he demonstrated a fine array of strokes, including one delicate late cut off Such. His century arrived just before tea,

Unhappy captains are not game for a laugh

SCARBOROUGH (first day Lancashire, who recovered four: Durham won toss): well from an uneasy start on a Yorkshire, with eight first-innings wickets in hand, are re-laid pitch that gave early 15 runs behind Durham

> THERE was no confusing Michael Roseberry and David Boon, Durham captains past and present with tonight's star turns at the theatre down by the harbour. They are

> Roseberry was a picture of misery on a day which began with him being forced to retire hurt after being struck on the helmet by a short ball from White and ended with him facing a charge of showing dissent when the umpire, George Sharp, gave him out caught behind as soon as he

Boon was not chuckling either. He had chosen to bat first on a sporting pitch which was green in the middle and bare at the ends, and seen his gamble backfire as Durham were bowled out for 152 and Yorkshire cruised to 137 for

They used to call the Scarborough Festival "first-class cricket on holiday", but it is anything but that in the championship matches these days. It was sheer hard graft for Durham and only Lewis. the former Essex opener, seemed up to it.

for 50 before Hartley had him caught at slip, but the rest were no match for the Yorkshire attack. There were four wickets for Gough and three. for Hartley, while Silverwood ended the biggest stand - 30 - with a direct hit to run out

Byas and McGrath quickly put the Durham total in perspective with a secondwicket stand of 88. Byas had 11 fours in his 48 and McGrath completed his first championship half-century of the season

THE TIMES THURSDAY JULY 17 1997 Hat-trick by Ambition Hat-trick by | Ambitious Surrey Franks brings make renewed promise

TRENT BRIDGE (first day of four, Nottinghamshire won Warwickshire have scored 328 for nine wickets against Nottinghamshire

By Michael Henderson

PAUL FRANKS, 18, an allrounder who has captained England at under-15 and 17 levels, yesterday became the youngest Nottinghamshire player to perform the hat-trick in the first over after tea. as Warwickshire were sailing along at 225 for three, he had Penney caught behind and then hit the stumps of Brown and Welch.

The last Nottinghamshire player to do the hai-trick was Richard Hadlee, at Canterbury in 1987. That was the year that they won the championship and, on a rain-affected weekend, added the NatWest Trophy for good measure.
Then Hadlee retired from county cricket, together with Clive Rice, and the club has struggled to redefine itself.

Off the field there has been a lack of direction, and on it there has been a lack of drive. Whether a younger generation is actually knocking at the door is open to question, but at least there are now some flickers of promise.

Franks, a right-arm seamer who aspires to bowl fast, goes off next month to play for the England Under-19 side against Zimbabwe. He can also hold a bat and, in diving to carch Ostler low at square leg, he showed his fielding is not bad either.

Ostler made 65, five fewer than Hemp, whose cover driv-ing provided the main pleasure. The pitch looked green, and there was some move ment through the air, but Hemp and Wagh, one steadily and the other grimly, batter through the morning session after the loss of Moles. Wagh took 25 overs to reach double figures and departed to one of his few attacking strokes. Hemp played more freely and had just driven Tolley resoundingly for four when he was brilliantly held at second slip by Archer. Giles contributed 42 good runs. WARWICKSHIPE: First Innings A A Donald not out A A V Bell not out

Botses (b 7, 75 10, w 14, ab 8) FALL OF WICKETS: 1-25, 2-98, 3-160, 4-225, 5-225, 6-225, 7-268, 8-275, 9-283 BOWLING: Franks 22-5-81-4; Oran 25-4-81-2; Tolky 29-9-79-3; Auto 18-4-47-0; Dolumen 5-1-12-0; Alzael 5-3-11-0 NOTTINGH/MASHIPE: PR Poland, R. Robinson, "P. Johnson, N. J. Asile, G. Archer, U. Alzaal, M. P. Downson, C. till Tolley, P. J. Franks, T.W. M. Noon, A. R. Orest.

quick to the running

BY SIMON WILDE

GUILDFORD (first day of four Surrey won toss: Surrey have scored 457 for nine wickets against Hampshire

SURREY have resolved to turn over a new leaf after their champagne victory in the Benson and Hedges Cup and their first task is to breathe life into their ailing championnselves the task of winning their next three matches and begun their mission with والمجاري المراز

ing carried and a second and a

a vengeance yesterday. Nebody encapsulated this mood better than Adam Hollioake, the captain. First he dismissed his agent, Gareth James, whose influence on the team has been welcomed by few, and then went out and thumped Hampshire's labouring attack to all parts for a 34-ball half-century.

It took a smart leg-side stumping by Aymes to stem the flow, but by then Holli-cake had reached his highest championship score of the season, 75 from 69 balls with 13 fours and a six, 26 coming in two withering overs against Bevill. Hellioake was not alone. Butcher — dropped on 11 — Thorpe and Lewis also recorded season-best champ ionship scores while Stewart

As these statistics suggest, a rtage of runs has been at the heart of Surrey's failings this season, so to total more than 450 in a day must have neen a heartening collective exercise, even if the friendly conditions at Woodbridge Road should equally inflate Hampshire's omput.

If Holioake's innings was the most explosive of the day, Thorpe's was the most finely crafted and Stewart's the most extravagant Butcher and Siewant put on 174 for the adougd wicket. Thorpe and Politicals 124 for the fifth he: 124 for the fifth.

For the appropried crowd the day could not have been belier, save for a contribution cardendy policil his fifth ball into the bands of mid-wicket. Hampshire stuck to their task well and are not out of the contest vet.

M P Bickreil b Stephenson

M P Bickreil b Stephenson

J K Seisbury e Haydian b Bowli

A J Tudor not out

Edras (b 3, ib 10, w 2, nb 4) Total (8 wids, 104 overs) . FALL OF WICKETS 1-3, 2-177, 3-183, 4-203, 6-327, 8-328, 7-357, 8-368, 9-415. SOM ING. Book 21-3-112-2, MRILL 21-14-3-0. Staphianson-28-1-176-3; Keech 4-0-12-1. HAMPSHIME M.L. Hayden, J.S. Larrey, K.D. Jantes, R.A. Smith, W. Reach, "J.P. Steph-enson, T.A. Naymae, S.D. Udal, J.N.B. Boral, S.J. Renshew, S.M. Milblum. S.J. Flenshow, S.M. Millibum: Borkus politic: Suriey 4 Hampshire 4 Umpires; J.W. Holder and M.J. Kigflen.

READER OFFER

THE SEA TIMES

Neil Fairbrother.

Exclusive private view at the Tate Gallery

Readers of The Times are invited to an exclusive party, on Tuesday, July 22, to celebrate the Tate Gallery's 100th birthday.

The entire gallery will be open 1 and works on show include special centenary displays, the Turner collection and the current exhibition of Elisworth Kelly's works. The party is from 6.30pm-8.30pm.

You will be able to see a selection of 100 works of special interest, two rooms of Victorian and Pre-Raphaelite paintings and Henry Tate's Gift, which tells the fascinating story of the gallery's foundation, with a display of works from the original collection. Among these originals you will see the beautiful oil painting The Lady of Shalett (above) by artist John

The current major exhibition at the Tate focuses on the work of the leading American painter Ellsworth Kelly. This is the first retrospective of this important artist's work in Britain. It includes more than 50. works from 1949 to the present day. Kelly's paintings are based on careful observations of the real world, transformed into abstract works of the greatest possible purity of colour, line and form.

To book, call First Call on 0171-420 0000. Tickets, which cost . £16.75 per person, include cananés and two glasses of wine:

CHANGING TIMES

Tetley's Challenge Series Glamorgan v Australians CAFOFF (test day of three Glambrya won toss) Glambryan, with all first-raining wokets in hand, are 339 runs behind th assistance to the bowlers.

Robinson produced a delivery that pitched middle-and-leg before uprooting Gailian's off stump and Atherton fell leg-before when Kirtley

After cautious beginnings,

Crawley and Fairbrother ran became more ambitious in dealing with loose deliveries that came with growing frequency. Fairbrother punished anything short in compiling

132 in 255 minutes with 14

Sussex, who entered the contest with more bowling

points than any other county, decided to play without a regular spinner for the first time this season, a mistake which forced Moores to turn to Greenfield and Rao, the most occasional of twirlers, as his sixth and seventh bowlers.

nipped one back.

AUSTRALIANS: First Imnings AUSTRALIANS: FIRST TRANSM A Taylor a Maris to Cooler
M T G elect a Mayrard b Butcher
G S Dewet b Butcher
R T Porting not out
M J Sater a Metson b Cooler
J L Larger not out
Editas (fr 4 to 8, w 2 nb 2) Total (4 whits dec) . M G Bevar. tO S Berry, B P Justen, P R Redle and M S Kesprowez did not bat FALL OF WORETS 1-72, 2-132, 3-197 4-246.

PC/MLIN3 Trames 16-1-73-0; Parkin 13-4-73-0; Date 13-2-49-0; Burcher 13-1-52-2 Coster 24-5-95-2 Mayrard 3-0-10-0 GLAMORGAN: First innings H Morris rica cut Extras (2 2 . a 2 r.b 4) .

Total (no wid) . "M.P. Mayrard P.A. Costey, M.J. G.P. Butterer, †C.P. Metson, S.D. Is. D.A. Cosier and O.T. Parkin to BONING Reflet 4-0-16-0, Kasprowez 4-2-11-0.

Umpres UC Balderstone and T.E.Jesty. Tour match Worcestershire v

Pakistan A WORCESTER itest day of three, Fakistar A won 1855; Painstan A, with seven first mongs wickets in hand are 99 runs behand Acrossombre WORCESTERSHIRE: First Innings / S Scaric Claved & About / S Scaric Claved b At Husan . - G 4 Hox c Shoot b At Husan .

wind the Controlle of All Musern I.
Sparing this of Abdul II.
They resident of All Musern I.
Leathertake this to Azter II.
Jambod this harber
Leathertake this to Azter III.
Jambod this harber ensiay bi Azhar nyar shuaked bi Ali Husain nomas not out

SON/LING. Stead Ainter 10-0-57-0; Abdul Razzek 101-1-33-2; Ather Marmood 25-8-89-3 All Husain Rism 181-8-68-5 Majorid Jamshed 2-0-6-0. PAKISTAN A: First brings

Total (3 wids) . "Achammad Yasum, Achar Mahmood, tuared Cadir, Abdul Razzah, Ali Husain Pizu and Shoach Aldriar to bar FALL OF WICKETS, 1-50, 2-66, 3-53. BOWLING: Shenyer 7-0-33-2; Thomas 7-1-34-0; Marca 9-1-48-1; Leadhandaic 5-1-15-0; Rawnsley 6-3-14-7; Sozallo 4-2-16-0 county champi

Glencestershire v Derbyskire CHELTENHAM (first day of lour; Derb shire won toss); Gloucestershire, with a ets in hand, are 186 run

E Malcolm not out bras (B) 7, w 2, nb 6) Total (26 overs) 120
FALL OF WICKETS: 1-10, 2-10, 3-21, 4-41, 5-45, 6-74, 7-74, 8-119, 9-120. 80WLING Smith 12-1-47-6. Lewis 7-0-36-2, Young 7-1-19-1; Alleyne 2-0-11-0 GLOUCESTERGHIRE: First Innings

A J Wright c Adams b Malcolm 2
N J Trainor c Kristein b Malcolm 0
T H C Hancock c Rollins b DeFreitas .54
M A Lynch c Desn b Malcolm 8 FALL OF WICKETS 1-1, 2-2, 3-16, 4-155.

80WLING Malcolm 18-0-69-3; Dean 14-1-53-0; DeFreitas 18-5-51-1; Harris 13-2-79-0; Vandrau 7-1-17-0; Clarky 4-0-Bonus points. Gloucestershire 7 Derbyshee 1. Umpires: D.R. Shepherd and J.F. Steele Kent v Leitestershire

CANTERBURY (first day of four, Kent won loss) Kant have scored 356 for seven wickes agenst Leicesterature KENT: First Indinos D P Fulton low b Muleily
E T Smith c Nicon b Cristond
T R Ward c and b Person
A P Wells c Nicon b Ormand N J Llong low to Omnond M A Eathern not out

M V Flemmig c Nixon b Pierson P A Strang b Milins *15 A Marsh not out Edinas (b 7, lb 10, w 8, nb 8) Total (7 wkts, 109 overs) M J McCague and J B D Thompson to beat FALL OF WICKETS: 1-63, 2-71, 3-108, 4-108, 5-126, 6-162, 7-307. 20-4-69-1; Mullarly 20-3-79-1. Ormond: 19-3-71-3; Pleason: 32-11-79-2. Johnson: 15-5-27-0; Wells: 3-0-14-0. LBCESTERSHIRE V J Welts, D L Maddy, I J Suzziffe. * J Weltskier. N C Johnson, 8 F Smith, 1P A Nazon, A R K Pierson, D J Milro, A D Mulsely, J Ormand. Botrus points: Kent 4 Lelcestershire 3.

Umpres K E Pakner and B J Meyer.

Lancashire v Sussex OLD TRAFFORD (first day of four, Sus

LANCASHIRE: First lanings Athenon low b Kirtley I Gellian b Robinson Crawley o Moores b Bobinson H Fairbrother o Greenfield b Kirlley D Lloyd c Athey b Robinson Walfenson not out

Total (5 wkts. 101 oversi tw K Hegg, G Yates, P J Martin and D J Shadford to bat. FALL OF WICKETS: 1-57, 2-67, 3-310, 4-334, 5-338.

SUSSEX: R K Rep. N J Lenham, N R Taylor, C W J Athey, K Greenfield, K Newell, "TP Moores, V C Drakes, P W Janks. M A Robinson, R J Kirtley, Bonus points: Lancastere 4 Sussex 2

Umpires. D.J Constant and R.Julian. Northamptonshire v Essex

NORTHAMPTON (first day of lour, North-arreportshire won toss) - Northamptonshire have scored 354 for rate wickels against NORTHAMPTONSHIRE: First Innings

R J Werren & Rollins & D R Law ... D J Roberts & Grayson D J Roberts b Grayson ... R J Bailey c Roberts b D R Law ... M B Loye c Wallarns b Cowen ... K M Curran b Cowen ... K M Curran b Cowen ... D J G Sales flow b Such ... J N Srappe c D R Law b Grayson ... 10 Ripley not out
J P Taylor b Grayson Mohammed Avent law b Grayson
S A J Boswell not out
Editas (b 1, lb 6, nb 15)

Total (9 wkts, 108 overs)

FALL OF WICKETS 1-55, 2-55, 3-100, 4-155, 5-224, 6-281, 7-282, 8-284, 9-284 BOWLING Cover 21.4.96.2: Williams 16.3.50-0: D R Lew 23.5-70-2: Irani 16.4-37-0. Such 13.3-41-1; Greyson 19.6-53-4. ESSEX: G A Gooch, "P J Prichard, S G Law, N Hussain, R C Irani, A P Grayson, O R Law, 1fl J Rollins, A P Cowen, N F Williams, P M Such Borus posts. Northemptonshire 4 Essex 4.

Umpres: J H Hampshire and P Wiley. Yorkshire v Durham SCAPBOROUGH (first day of four, Dur-ham won loss). Yorkshire, with eight first-nnings wickets in hand, are 15 runs behind Durham

DURHANE First Innings JJ 8 Laws c White b Harriery
M A Rocebury c Blakey b Harriery
J E Morris b White
N J Speak by b Gough
'D C Boon law b Gough
'D C Boon law b Gough

FALL OF WICKETS: 1-49, 2-75, 3-83, 4-102, 5-106, 6-122, 7-122, 8-152, 9-152. BOWLING: Gough 18.5-7-37-4; Silver-wood 17-7-32-1; Write 12-2-42-1; Hartley 14-4-29-3; Stamp 3-1-3-0.

Bonue points: Nottinghamshire 4 Viamidoshire 3.

Limpires: V A Holder and B Lead

YORKSHIRE: First Innings M O Motorn c Spelght b Betts ... A McGreth not cet ... *D Byas b Waller D S Lehrstenn not cut ... Extras (to 2) Total (2 wids, 37 overs C White, B Parker, TR J Blakey, D Googh, P J Hardey, C.E.W Silverwood and R.D Stemp to bet.

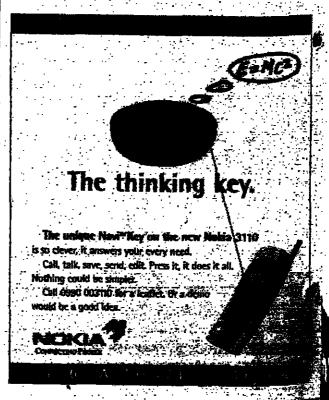

FALL OF WICKETS: 1-9, 2-97. BOWLING: Brown 8-1-31-0; Bette 6-1-24-1; Walter 7-7-39-1; Foster 11-2-29-6; Bolling 5-2-73-0. Bonus coints: Yorkshire 4 Durham D. Uniplies. J H Hank and G Sharp.

Asia Cup Bungladesh v Pakistan COLOMBO (Pakistan won toks): Pakista beet Bangladesh by 109 rum PAICSTAN Saged Arwar c Habbul b Enam

38-5; Shahid Aghdi 9-0-38-0; Arghad 7-0-24-0; Agmar Schell 6-0-35-0; Magk 4-0-29-0. Umpires: S K Bansal (India) and B C Cooray (Sri Lanks).

Total (5 veids, 86 overs) 319 Saciain Mushtag, Agib Javed, Arshad Khan and Kabir Khan did not bet. FALL OF WICKETS: 1-13, 2-138, 3-166, 4-275, 5-315. 4-2/3, 5-316.

Soliul Islam 7-0-45-0; Alher All Kren 5-0-27-0; Shelkh Salahuddin 10-0-60-1; Animul Islam 8-0-89-0; Minteglin 10-0-51-1; Enamul Haque 6-0-47-1. BANGLADESH BANGLADIESH
Alther All Khurr is Moin ib Sacjeto
Naimur Refirmen Eve to Kabir
Habitaul Bester tow to Kabir
Habitaul Bester tow to Kabir
Arrival Inflam is Kabir ib Sacjeto
"Alteren Khur ib Rabir ib Sacjeto
Fixbalith Inflam is Kabir ib Sacjeto
Hasibul Husselm ib Acido
Sacjeto Inflam is Sacjeto
Nasibul Husselm ib Acido
Sacjeto Inflam is Sacjeto
Habitaul Husselm ib Acido
Sacjeto Inflam
Sacjeto Inflam
Sacjeto Inflam
Sacjeto Inflam
Sacjeto Inflam
Sacjeto
Sacjeto Inflam
Sacjeto
Sac Total (48.3 overs) 210 FALL OF WICKETS: 1-13, 2-13, 3-61, 4-171, 5-184, 6-188, 7-199, 8-209, 8-218.

be bowie

=

(علدًا صنه الأصل

P. Wells

Just .

A STATE OF THE STA

TERRITORIA.

A > 1 €.

Section 2

May a " long

The state of the s

Provide Table

South Filter

m ne m

Territor Start

 $\varphi_{\mathcal{L}_{\mathcal{L}_{\mathcal{L}_{\mathcal{L}_{\mathcal{L}_{\mathcal{L}}}}}}(\mathcal{L}_{\mathcal{L}_{\mathcal{L}_{\mathcal{L}}}})}$

.

1 - 49. () 2

1900 COSE COM

> 4 7 July 18

*** ** * ****

emma ser

不可用"快点

white ex

100 Sept. 3

20 GL 1988

æ *s ⊊8

オバイア 波撃

م. ويود

والعواء عطا

-44, 43 15

, Table

AMILY THE ROLL

A Partie 8 th

Marie Walter 799 THE LANG.

经验证 The state of the s 图 1941

Figure 380 or co Andrew September 1 1 Street COST STEE

100 Page 1 Strategie in the contract

美人特别。 ・ 最初の対象性 (1977年) وحفقهم المؤرجها

· 本文 生 1 · · ·

A Property Control

36. +32 € 1

The thinking h

H C Harcock (375)

THE TIMES THURSDAY JULY 17 1997

Ealham directs familiar rescue

By JACK BAILEY

CANTERBURY (first day of four, Kent won toss): Kent have scored 356 for seven wickets against Leicestershire

THE gremlins that influenced the tide of events for Kent in the Benson and Hedges Cup final were still lurking in large numbers yesterday morning. Kent took first innings in the lowledge that their estimable secretary, Stewart Anderson, had that morning broken his leg on the tennis court. The air of doom and gloom persisted as Kent made their way, hesitantly, to 126 for

Trevor Ward had bucked the trend with a cultured halfcentury, but it was not until Paul Strang joined Mark Ealham, at the fall of the sixth wicket for 162, that Kent's equilibrium was restored. These two added 145 runs during an entertaining 38 overs. Ealham's five-hour innings has taken him to within four runs or rus

Tenacity and sensible aggression were applied by these two as they staged the sort of rescue act that all too often has been a necessary feature of Kent's season. A measure of the unreliability in championship games of Kent's batting in the upper order lies with the fact that, of their three centuries, all have come from below stairs. Ealham already has one. Steve Marsh and Ben Phillips the others. So, in a sense, the Kent faithful have become inured to disaster followed by deeds of derring-do; but it is not good for the blood pressure.

There were early signs that a more orthodox course of events might be followed yes-terday. When they had reached 55 without loss, Ed Smith, in his first championship game of the season, and David Fulton had equalled Kent's best championship opening partnership this season. However, when they had reached 63, normal service was restored.

It was James Ormond. Leicestershire's up-andcoming quick bowler, who made the breach, brushing Smith's glove as he attempted to hook. Ormand followed Mullally's dismissal of Fulton by also accounting for Wells and Llong. At this stage he had taken three for 12 in 18 balls, and when Ward, after making 51 from 37 balls, with eight spanking fours and a six. mistimed and was comfortably caught by the bowler, Kent stared at disaster once

As the world knows, Ealham gives 100 per cent whenever he is called on. Maybe less well known is Strang's powerful mixture of orthodox defence and often agricultural attack. Each wore down Leicestershire in his own way and set Kent back ontheir feet, which for them is just as well. The pitch is good and Headley's strained side has kept him out, though he expects to be fit for the fourth Test match.

Ward is caught and bowled by Pierson shortly after reaching his half-century at Canterbury yesterday

Hick leads way in New Road run feast

By JOHN THICKNESSE

WORCESTER (first day of three; Pakistan A won toss): Pakistan A, with seven first-innings wickets in hand, are 99 runs behind Worcestershire

A FIRM pitch 55 yards from the pavilion and a quick outfield produced a run feast at New Road. Of the 431 runs scored in six hours 50 minutes, all but 121 came in fours and sixes, which numbered 73 and three respectively.

The bowlers held their own, however, Ali Rizvi taking five for 68 with flattish wrist-spin for the touriing team, and Maneer Mirza, a 19-year-old seamer, collecting a wicket on his debut for the сошпіту. Graeme Hick, captaining Worcestershire for the first time in the absence of Moody, Rhodes and Illingworth, played the innings of the day, but he was almost upstaged by Ali Naqvi. Having put together II4 last week in a vain attempt to stave off defeat by MCC, Naqvi opened his 29-ball frolic yesterday with a four over mid-off in Sherivar's first over and added seven more boundaries before being trapped leg-before. Salim Elahi. striking II fours in his fifty, stayed in until the close for 78 not out.

In Worcestershire's innings, Hick was on course for a hundred before lunch until he was caught in the covers off a skier attempting a third straight six in successive overs off Rizvi.

Out of their depth as the touring team might have been bowling to a batsman of Hick's power, the ease with which he dominated play was remarkable. While he was making 55 off 48 balls, including two sixes and ten fours, Weston and Spiring scored II runs between them. Untypically, it was Hick's third highest first-class score of the summer, following hundreds against Gloucestershire and Oxford University.

Ponting grasps his main chance

By Ivo Tennant

Glamorgan won toss), Glamorgan, with all first-innings wickets in hand, are 339 runs behind the Australians

DURING the 1960s, when Glamorgan twice beat the Australians, their players regarded themselves as representing Wales in their very own Test matches. It was all rather friendlier than that yesterday.

Although Marthew Maynard was without his three leading bowlers, he gave the touring team the opportunity to make use of an even-paced pitch. Ricky Ponting enhanced his chances of playing in the fourth Test next week with his first century of the summer.

Ponting has had a bit-part on this tour. This was only his third first-class innings, the others having realised 19, against Nottinghamshire, and 64. against Leicestershire, It was significant that he came in three places in the order above Bevan, who did not bat and whose place for the fourth

Test is evidently in jeopardy. The placement of Ponting in the middle order, followed by Slater and then Langer, who reached a half-century just before the declaration, would suggest that that is Taylor's order of preference. No doubt he would have liked them to have faced a more testing attack as, for expedient reasons as well as injuries, there was no Waqar, Watkin or Croft. Parkin was playing in a first-class match for the first CARDIFF (first day of three: time this season as, for that matter, was Metson, who is taking a benefit and who kept wicket as tightly as in the past.

Taylor, too, will not have found this sufficient preparation for Headingley, for he found that he could do much as he liked against an attack lacking in experience and, initially, direction. The captain struck nine fours and a six swung over square leg off Cosker before he failed to clear the fielder at deep mid-wicket. Morris, running in, held a good, low catch.

Blewett made a half-century in his stylish way, full of skimming drives and, when he played on to Butcher. Ponting and Langer came together and added an unbroken 123, a record for the fifth wicket for the Australians against Glamorgan. The declaration came earlier than expected, as if Taylor was responding to Maynard's munificence in giving his side what amounted to decent batting practice.

Ponting finished unbeaten on 126 off 170 balls, with 16 fours. Like all of these Australians, he rarely misses the opportunity to make the most of any bowler who strays in length or direction. He deserves his chance at the highest level, not least because Bevan has made only 43 runs in five innings in the Test series this summer.

Glamorgan were left with eight overs of batting and James and Morris survived

Benson and Hedges Cup at

Young Neds XI have three

Surrey men in their team;

the Hollioake brothers.

Adam and Ben, and Alec

Stewart, Ben Hollioake gained 103 points with an innings of 98, which won him the man-of-the-match award, while Stewart earned 146 points when scoring an unbeaten 75.

John Stephenson, the 191 points partly due to taking six for 16 in their victory over Worcestershire in the Axa Life League on This week's prize is a signed, and framed, photograph of a player of the year, an England cap, signed by England players, a first edition of the PCA Year Book

'97, signed by members of the Professional Cricketers'

Association, and two tickets to a day at an Ashes Test.

THE LEADING TOO ENTHIES IN THE TIMES INTERACTIVE TEAM CRICKET GAME

INTERACTIVE TEAM CHICKET SCOREBOARD

IN ASSOCIATION WITH

Ξ
Ŀ	Team (player's name)
•	Proble AV Charbol
	Portus (W Clarke)
	The Trains (C. Callinson)
	The Twins (B Colinson)
	Ace All Rounders (A Eade)
	Three Lobs (P Johnson)
	Fentasy Formbk I (G Crutchley)
	Four lan Bothams (P Johnson)
	All Round Ability (W Burnett)
	Kalb's Corkers 4 (N Kalb)
	Fentasy Formbik D (G Cruschley)
	Becardi Boys (M Woodley)
	Ruo Catchers (A Rees)
	Colemans Balls (D Blackburn)
	Fantasy Formbl. E (G Crutchley)
	M J S 1 (M Squires).
•	M J S 1 (M Squires)
	Wansford House 3 (PR O'Brien)
	tan's Imperials (IAN JOHNSTON)
	Lemer Old Brus (P Trantes) Injury Free X I (U Hund
	Tobilit (A Luckhurst)
	MOW AND GO H A P (N Johns)
	Prinewpood 3 (DM Carter)
:	Daves Dosars (D Tafloo)
Ϊ.	O-107 00000 (D (0000) ,

	i Pos	Team (player's name)
	26	Friday Night X I (B McFerran)
•	27=	Fantasy Formbk G (G Crutchiev)
ı	27=	Veritys Vintage No ()
	29	All Rounders X I (N Pember)
١.		Points Galore (D Fenton)
	31	Hursts Cack Hander (R Jackson)
	32=	Jones Boys One (M Jones)
	32=	The Braughing Duck (P Moore)
	34	Cats Eyes (N Marchant)
٠.	35	Doodyteds (J Royston)
	36	Roe Roe Roe Your B (R Roe)
	37	Off To A Good Star (J Swirles)
	38	Webbers Post (EG Evans)
	39	No More Fridays Ou (I Ellis)
	40	Nine lan Bolhams (P.Johnson)
- 1	41	Don't Forget To Ru (P Rowans)
	42	Dave's Dependables (D Tattoo)
i	43	Alisa Angels (A Wood)
	44	Bearded Blunders (JM Brown)
٠l	145	Gazza's Guys (C Hawkins)
-1	46	Cod And Chics Part (P Stebbings)
1	47	Caroline C (A Luckhurst)

Pts	Pos Team (player's name)
14501	51 Dawns Dynamos (Mass D Shepherd)	1
14472	52 Diamond White (R White)	1
14472	53 Jammyshare C C (JAD Cunthoys)	1
14431	54 Willow Cricketers (Mrs WJ Barber)	14
14421	55 Wells Fargo (BE Howes)	1
14419	56 Daves Demons (D Taggoo)	1
14414	57 Moraly Bears (M White)	14
14414	58 Caspian 1st X I (D Chandler)	14
14410	59 Toby Ross (A Luckhurst)	14
14400	60 Windy's Warnors (G Miller)	14
14396	61 SRS in The Press (SP Varier)	74
14386	62 Meg's Beven (S Simmons)	14
14347	63 The Grim Team (J Swain)	14
14346	64 Star Wars 2 (Z Ali)	14
14345	65 Letting Rep (D Finley)	14
14339	66 Thunder Burmes (Miss DC Bates)	14
14321	67 Sarawana (Fl Knowle)	14
14318	68 The Runrats (D Tattoo)	1.
14317	69 Floppy Fat Bellies (D Sharp)	14
14289	70 Tory Boys (G Jackson)	14
14274	71 = Cowshot Corner (O Matchell)	14
14270	71 = Off Spinners In A (A Milroy)	14
14266	73= Aj County Xi (A Taytor)	14
14255	73 - Ward's Wickstaker (AB Ward)	14
14244	73 - Rob's Barmy Army (R Anderson)	14

	Box Toom Interests popul
	Pos Team (player's name)
	76 Paulines Stars (Ms P Howell)	141
	77 The Band Played On (M Reed)	141
ı	78 R Spoy's X I (W Webb)	140
	79 The Sunshine Brand (J Shephard) .	140
ı	80 Spike Thomas Eleve (TE Webb)	140
	81 Shadow Leader 1 (D Findley)	140
١ ١	82 Retirement Hero's (M Petiman)	140
	83 Sharps Eleven (M Sharp)	140
	84 Km1's Best (D Geraghty)	140
	85 = Kamikaze Bowler (D Finley)	140
	85 = Class Warriors 2 (S King)	140
	87 Huntastic (A Frazer)	140
	88= Melvyn Makdin A I (ID Wray)	140
٠	88 = Wibbly Wobbly's X (JD Wibberley)	1.40
i	90 Farweather Xi (MiH Hawkes)	140
	91 = Caroline A (A Luckhurst)	140
	91 = Sam's The Man 3 (G Sampson) .	140
	93 The Funky Monkeys (A Moss)	140
	94 Ken's First XI (K Hanneh)	140
4	95. Three Gea's Team (R Artyaratnam).	139
1	Of the Post Mana Thre (Managerity
	96 We Dont Mean This (J Moss)	139
1	97 Blidad's Shoes (T Sherlock)	139
-	98 Fantasy Formbk B (G Crutchley)	139
١	99 DAMARC (DThom)	139
	100 Browns X i (Ms M Brown) ,	1,39

One man of Kent who cheered Surrey victory

Lord's.

Sunday.

MR E QUANTRILL of | Surrey in the final of the Gillingham, Kent, is the winner of the weekly prize for the Interactive Team Cricket game.

Mr Quantrill's team. Young Neds XI, scored 1,358 points and he must surely have been one of the few cricket followers in Kent to have a lot to cheer about after that county's defeat by

EACH team, depending on when it is registered, will be allocated a number of transfer allowances, it you register in May your team will be allocated ten transfers, in June you will be allocated ten transfers, in July se, in August four and in September two.

You may use as many or as lew as you wish but they must replace like for Ric, is one bowher for another bowler. All transfers must be made before a first-class match Transfer periods will be set weekly and any transfers made in one transfer period will become effective for the matches which begin within the next transfer period. The transfer line opened on Wednesday May 21 and will remain open for the season Transfers must be made by midnight on a Monday in order to be effective for any first-class matches beginning after that date Transfers may only be made by telephone by calling.

0891 884 826 (0990 100 348 outside UK) YOU may check your team score and position in ITC by calling 0991 884 624 (0990 100 349 outside UK) QUERIES on all other ITC matters, includ-ing details of how to enter, should be made to

ITF starts July 28th

speck; the final column is the player's overall points all. The figures include all matches completed by 1622 719 268 367 1125 0 July 14. Overseas players are shown in bold type. Rising Stars in italic. S D Udal (274) S K Warne (275) Waqar Younis (276) S L Warkin (277) N F Williams (278) J Wood (279) Batsmen (001-146) Wicketkeepers (186-216) 151 D 29 58 68 Category B U Afzaal (280) . . P Aldred (281) . . D A Altree (282) G J Batty (283) M A V Bell (284) D A Cosker (291) D M Cousins (292) D M Cousins (292) A P Davies (292) A P Davies (293) K J Dean (294) R R Dobden (295) M Davond (296) S W K Ellis (297) J E Erbourtey (298) R A Fay (299) D Follett (200) M J Foster (301) P J Franks (302) R J Geer (303) G M Hamilton (304) S I E Hamdson (305) J E Hamdson (307) J G Hughes (307) 857 491 1721 1991 1472 1103 1185 1309 554 1217 694 607 565 968 563 1030 743 874 432 877 72 84 204 27 428 63 188 863 865 250 126 232 748 85 0 123 34 89 81 40 0 Singh (125) 14 T Smith (126) 0 N J Speak (127) K R Spring (128) J P Stephenson (129) B C Hollboake (307) J G Hughes (308) P M Hutchison (309) A P legiescien (310) J I D Kerr (311) N kilbeen (312) J Lewe (313) S Lugsden (314) R S C Martin-Jenkins (315) A D Mascarenhas (316) T J Meson (317) S M Milborn (318) R W Nowel (319) Bowlers (217-347) Category A 101 53 0 J Trescottack (134) E Trescottack (1 P E Wellings (141) R M S Weston (142) 792 56 223 28 47 898 638 329 232 889 956 1029 493 1509 746 1173 M Rawnsley (327) ... S J Renshau (328) .. M A Robinson (329) All-rounders (147-185) 0 456 84 515 52 869 460 154 101 341 82 Category B D A Beniaron (058). D.Bvas (059)...) J Capel (152).... P D Collingwood (163) ...) G Cork (154) 1596 934 759 421 1508 588 969 1294 1215 879 33 ☐ One point is awarded for each run, 20 points for each wicket and catch and 40 points for each investments, savings and cricket.

Don't be bowled over by the future.

1160

Pensions, life assurance, healthcare.

Five bonus points are awarded for a half-century, ten bonus points are awarded for a century and for five

All points scored in Test matches are doubled.

awarded for ten wickets in a match. Twenty points are deducted for a duck.

☐ Source: ECB/PA Cricket Record

'I've told my crew how difficult it is to come down at the end'

Welcome home to grim reality

By MICHAEL CALVIN

THE crew stood in the shadows thrown by the spotlight that illuminated the mainsail of the yacht, Group 4, in the early hours of yesterday. They were silhouettes, somehow stripped of their humanity by the darkness. One voyage of self-discovery was about to end, and another, equally intimidating, begin.

The BT Global Challenge may be billed as the world's toughest yacht race, but even that dubious claim disguises the depth of the examination of character it provides. As absurd as it seems, given the mythology of the sea, sailing around the world the wrong way, against prevailing winds and tides, is the easy bit.

Though the scale of the task is daunting, it has a seductive simplicity. The amateur crews who returned to Southampton yesterday may have circumnavigated the globe, but they have been cloistered in a small, self-absorbed world. It is an unreal, occasionally unhealthy, existence that can form lifelong friendships and enduring enmittes.

The emotions released by their 33,000-mile odyssey, which compressed ten years' living into ten months, have surprising strength. Naturally enough, as fireworks were released to welcome the fleet, they were initially expressed in tears of joy. Typically, Grahame Gibson, a member of Mike Golding's winning crew on Group 4, had the glassy-eyed air of a man in

"This is the ultimate, the pinnacle of everything I've ever done," he said. "It is the first time what we have achieved has really sunk in. I am sure it has changed me. You go through tremendous highs and lows for month after month. You learn so much about yourself.

'I'm different to the person who left here last September. Out there. I've come to terms with my weaknesses. Everyone has them and I can now manage mine. My strengths have become stronger. I can approach the future with such confidence."

Golding, far right, and his crew celebrate after their triumphant return to Southampton in the early hours yesterday

Optimism, like the softfocus view of the world that comes courtesy of unlimited champagne after weeks on a diet of freeze-dried mush, fades all too quickly. The race is, to use the words of its youngest crewman, Paul Sherwood, "an excellent adventure". But these crews will soon be confronted by the realities and responsibilities of the lives they left behind.

When I returned from sailing in Sir Chay Blyth's inaugural British Steel Challenge race four years ago, it took me three months to come to terms with the rigidity of the structure of what passes as normal

Shared lessons have been applied by my former watchleader, Andy Hindley, a notably successful skipper of thirdDETAILS

LATEST POSITIONS (at 16:02GMT yesterday): 1, Group 4 fireshed at 01 06:58; 2. Tosniba Wave Warnor 02:39-46; 3, Concert 04:07:41; 4, Save the Children 14:32-23; 5, Commercial Union 14:33:59; 6, Nuclear Bectric 7 miles from Southampton: 7, Global Tearmwork 10, 8, Ocean Rover 14, 9, 3Com 19: 10, Heath Insured II 19; 11, Courtautic International 22; 12, Pause to Remember 22; 12, Molorota 22; 14, Tearn & Tide 113 placed Save the Children. "I realised what I was letting myself in for at the start of all this," he said. "It doesn't make it any easier to deal with, and I've told my crew over and over again how difficult it will be for them to come down, at the end of the race. They've got to have something else to focus Potentially, the hardest point of the race comes right now, when they've got to get off the boat. They'll party for a couple of days, and then it all finishes and they'll have to go home. That's the big emotional hit. I've prepared them for it, but I'll give them my phone number just in case. I'll be there if they need me." They will, assuredly. Sean Blowers, the actor, sailed on Commercial Union Assurance until the yacht reached Wellington, in New Zealand, when he had to retire from the race with back problems that required surgery. Yesterday, six months on, he radiated an overwhelming sense of

"I'm having to come to terms with those horrible things, like bills, mortgages, careers," he said. "However bad it is at sea. it is still easier than what we call normality. There is nothing else to think about but sailing the boat as boat, but it was never really on fast as possible. "I was hoping to rejoin the damage. Recovering from that blow is all part of the challenge. You've just got to get a grip on things, but I have to say its hard to keep the tears back."

Relationships must be re-built. Simon Walker, the skipper of second-placed Toshiba Wave Warrior, is quietly resentful at not having the opportunity to see his two children grow up. "I really did miss them," he said. "It's a biological function. On a couple of the long legs I've sat on my own and wished I was

But there are compensations, expressed most eloquently by Save the Children crew member, Phillip White. "Chay used to tell us: 'No Guts, No Glory." he said.
"Well, I'm glad I had the guts to do this, and grateful for the glory it has given

IN BRIEF

Rusedski

pulls out

GREG RUSEDSKI is to withdraw from the Northern Electric Open tennis tournament in Jesmond next week

after aggravating a groin injury in his second-round defeat by Magnus Larsson, of Sweden, in the Mercedes Cup

in Stuttgart yesterday. The British No 2 was hampered by the injury - which he originally suffered in his match-winning Davis Cup display against Ukraine in Kiev last weekend - during his 7-6. 6-7, 6-4 defeat by the

SHOOTING: Scotland won the Elcho Shield for match

rifle teams of eight at Bisley yesterday by setting a record score of 1,723.177.

RUGBY UNION: Dave

Sims, the England A lock, will miss the first eight weeks of

TELEVISION CHOICE

Behind the ugly façades

How Buildings Learn: The Low Road BBC2, 7.30pm

Stewart Brand began his series by castigating architects for designing buildings that look wonderful but do not work. He now moves on to structures so low in the scale that no architect would have been near them. But he argues that would have been near them. But he argues that sheds, shacks, garages, disused warehouses and mobile homes support the real creativity of a civilisation. It is a big claim but he does his best to support it. His own office is a converted fishing boat and we also drop in on converted holiday chalets near Swansea, a recording studio in a Suffolk garage and a warehouse in California used by a toy manufacturer. Brand even has a bood by a toy manufacturer. Brand even has a good word for the unlovely Elephant and Castle shopping centre in south London, behind whose garish pink exterior lurk a host of unlikely activities including of all things, tea dances.

Airport BBC1, 8.00pm

Another cleverly edited slice of life from Heathrow Airport leatures Garth, a customs officer, Jean, a traffic warder, and a couple of hacks called Steve traffic warden, and a couple of hacks called Steve and Russell. Steve, the reporter, and Russell he photographer, are acting on a tip that Al Pacino is living in from the United States to promote his new film. But the flights come and go and there is no sign of the great man, unless he has managed to fool these seasoned celebrity watchers by slipping past them in disguise. The Pacino stakeout provides a delicious running gag, as does the plight of standby passengers trying to get home to Egypt for Christmas. Meanwhile the brisk and charpy lean is husy issuing marking tickets as motorists. Jean is busy issuing parking tickets as motorists ignore Heathrow's abundance of double yellow lines and Garth attends to the weightier matter of alleged cocaine smuggling from the Caribbean.

The Men With Nine Lives Channel 4, 8.00pm

This documentary about bomb disposal men in Northern Ireland not only deserves its repeat but remains sadly topical. It is a story of, essentially, each side trying to outwit the other. As the terrorist bombs get more sophisticated so do the methods of defusing them, which in turn inspires the bomb

1 4 3 m2 1 m

ليكم يتاك راران

Searching for a story (BBCl, 8pm)

makers to new levels of ingenuity. It hardly needs to be said that approaching a bomb requires special courage. Even in simulation, as on the army's rigorous training course, the dismantling of an explosive device is a tense affair. A promising an explosive device is a tense anair. A promising development has been the "wheelbarrow", a radio-controlled robot which can deal with the bomb without personnel having to go near it. We hear, too, from Shane O'Doherty, a former IRA man, on the hazards of making and placing bombs. It is an honest contribution but not one likely to arouse

Trial and Error Channel 4, 9.00pm

Inside Track: Living Doll

icon as a girl's plaything.

Radio 4. 8.20pm

RADIO CHOICE

Channel 4, 9.00pm

Tonight's alleged miscarriage of justice concerns John Kamara, who is serving life for the murder of a betting shop manager in Liverpool. The killing took place in March 1981 as two men robbed a safe. One of them confessed. Kamara was said to be the other. He was convicted partly on being picked out in an identification parade, and partly on a prison "confession". David Jessel's report says that both pieces of evidence were flawed and that evidence favourable to Kamara was not given to the court. Jessel also claims to reveal the identify of the real second man and to produce new support for Kamara's alibi. That Kamara's appeal has been turned down is no guarantee that the case will not prove yet another embarrassment for the English prove yet another embarrassment for the English legal system.

Peter Wavmark

The second in a five-part series about modern life

tells the inside story of the Barbie doll, a phenomenon of the age and the first mass-produced doll to have an adult, female, form. There are said to be more Barbie dolls in the US than there are people.

most of them made in a Japanese factory. But the genesis of Barbie was all-American: she is the product of Ruth Handler and her husband Elliot, two of the founders of the Mattel toy company (Barbie is named after their daughter Barbara). Other Mattel executives were against the product, believing that a doll with a female form could be corrupting, while there still many people who regard Barbie as anti-feroinist, as much a male

WORLD SERVICE

Life, Death and Sex With Mike and Sue

Radio 4, 6.30pm A second series of the comedy programme that spoofs in one char shows, particularly those encountered on daytime television. Robert Duncan encountered on daytime television. Robert Duncan and Jan Ravens star as Mike and Sue, deploying theerfulness in a format that uses a mix of chat and sketches to send up just about everything. The show is determinedly non-politically correct, having a go at everything from career women who want children but are too busy to have intercourse (their husbands leave sperm in the fridge) to the Dutch, whom the show reports as decriminalising murder. The script makes telling points and silly murder. The script makes telling points and silly ones with equal aplomb and it can only be a matter of time before some of its spoofs turn up on daytime television as genuine items.

All times in BST. News on the Incur. 6.08em Newsday 6.30 Europe 7.15 World Today 7.30 Menidan Books 8.15 Off the Shelf 8.30 Cornoposar'd the Mortin 9.10 Pause, for Thought 9.15 Turning a Tune 9.30 Hot New Country 10.05 Business 10.15 Dying, Notes 10.30 BBC English 10.45 Sport 91.30 Discovery 12.30pm The Learning World 12.46 From Our Own Correspondent 1.05 Business 1.15 Britain 1.30 Record News 1.45 Sport 2.00 Newsing 7.05 Outlook 3.30 Miditipack 4.05 Sport 4.15 Turning a Tune 4.30 News in German 6.05 Europe 5.30 News in German 6.05 Europe 5.30 News in German 6.45 Sport 7.30 Assignment 8.01 Outlook 8.25-Pause for Thought 6.30 John Peel 8.00 Newsen 10.15 Britain 10.30 Meridian Books 11.30 World Today 11.45 Sport 12.05em Outlook 12.30 Virtage. Chart Show 1.30 Turning a Tune 1.45 Britain 2.30 The World 3.30 Frous on Feltif 4.05 Business 4.15 Sport 4.30 Europe 7.00am Kevin Greening 9.00 Simon Mayo 11.30 Radio 1 Roadshow 12.30pm Newsbest 12.45 Jo Whiley 3.00 Mary Anne Hobbs 6.15 Newsbest 6.30 Evening Session 8.30 Movie Update 8.40 John Peel 10.30 Claire Sturgess 1.00am Phoenic Live: Dave Pearce 4.00 Clive Warren

6.00mm Sarah Kennedy 7.30 Wogan 9.30 Ken Bruce 11.30 Jimmy Young 1.30pm Debbie Thrower 3.00 Ed Stawart 5.05 John Dunn 7.00 Devid Alien's Country Club 8.00 Paul Jones 9.00 The Demece Williams Show 9.30 Tre What If Stow 10.00

5.00am Morning Reports 6.00 The Breakfast Programme 9.00
The Magazine 12.00 Middlay with Mair 1.30pm The Open.
Coverage of the first day's play of the 128th Open Golf Championship at Troon 7.00 News Extra 8.00 Devid Gover's Cricket Weekly, includes a look ahead to the fourth Test 9,00 Inside Edge with Rob Bonnet 10.00 News Telk 11.00 News Extra with Veleria Sanderson 12.00 After Hours — Early Call 2.00am Up Ali Night with Fihod Sharp

TALK RADIO

5,00mm Chris Ashley and Sandy Warr 7.00 Paul Ross 9,00 Scott Chisholm 12,00 Lorraine Kelly 2,00pm Tommy Boyd 4,00 Peter Deeley 7,00 Anna Raebum 9,00 James Whele 1,00mm len Collins

Turper, George Concerto for Two Pianos in E flat major, K365) 3,08 Jemie Crick 7,00 Classic Newsnight 7.30 Sonata, Finger (Sonata for Trumper, Doce and Bassoon) 8,00 Evening Concert, Haydri (Symphony No 93 in D); Mozart (Siring Quartet No 17 in B flat, The Hunt); Besthoven (Violin Concerto in D) 10,00 Michael Mappin 2.00am Classic Concerto (r)

VIRGIN RADIO 7.00am Nick Abbot 10.00 Greham Bene 1.00pm Jeremy Clark 4.00 Nicky Flome 6.00 Paul Coyle (FM) / Robin Barks (AM) 10.00 Mark Forest 2.00am Richard Poster

CLASSIC FM

4.00sm Mark Griffiths 6.00 Alan Mann 9.00 Henry Kell 1.00pm Classic Concerto. Bocharioi (Cello Concerto No 8 in 6

6.00em On Air, with Andrew McGregor, Includes.
Corrysh (Salve Regina); Brahms (Paganini Variations, Op 35); Bach, an Stoloweld (Toccata and Fugue in D minor, BWV565); Schumern (Nachtstücke, Op 23); Stravinsky, arr Crabb/Draugsvoll (Tango); Mozart (Clarinet Concerto in A, K622)

9.00 Morring Collection, with Penny Gore, Includes Donizati (Shing Quarter No 13 in A); Elgar (Dream Chultern); Ravel (Minosi)

10.00 Musical Encounters, Live from the Cheltanham Festival with Chris Wines, Includes Peter Maxwell Davies (Opia Festival Overture); Lambert (Trois Precas Niègras pour les Touches Blanches); Ravel (Air d'Alcyone); Szymanowski (Kolysanka); Beehoven (Piano Trio in B flat, Op 97, Ancholule)

12.00 Proms Composer of the Weelc Beethoven
1.00pm Opera Mattinée: L'Incontro Improviso. Haydri's opera to a libretto by Carl Friberth. With William Burden, tenor, Lano Tamar, soprano, Anna Maria Parizaella, soprano, Miraille Delurisch, soprano and the Leusanne Chamber Orchestra, under Jonathan Dartington
3.35 Vanessa Latarch. A pigno rectal. Mendelssohn (Preludes and Fugues Op 35: No 2 in D; No 3 in B minor); Schumann (Arabesque in C, Op 18); Grieg (Piano Sonata in E minor, Op 7) (f)
4.15 Ensemble. The Sorrel Quartet plays Shostalovich (Sting Quartet No 7); Mozart (String Cuartet in C, K465, Dissonance)
5.00 The Music Macteire, with Tommy Pearson and the John S. Davis Singers, Includes Rossini (Three Songs to Fernale Voices); William Mathies (Lear Songs)

7.20 BBC Philhermonic, under Yan Pascal Torteller, Craig Ogden, guiter. Bizel (Carmen Suites Nos 1 and 2. excerpts); Rodrigo (Concierto de Arantusz); Ravel (Rapsodie Espegnole); Falla (The ThreeCornered Hai Suites Nos 1 and 2) 8.50 Role Play. Alex Jarnings and Stephen Moore discuss the character of libsen's Peer Gynt 9.15 Jamacek, Dohmanni and Martimu. Lesie Newman, flate, Paul Marleyn, ceito, and Mertin Roscoe, piano, janacek (Pohadles); Dohmanni (Possacagita for Solo Rute); Martimu (Trio, 1944) (f)
10.00 Music Restorad: The Earliest Printed Music Ottaviano Petrucci and the Italian Frottole. A concert given by Fretwork and Michael Chance.
countartenor, at the Beverley and East Riding Early Music Festival. Includes Jesquin (De Tous
Biers Plaine); Bartolomeo Tromboncino (Si e Debile il Filo); Ockeghem (Ut Herentia Solus); Josquin (Nymphes des Bois, Déploretion sur la Mort d'Ockeghem); Anon (La Spagna a 5) 10.45 Night Waves, Patrick Wright discusses a new book by the historian Jeffrey Richards on film and Bittish national identity
11.30 Composets of the Weelc Early Spanish Music, with Catherine Bott, Includes music by Triana, Escober, Medina and Peralosa (f) 12.30am Jazz Notes. Digby Faliweather introduces the second part of Stazey Kent's concert with the Jim Tominson Ouintet

second part of Stacey Kent's concert with the user Torrelinson Quinter
1.00 Through the Might, with David Cornet. Includes 1.00 Choral Eventsong (r) 2.00 Pieces by Martinu for mixed ensembles 3.30 Montreal Symphony Orchestra, under Charles Dutor. With Garrick Ohlsson, plano, John Adams (Short Ride ain a Fast Machine); Dvořák (Plano Concerto in Gi

5.00 PM, with Charlie Lea-Potter and Jon Sopel 5.50 Shipping Forecast 5.55 Weather 6.03 Stx O'Clock News 6.30 Ltfe, Death and Sex with Milke and Sue, See

6.30 Life, Death and Sex with Milke and Sue, See Choice
C

5.55am Shipping Forecast (LW) 6.00 Naws Bristing
6.10 Farming Today 6.25 Prayer for the Day 6.30
Today, includes Thought for the Day 8.40
Yesterday in Parliament 8.58 Weather
9.00 News 9.05 The Moral Mazze. Michael Beurk chairs a discussion with David Cook, Janet Daley, Michael Mansfield, OC, and Dr. David Starkey
10.00 News; The Fermale Ghost (FM): The Demon Lover, by Efizabeth Sowan With Maggie Steed,
Jenny Howe and Jonathan Keetie (4/4)10.00 Daity Service (LW) 10.15 On This Day (LW)
10.30 Weman's Hour, with Jenni Murray

10.30 Woman's Hour, with Jern's Murray
11.30 From Our Own Correspondent, News from BBC reporters around the world reporters around the world

12.00 News; You and Yours, with Mark Whittaker

12.25pm The Heritage Chitz. Sue MacGregor invites Christopher Cook, Philippa Gregory, Roisin MacAusey and Martin Washwright to test their moviedge of Britain's cultural heritage 12.65

Weather

1.00 The World at One, with Nick Clarke
1.40 The Archers (r) 1.35 Shipping Forecast
2.00 News; Thursday Afternoon Play; A Fine and Private Place, by Peter Molitat George dedicated his life to his lover, a celebrated artist. But when he dies the glowing obtuaries make no mention of George's role
3.00 News; The Afternoon Shift, with Daire Bretsn and curets.

3.00 News; The Perezrevia colors and guests and guests
4.00 News 4.05 Keleidoscope. Paul Allen graw up in Canterbusy where he first read Orwell and became interested in the theatre. Now based in Shefflied he uses both places to trace his cultural roots 4.45 Short Story — The Prench Collection: Morning Glories, by Colesia. Translated by Matthew Ward and read by Greta Scacchi.

Gasabilities

2.30 Kateldoscope (f) 9.59 Weather

10.00 The World Tonight, with Robin Lustig

10.45 Book at Bedtimer Captain Coresit's Mandolin, by Louis de Bernieres, Abridged by Alson Joseph and read by Robert Powel (8/15)

11.00 The Mark of Zorro. An epic adventure written by
by S.J. Ashford, With Mark Arden, Louise Lomberd and Glyn Houston (3/5)

11.30 Ad Lib (FM), Robert Robinson takes to members of the Royal Bellet Company about the pressures
of the Royal Bellet Company about the pressures of performing (4/5) (f)

11.30 Today in Partiament (LW). A roundup of the day

12.08 News includes 12.28am approx Weather;
events in Westminster

12.30 The Late Book: The White Boy Shuttle, by Paul Bastly, Read by Ray Shell (4/10)

France, Outschakov crossed

Outschakov relegated to third place

CYCLING: UKRAINIAN'S SWING TO LEFT PRESENTS TOUR STAGE TO FRENCHMAN

By JEREMY WHITTLE

THE Tour de France saw another controversial stage finish in the old Roman city of Perpignan yesterday when Serguei Outschakov, of Ukraine, was relegated to third place for dangerous sprinting and victory awarded to Laurent Desbiens, of the line at the head of a threeman breakaway but was to have unfairly blocked Desbiens, who came perilously close to crashing into the crowd barriers.

Against the backdrop of the rapidly receding Pyrenees, Outschakov, Desbiens and Carlo Finco, of Italy, took

Mortgages

NOTICE OF INTEREST RATE VARIATION

The following interest rates for mortgages provided by Centrebank, a Division of Bank of Scotland, will apply with effect from 17th July 1997 for both new and existing borrowers.

Centrebank Mortgage Rate

(Variable) 8.19% per annum.

Stabilised Charging Rate 8.49% per annum.

Adaptable Mortgage Plan Charging Rate 8.35% per annum.

Centrebank Mortgage Rate Plus

(Variable) 8.69% per annum.

Home Loan Rate 8.19% per annum.

BANK OF SCOTLAND®

A FRIEND FOR LIFE

CENTREBANK, EDINBURGH EH12 9DR

Bank of Scotland, A Friend for Life and 150 are registered trademarks of The Governor and Company of the Bank of Scorland.

advantage of a brief drop in the pace to slip clear as the race headed across the arid lowlands of Languedoc.

With most of the riders happy to recuperate from their efforts in the mountains, only Christ Boardman's GAN team working for their winless sprinter, Frederic Moncassin, showed any interest in pursuing the breakaways, who staved clear into the streets of Perpignan, where the canny Outschakov did his best to make up for the lacklustre showing of his team leader. the French star, Luc Leblanc.

Desbiens managed a surge in the final 100 metres only to find his path blocked by the Ukrainian's sudden move to his left. "I was clear of him." a crestfallen Outschakov said. My advantage was good and he had room to pass."

A weary and stiff Boardman finished the stage with the main field. He is still in pain from his neck injury but remains hopeful of recovering some of his best form before the race enters the Alps on Saturday.

"My legs felt stronger to-day," he said before flying north to the Massif Central for the rest day today for the 175 competitors left in the race.

Results, page 43 of an Achilles tendon injury.

WORD-WATCHING Answers from page 42

(b) A surface having only one side and one edge. It is formed by twisting one end of a rectangular strip, eg a ribbon, through 180 degrees and joining it to the other end. Named after Augustus Mobius (1790-1868).

(a) One of a body of Greeks who refused to submit to the Turks after the conquest of Greece in the 15th century.

CANNIZZARO

(c) Stanislao Cannizzaro (1826-1910) gave his name to a reaction of aldehydes with caustic alkali. When aldehydes containing no H atoms on the a-carbon atom are treated in the cold with concentrated aqueous or alcoholic sodium hydroxide, dismutation involving two molecules takes place. One molecule is reduced to the alcohol, while the other is oxidised to a salt of the corresponding earboxylic actod.

HAZARD CHASE (b) Hazard is the court away from the server, who always serves from one end. A chase is a line parallel to the net. It also designates the point of impact of second bounce when the player has not returned. The value is determined by the nearness of the bounce to the end wall. Ends are changed, and if the player now serving can get a bounce nearer the end he scores it. If not, it is scored by the first player. Until it is so decided, the chase is a stroke in abeyance.

SOLUTION TO WINNING CHESS MOVE

b7! NacT for 2 Res- follows) 2 b8Q+ and White wins

PRICES INCLUDE POST ACE FOR UNIONLY, SEND SAE FOR DETAILS OF OTHER TITLES OR FOR MAIL ORDER CHARGES EXITY. TIMES CRISSORDS Books IN. LETS (4.50 cm.). The Times Caucier - Book 2 (24) paneles (5.59, The Times The - Book 5 (240 paneles) (5.59, The Times The - Book 5 (240 paneles) (5.59, The Times The - Book 5 (240 paneles) (5.50, The Times Lands (Crissor) (5.50, The Color of Color

Treestword Complete: $10.99. Grammer and Design 113.99.

TMES COMPLETE CENSINA (REDS by Dored Altenhead — Constraints on Computer 15 distant senses of constraints on Computer 15 distant senses of constraints & 2C - 2. The Times Constraint (RELF levels) Include: Times Constraint (RELF levels) Include: Times Constraint (RELF levels) Include: Times Interest Constraints (RELF levels) Include: Levels Interest Constraints (RELF levels) Include: Levels Interest Constraints (RELF levels) Include: Times Interest Constraints (RELF levels) Include: The Times Interest Constraints (RELF levels) Include: Times Interest (RELF levels) Include: Times Interest

FREQUENCY GUIDE RADIO 1, FM 97.6-99.8. RADIO 2 FM 88.0-90.2. RADIO 3, FM 90.2-92.4. RADIO 4, FM 92.4-94.6; LW 198: MW 720. RADIO 5 LIVE. MW 893, 909. WORLD SERVICE: MW 648: LW 198 (12.45-6,558) CLASSIC FM. FM 100-102. VIRGIN RADIO, FM 1053; MW 1197, 1215. TALK RADIO, MW 1053, 1689. Television and radio listings compiled by Peter Deer, lan Hughes, Rosemary Smith, Susan Tromson, Jahn Gregory and John McNamera.

(عِلَدَا مِنْ الْأَصِل

Times as read it.

going to ballet school.

horses, is there not? You never see downcast and sloppy. A horse has brilliant posture, without ever

So QED (BBCI) had me more than half sold just by putting Monty Roberts — A Real Horse

Whisperer into the schedules and I was especially anxious to see this film because I had missed an earlier QED involving Roberts.

6.00am Business Breakfast (90098)

7.00 BBC Breakfast News (1) (95456)

10.30 Who'll Do the Pudding? (30456)

baby (r) (1) (6005974)

12.35 Neighbours (T) (8885982)

11.50 Good Neighbours (2999765)

12.05pm Call My Bluff (6137123)

1.00 News (T) and weather (98543)

1.30 Regional News (42460253)

9.50 KThroy (T) (5481104).

11.00 News (T) (7972982)

12.00 News (1) (8450475)

9.00 Brenkfast News Extra (1) (3388630).

9.20 Ready, Steedy, Cook with Fem Britton (1719036)

11.05 Due South Ray finds an abendoned

1.40 Columbo: Old Fashioned Murder A

3.00 international Golf: The Open The first-

4.00 Popeye (f) (7838746) 4.10 Dinobables (f) (1) (4247833) 4.35 Cartoon Critters (T) (8932272)

round action continues (5291)

5.35 Neighbours (r) (T) (367920)

6.00 News (T) and weather (475)

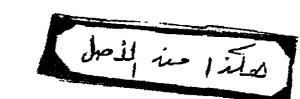

8.30 Regional News Magazine (727)

7.30 EastEnders Poly and Tony's

7:00 Watchdog: Value for Money Petfood; lost property auctions; Nike Town (T) relationship is put under further strain. Robbie has an unexpected visitor (I) woman plots to murder her brother. Sterring Peter Falk, with Joyce Van Patten, Celeste Holm and Tim O'Connor 2.55 Private Places (1655727).

SE ROUNDUP

pizza slice

1 at 2-year low

mology grows

elays report inans sale

There are enough people about his unique method of quent tendencies. Roberts succeed-crowding the television paming horses. landscape on an average Roberts is a Californian horse night to ensure that, normally, rancher who developed a method animals can be left to take their of breaking horses that involved chances, which is just as well no cruelty. Instead, Roberts spoke because I am not disposed to give to the wild horses, gently easing himself into their confidence. It animals disproportionate amounts of publicity. They show little works. Last night's programme gratitude, for one thing, and are as took things a step further and filmed Roberts's first attempt to tame a mustang, the wildest of the Yet there is something about wild, by this method. The ugly one, you never see one dragging about a field looking all

It took him three days without sleep, tracking the animal across the California high desert, coming ever closer, talking to it, moving in, backing off. He succeeded of course, as he knew he would, (Roberts may be a mite too sure of himself for some tastes) but in between learning something about horses one learnt something more . important about people.

Roberts and his wife have three children and they have fostered That was two years ago and was more than 40 others with delin-

ed with the loster children by applying the same principles he uses with horses, firm but kind methods, in contrast to the abuse many of them had encountered from their natural parents. There is a further, more remarkable, behavioural link between the human beings and the horses. Roberts allows members of the public to watch him gently break in horses in the circular ring at his ranch. At some of the sessions he noticed that several people, usually women, fainted.

y questioning them later, it was discovered that the women had been overcome by seeing animals treated so gently in contrast to the cruelty they. associated with horse breaking. Amazingly, more than three quarters of those who fainted had been abused as children.

We must make of that what we

Peter

Barnard

will, a conclusion that applies to Reputations: Simon Wiesenthal - The Man who Hunted Nazis (BBC2). Wiesenthal's name rarely appears without having the word controversial appended but any Jew will tell you that you do not have to be Wiesenthal to be controversial, you only have to be Jewish. Nothing in this programme would alter the unremarkable view that Wiesenthal was a remarkable and dedicated man. His lifelong search for war criminals (he is 88 now and still at it) sometimes involved courting publicity, but how else was he to raise the money? There are, however, two matters which have created particular concern.

One was the capture of Adolf Eichmann, which did most to make Wiesenthal an international hero. A letter from Wiesenthal told the relevant authorities where Eichmann was (in Buenos Aires). though there remains the question of whether Israel already knew. Israel was only too pleased to let Wiesenthal take some credit, for the kidnapping of Eichmann by the Israeli Mossad was illegal.

But Wiesenthal's opponents made more hay out of the Kurt Waldheim affair, when the former United Nations Secretary-General stood for the presidency of Austria. The World Jewish Congress (WJC) pursued Waldheim for his Nazi links (he was in the wartime German Army) but Wiesenthal held that the evidence against Waldheim was insufficient.

ven now, bitterness about the split persists and WJC backers in the programme made no great effort to hide their contempt. One, Elan Steinberg, said: The Simon Wiesenthal that he sought to portray is not the Simon Wiesenthal that corresponds with reality."

Most people will surely think that Wiesenthal is a wholly remarkable man, whose connection with the concentration camps did not end when he was liberated from one. His chief offence seems to be the possession of a hefty ego. but as Hella Pick, his biographer, said: "He's very egocentric but only a person with an ego as big as his could have done what he has achieved."

For light relief we turn to the

Being gentle is no more than horse sense Paignton and Dartmouth Steam Railway, which you may think could get through a week without attracting the sort of publicity afforded to Railtrack or the London Underground. Some hopes. The P and D was featured last night in One Foot in the Past (BBC2), a heritage series presented by Kirsty Wark which manages to avoid being obsessed with crumbling buildings (though there was one of those, too).

The trouble in Torbay is that one bit of heritage has run slap into another. The railway, which is privately owned, wants to convert the Paignton Picture House, adja-cent to the railway station, for use as a booking hall. The Picture House, oldest of its kind in Europe, is already owned by the railway and runs at a loss. So what to do. when one piece of history seeks to expand at the expense of another? Answers on a seaside postcard, but tile seeks deal

75.00 Newsround (7) (1078340) 5.10 The Biz (r) (1) (4666253)

Airport Pre-Christmas at Heathrow (I) (2123) 8.30 Golcha (1630) 9.00 News (1) regional news and weather 9.30 One Foot in the Grave Victor tempts fate by agreeing to look after neighbours. Patrick and Pippa's house (r) (T) (61814)

10.00 Smith and Jones Mel Smith and Griff

Phys Jones present a comic compendium of sketches and new characters (T) (55765) 10.30 The Last Governor After talks with China izal, the pressure increases on Chris Patten as his democratic reforms are debated in the Legislative Council. Baroness Thatcher is among the interviewees (T) (1728104) 11.35-U2; A Year-In Pop Jo Whiley presents a profile of the chart-topping trish band, as their ambitious, 14-month PopMart tour recording their latest album and their stage show can be seen in a special live

12.25am Naked Tango (1990) Matrilda May plays a judge's bride in 1920s Buenos Aires who sels out to escape a life of domestic drudgery and gets drawn into prostitution. With Vincent D'Onofrio, Esai Morales and Fernando Rey. Directed by Leonard Schrader (2353128) 1,55 Weather (2388692)

VideoPius I and the Video PiusCodes Video/Plus+ and the video Plus-Code
The numbers next to each TV programme fisting are Video Plus-Code "numbers, which allow you to programme your video recorderinstantly with a video-Plus+" handset. Tap in the Video-Plus-Code for the programme you wish to record. Video-plus+ ("), Plus-Code (") and Video-Programmer are traderraries of Germater Development Ltd.

6.00am Open University: Harvesting the Sun (7962104) 6.25 Problems with lons (7941611) 6.50 Plants: Problems with Water (8172765) 7.15 See Hear Breakfast News (1) (6827920) 7.30 The Moomins Valley (7953678) 7.55 Bright Sparks (1) (6887630) 8.20 Charlie Chalk (6565611) 8.35 The Record (2487340) 9.00 Cartoon (5897524) 9.10 The Phil Silvers Show (1707814) Silvers Show (1797814)

9.35 Great Mysteries and Myths of the 20th Century The death of General Patton (2475455) 10.00 Teletubbles (80036) 10.30 International Gotf: The Open Day one of the 126th Championship at Royal Troon (23307) 12.30pm Working Lunch (72920) 1.00 International Goff: The Open More from the opening 18 holes at the Royal Troon Golf Club in Ayrshire (61901)

3.00 News; Regional News (1) (1912814) 3.05 Westminster with Nick Ross (6877678) 3.55 News; Regional News (T) (2351104) 4.00 International Golf: The Open Further live coverage as the first round draws to a

Author Stewart Brand (7.30pm)

praises of so-called Low Road buildings - semi-permanent structures such as garages and mobile homes (T) (253) 8.00 Wild Harvest with Nick Naim The chef sea fishing and hunts an Arctic hare before whipping up a caramel mousse (T) (2415) WALES: 8.00 And Now, Over to Our Friends in Wales (2415) 8.30 Tracks How a fifth-century Angle Saxon peasant would have travelled without a map; the wonders of seaweed the sights and sounds of the Wve; the peaks of Glericoe (T) (9272) 9.00 International Golf: The Open Steve Rider reports on day one at the Royal Troon Club in Ayrishine (766036)

9.40 This Life The opening night of the care leaves Egg feeling decidedly deflated; Ferdy indulges in a one-night stand; Kira, Miles and Kelly make big plans (T) 10.20 The X Philes Fens of sci-fi series The X

10.28 Talking Tate (422678) 10.30 Newenight (T) (612562) 11.15 The Woman in Twelve (947920) 11.55 Holiday Weather (477901)

12.00 The Midnight Hour (65166) 12.30em Learning Zone: Open University: Social Work in the Inner City (19499) 1.00 Powers of the President (57895) 2.00 Summer Nights: Star Gazing Essentials (63019) 4.00 Languages: Greek Language and People/French Experience Know How (45383) 5.00 Business and Work (63055)

HIV 💇 💯

6.00am GMTV (4224956) 9.25 Win, Lose or Draw (r) (1) (1703475) 9.55 Judge Judy (T) (4416104) 10.20 News (T) (8201901) 10.25 Regional News (T) (8200272)

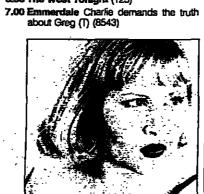

10.30am Hart to Hart Returns (1993) with Robert Wagner, Stelanie Powers and David Rasche. Feature length adventure for the husband and wife detective team

12.20pm Regional News (8456659) 12.30 ITN News (T) (8811307)

12.55 Shortland Street (8896098) 1.25 Home and Away (T) (37591543) 1.50 it's a Vet's Life (59483746) 2.20 Shattered Promises (5786814) 3.20 News (T) (1929104) 3.25 Regional News (T) (1928475)

3.30 Potamus Park (r) (4235949) 3.40 Wizadora (r) (1519272) 3.50 Rupert (6104543) 4.15 Transylvania Pet Shop (T) (4231272) 4.40 Reboot (8457104) 5.10 A Country Practice (1639307) 5.40 ITN News (1) (517098)

6.00 Home and Away Will Liam sacrifice his tather's freedom (r) (T) (384123) 6.25 HTV Weather (260104) 6.30 The West Tonight (123)

Vogue model Sara Harrison (7.30pm)

7.30.3-D is designer fashion for fat people a long-term reality? How manufacturers could make cars safer for pedestrians. With Julia Somerville (307)

8.00 The Bill A teenage catflight over an older man has serious implications (T) (7291) 8.30 Undercover Customs: Operation Green ice Real-life smuggling stories: reconstructions and surveillance footage. A billion-dollar drugs bust (T) (3098)

9.00 Taggart: Prayer for the Dead With Jardine and Reid under pressure to find the killer of Anna Palaski, a link is (5920)

10.00 News at Ten (T) (40833) 10.30 Regional News (T) (579720) 10.40 The West This Week (449543) 11.30 Frieze Frame (951388) 11.45 Short Story Cinema (798746) 12.10am The Wacky Weekly World News

12.35 The LADS (5923673) 1.10 Funny Business (2219234) 1.40 Planet Rock Profiles (4290692)

2.10 Late and Loud (8305963) 3.05 3-D (66498708) 3.35 The Good Sex Guide Late (5293760) 4.35 The Time, the Place (22855215) 5.00 Garden Calendar (60296) 5.30 News (53321)

2.40 The Loop (2958321)

3.05 Late and Loud (6974654)

As HTV West except: 10.30am Film: Jonathan: The Boy Nobody Wanted (94993524)

12.55pm-1.25 A Country Practice (8896098) 5.10-5.40 Shortland Street (1639307) 6.25 Central News (369814)

10.40 Film: Once in a Lifetime (11002369) 12.25am Jody Horowitz Reports (6225050) 12.40 Funny Business (8268499) 1.15 Rockmania (789895) 2.15 Ed's Night Party (9289673)

5.20 Asian Eye (9351128) WESTCOUNTRY

4.00 Central Jobfinder '97 (2365893)

As HTV West except: 10.30am Film: Jonathan — The Boy Nobody Wanted (94993524) 12.55pm Home and Away (7119974)

1.20-1.50 Emmerdale (81804730) 5.10-5.40 Home and Away (1639307) 6.00-7.00 Westcountry Live (84765) 10.30 Westcountry News (367712) 10.45 Overdrive (992122)

11.15 Paul Weller: Live (323901) MERIDIAN As HTV West except: 10.30am Film; Eight is Enough: Reunion (94993524) 5.10pm-5.40 Home and Away (1639307) 6.00 Meridian Tonight (543)

6.30-7.00 Grass Roots (123) 10.30 Meridian News and Weather (367712) 10.45 Film: In the Line of Duty: The Twilight Murders (11584433) 5.00 Freescreen (60296)

ANGLA As HTV West except: 10.30 Film: Eight is Enough: Reunion

(94993524) 12.55-1.25 A Country Practice (8896098) 5.10-5.40 Shortland Street (1639307) 6.23 Anglia Weather (261833) 6.25 Anglia News (369814)

11.40 New York News (304291)

6.55-7.00 What's On (215814) 10.29 Anglia Air Watch (419104) 10.40 The Magic and Mystery Show (521475) 11.10 Waterlines (468833)

Starts: 6.00am Sesame Street (16036) 7.00 The Big Breakfast (11494) 9.00 Beyetched (27982) 9.30 Film: That Hamilton Wome (40379982) 11.55 Une Artiste (6123920) 12.00 ise to House (47746) 12.30pm Ricki Lake (74388) 1.00 Slot Meithrin (25075543) 1.15 Wil Cwac Cwac (25070098) 1.30 Tracks of Glory (45609949) 3.15 On Land, at Sea and in the Air (6352098) 3.30 Here's One | Made the Air (6352098) 3.30 Here's One 1 Made Earlier (901) 4.00 Fiffeen-to-One (956) 4.30 Absolutely Animais (920) 5.00 5 Pump (8156479) 5.20 Gogs (7637524) 5.30 Countdown (272) 6.00 Newyddion (975524) 6.05 Heno (362901) 6.35 Jac yn y Bocs (277494) 7.00 Pobol y Cwm (472272) 7.25 Sgrin Ti Syniad? (418036) 8.00 Eden (5833) 8.30 Newwyddion (4200.9.00 The Learni in the 8.30 Newyddion (4340) 9.00 The Jewel in the Crown (3562) 10.00 Tour De France (48475) 10.30 Film: Gas, Food, Lodging (57146765) 12.25am The Legend of George Rex

FERRINEL. 6.00am Sesame Street (r) (16036) 7.00 The Big Breaklast (11494) 9.00 Bewitched (r) (T) (27982)

9.30 That Hamilton Woman (1941, b/w) Leurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh. A propaganda drama parallelling the war against Hitler with Nelson's battles with blandeon. Alexander, Korda, director Napoleon. Alexander Korda directs

(40379982) 11.55 Une Artiste Animation (6123920) 12.00 House to House (47746) 12.30pm Blue Wildemess: The Dolphin Children (r) (T) (74388) 1.30 Moving People (r) (T) (81253) 1.30 Jeu de Coudes. Animation (29030291)

1.35 The Proud Rebel (1958) A western drama starring Alan Ladd and Olivia de Havilland, directed by Michael Curtz 3.30 Here's One I Made Earlier (T) (901)

4.00 Fitteen-to-One (T) (956) 4.30 Countdown (T) (8926611) 4.65 Ricki Lake (T) (2886494) 5.30 Pet Rescue (r) (T) 6.00 Tour De France On a rest day - a review of the race so far (185). 6.30 Hollyoaks Teen soap (T) (765)

7.00 Channel 4 News (T) (416543) 7.50 York Early Music Festival Emma Kirby and Anthony Rooley periorm works by John Dowland (171291)

Johnny Kamara — murderer? (9pm

9.00 Trial and Error David Jessel investigates the case of Johnny Karnara (1) (3562)

10.00 Whose Line is it Anyway? Improvised cornedy (T) (928475) 10.35 Northern Exposure Alaska-set off-beat prospects for a negotiated peace in Northern Ireland (41456) 1.00am -4.05 Midnight Underground:

Teenage Rampage A gang of boys in south-east London (8530673) 1.10 Two or Three Things I Know But Nothing for Sure A journey from a turbulent childhood in the American south to a tranquil life in Northern California (8550437) 1.25 Remember Me A treatise on death Collapse. An attempt electronically to resuscitate the dead language of love (3145334) 2.20 Chronos Fragmented The use of video as a creative memory

cornedy series (T) (172369) 11.30 Weekly Planet A discussion on the (4489692) 1.45 Laws of Nature. A fresh perspective on landscape (52234) 2.15

Know (3513673) 4.05 Memento Ved Mehta talks to Joan Bakewell (r) (T) (95984654) 4.35 Geographical Eye (59241147) 4.55 Tour De France (r) (4793470) 5.30 Backdate

Bradist-3 CHANNEL 5 ON SATELLITE Channel 5 is now broadcasting on transponder No 63 on the Astra Satellite. Viewers with a Videocrypt decoder will be able to receive the channel free of charge. Frequencies for transponder No 63 are picture: 10.92075 GHz; sound: 7.02 and 7.20 MHz. 7.02 and 7.20 MHz

6.00am 5 News Early (9367456)

7.30 Havakazoo (7193543) 8.00 The Enid Blyton Adventure Series (7083340) 8.30 WideWorld (7082611) 9.00 Espresso Consumer magazine with Edwina Currie (3783901) 10.00

Exclusive! (r) (5762611) 10.30 Instant Gardens (T) (7002475) 11.00 Leeza (6644291) 11.50 Double Espresso (19402949) 12.00 The Bold and the Beautiful (T) (7093727) 12.30pm Family Alfairs (T) (4667185)

1.00 5 News Update (T) (95568681) 1.05 Sunset Beach (T) (8600272) 2.00 5's Company (6680727) 3.30 Alvarez Ketty (1966) Western with William Holden, Richard Widmark and Janice Rule. A cattle drover is kidnapped by a ruthless band of Confederates during the American Civil War. Directed by Edward Dmytryk (9361272) 5.30 100 Per Cent The game show without a

6.00 Move on Up Fast-moving game show (T) 6.30 Family Affairs Jack is panicked over Chris and Annie's return and Duncan gets a taste of his own medicine (T)

7.00 Exclusivel Entertainment news, leaturing stories on music, film, television and fashion plus all the latest gossip. With Julia Bradbury (6787369) 7.30 Close Encounters A look at how oil

Motoring Mariella Frostrup (8.00pm)

8,00 The Car Show Motoring magazine presented by Mariella Frostrup and Tristram Payne (6796017)

8.30 5 News (T) (6775524) 9.00 Vanishing Act (1986) with Mike Farrell, Margot Kidder and Elfott Gould. Thriller about a newlywed husband whose wile mysteriously disappears while on honeymoon. Directed by David Greene

10.50 Not the Jack Docherty Show Chat and comedy (1224388) 11.35 Prisoner: Cell Biock H (8805843) 12.35am Live and Dangerous Sports magazine, Includes football action from both North and Latin America (28748031)

4.40 The Streets of San Francisco 5.30 100 Per Cent (r) (3771166)

fistings of satellite and cable els, see the Directory, published on Saturday

8.00xm Morring Glory (43310-9.3.00 Regis and Kathin Lee (80389, 18.00 Another World (52785) 11.00 Days of Cur Live (32901) 12.80 Opart: Wintey (16859) 1.00pm (3esido (44307) 2.00 Sally Jessy 1.00pm (Besiglor (ASSAV) 2000 Sinky vessy Reprinel (2307) 3.00 Jamys, loose (24833) 4.00 Oprah, Winterly (B6140) 5.00 Sink Treic The Next Generation (8220) 6.00 The Live Shore (3828) 6.30 Marined—with Chibren (7562) 7.00 The Simpsons (8849) 7.30. Sun (455) 8.30 The Numby (8104) 9.00 Serifeld (66104) 8.30 Mad About You 5 1881, 18.00 Chango Hope (46543) 1.80 Star Trate The Next Generation (3394) 12.00 Late Show with Lettermen (1739) 1.00 mm Ht (60.0831166)

7.00pm Superboy (7800253) 7.30 Super-bay, (5419340) 8.00 Unsolved Mysteries. (2083658) 9.00 Highlander (2096123) 10.00 Tek Wer (2066982) 11.00 Heat of the Night (6918659) 12.00 Hz Mbx (8199128)

SKY MOVIES ____ 5.00am Granding Tees (1995) (1043)
5.00 Ladylaug Ladylaug (1993) (2630)
6.30 Marriage on the Rocks (1965) (11140) 11.30 Adolf Hiller By Part in His Domnfall (1972) (32765) 1.30pm Phase
IV (1973) (2272) 3.00 Charm! (1965)
(26920) 5.00 Sessions of the Heart (1993)
(75643) 7.00 Guarding Teels (1995)
(59679) 9.00 The Sharrahank Redemption (1994) (8530/765) 11.25 Sestoned and Satzaged (1993) (253633) 1.00am

and Listing (2000/1700) 11-25 Sections and Beitzged (1995) (259853) 1.00em (1994) (259853) 1.00em (1994) (25985) 2.40 First to Fight (1997) (25985) 4.20 Adolf Hiller; sky Part in His Downfall (1972) (259850) 8.00pm Tight Lines ($108659) 9.00 Trans World Sport ($11123) 10.00 Geelic Gemes B181982) 11.00 Powerboat and Jetski Morid (6281494) 11.20-1.00em Bobby Charton's Footbat Scapbook (5793914) THE MOVIE CHANNEL

Nay Affair (1837) (34465456) 12.00 Terre-ion at Table Rock (1956) (3324) 2.00pm To Be or Not to Be (1942) (8376) 4.00 Three Ninjes Kick Back (1894) (349) 8.00 Young Indiana Jones and the Hollywood Follies (1995) (2473630) 7.40 US Top 10 (28729) (3.00 Behe (1995) (30830) 9.30 The Movie Show (8789) 10.00 Maried's Wedding (1994) (67829) 1.1.50 Emmarates V (1996) (77929) 1.19mm Deal of the Century (1983) (402234) 2.85 Dyscuta Hes Rison Boyn the Grave (1965) (940673) 4.30 SKY MOVIES GOLD 6.00pm Thumber Bay (1953) (2402340) 8.00 Children of a Lesser God (1966) (2414165) 1000 Committee of War (1969) (4945383) 12.00 Per Senetary (1969) (5170050) 1.455m The Pope of processing the control of the control o

Greenwich Villege (1984) (854) 3.45-5.15 The First Travelling Salesi (1988) (5142234) TNT . B.00pm Four Eyes and Six Guzs (1982) (87829630) 11.00 Despetts Trail (1994) (96630494) 12.35mm Treasure of the Sierze Madre (1948) (89100645) 2.45 Tribula to a Baid Marr (1956) (97005499)

SKY SPORTS 1 7.00em Sports Certre (75630) 7.30 Wres-thing (34949) 8.30 Racing News (95920) 9.00 Sports Certre (85272) 9.30 Asrakas Cr Style (25582) 10.00 Full Throthe (3524) 10.30 European Tour Magazine (82456) 11.00 Cricket: Kent v Lescestershite - Live 17.00 Cricket - Live (128456) 8.00 Spors Criter (3727) 8.30 Powerbost and Justic World (20)7, 7.00 Formula Three (85459) 8.00 World of Super Léague with Eddis and Seno (98820) 18.50 Sports Centre (49415) 10.30 Big Shots (70017) 11.30 Fight Lines (89578) 12.30am Sports Centre (34055) 1.00 Trans World Sport (99499) 2.00-2.30 Sports Centre (89003) SKY SPORTS 2

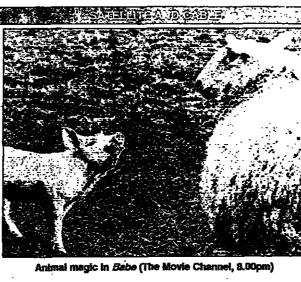

SKY SPORTS 3

12.00 Big Shots (10190524) 1.00pm

tle (52905456) 3.30 Equestranism Spruce Meadows (73431017) 4.30 Futbol Mundal (19315901) 5.00 Wreating (52829036) 5.00 Inside the PGA Tour (19336494) 6.30 Golf: FA Premier Leegue Classic (45378833) 8.00 Golf: LPGA Jamie Farr Kroger Classic (87827901) 9.00-11.30 Golf: Deposit Gueranly Golf Classic — Live (13333949) (19315901) 5.00 Whe EUROSPORT 7.30em Equestisation (2017) 9.30 Wheel-as Magazine (57388) 9.00 Tour De Frence (53611) 10.00 Athetics: Nice IAAF Grand Pitz (55017) 11.00 Rowing: World Cup (5525) 12.00 Powerman (31104) 12.30pm Freeride Magazine (28745) 1.06 Mountain Bilong: Downhill World Cup (76369) 1.90 Tour De France (51307) 3.30 Athletics: Nice WAF Grand Prix (50552) 4.30 Tennis: Mercedes Cup (98307) 6.00 Strongman (36765) 7.00 Footbalt: IFK Gothenburg v Learnool—Live (8652) 9.00 Boxing, John

Liverpool — Live (80562) 8.00 Basing, John John Molina v Biss Cuiroz (64275) 10.00 Fitness (52433) 11.00 Seiling (44611) 11.30-12.30etb Fernang (74746) UK GOLD 7.00em Animal Magic (6425833) 7.35 Neighbours (6928611) 8.00 Crossroads (6277681) 8.25 EastEnders (7452543) 9.00 The Bill (4200340) 9.30 Sheley (6744253) 10.00 Tellystack (1973659) 10.30 The Sullystas (4206524) 11.00 Bergerac (49038920) 12.05pm Crossroads (61555475) 12.30 Neighbours (8755369) (81555475) 12.30 Neighbours (8755369) 1.00 EastEnders (5486104) 1.35 No Place Like Home (5271369) 2.15 The Liver Birds (2885620) 2.50 it An't Half Hot, Murn (4558497 3.30 The Bil (5878340) 4.00 Boon (1612727) 5.00 Casuelly (56768476) 6.05 EastEnders (805272) 8.40 Sykes (7841562) 7.20 Dr Who: The Android Invasion. (5074340) 7.50 George and Invasion. (5074340) 7.50 George and Mached (4241807) 8.20 Hi-De-Hi (8838475) 9.00 The Bill (1601811) 9.38 Chancer (28509122) 19.35 Neked Video (2091524) 11.15 Live of Jongleurs (173653) 11.45 Gold Goes Pop (1124811) 12.30mm t's a Knockout (1429296) 1.20 Bg Deal (422275) 2.15 Shapping (2876499)

GRANADA PLUS 6.00mm tine Box (1156727) 7.09 Corona-tion St (5196551) 7.30 Families (7233369) 8.00 Surprisel Surprisel (4653185) 9.00 Dempsey and Makapeace (5600765) 10.00 Gardia Touch (5338730) 11.08 London's Dempsey (1698073) 49 no Commission S

(4910746) 12.30pm Families (8062907) 1.00 Two's Company (1633122) 1.30 The Beauthof Home Show (9412348) 2.00 Supprisel Surprise! (9822494) 3.00 Gentle Touch (550746) 4.00 Dempsey and Makepeane (5609253) 5.00 London's Burning (1504475) 6.00 Families (6485291) 6.30 (136008) 8.00 Dempsey and Malapeace (1379746) 9.00 Coronalion SI (5638765) 9.30 The Wheelsppers and Shunters Social

6,00em Dumbo's Circus (62766) 6.30 Feene Tale Thesine (16494) 7.30 Little Membal (7145036) 7.55 Timon and Pumbaa (6005562) 8.10 Goof Troop (4495307) 9.00 Tale Spin (6762253) 9.25 Alacidin (6804036) 10.15 Mighty Dudes (3803307) 11.00 Boy Meets World (5142272) 11.26 Wonder Years (1308776) 11.30 Timon and Pumbos (4411543) 12.05pm Borkers (1969611) 12.30 Microscopic Millon (3659362) 12.26 Big Gernge (3599301) 12.60 Sing Me a Story (996901) 1.15 Amazing Animals (53351765) 1.40 Wander-land (21730982) 2.05 Sines Stories

2.40 Care Beers (7926630) 3.00 Little Mermaid (486991) 3.25 Timon and Pumbas (6289814) 3.40 Tale Spin (5381307) 4.30 Chooseday (3543) 5.00 Abadin (4510543) 5.25 Timon and Pumbas (5802727) 6.35 Mighty Ducks (235982) 6.00 Fisch Forward (4006) 6.30 Boy Mods Model (5989) 7.00 Emblety Line (2185) World (3388) 7.00 Brothery Love (2185) 7.30 FiLM: Who Framed Roger Rabbit (9598543) 9.05 Deve's World (480272) 9.30-10.00 Golden Gels (79494)

8,00mm Three Little Ghosts (5863901) 6.30 Inspector Gadget (6001920) 7:00 Semural Pizza Cata (6952611) 7:30 Power Rangers Zeo (6911745) 8:00 Bestleborgs (8705185) 8:30 Crosadoo (8704456) 9:00 Rimbo's Island (6549291) 9:20 Magic Box (9807494) 9.45 Dudley the Dragon (2326340) 10.05 Rimba's Island (7542727) 10.25 Magic Box Remba's Island (7542727) 10.25 Major Box (5402456) 11.00 Jin Jin (6823814) 11.30 Proceiro (6824543) 12.00 Inspector Gad-gel (8708272) 12.20pm VR Troopers (18752164) 12.50 Power Rangers Zeo (5827140) 1.10 Bestiborgs (12244814) 1.30 Estil (9747901) 2.00 Ulti with Louis (1400217) 2.30 Crocarioo (5438475) 3.00 Gadgel Boy (2955302) 3.30 Eeld (5433820) 4.00 Life with Louis (5429727) 4.30 Power

6,00am izropoud (35611) 6.30 Denger-mouse (49340) 7.00 Denns the Menace (87098) 7.30 Where's Wally (99833) 8.00 Betman (32475) 8.30 An Atlack (95340) 9.30 Earthworn Jim (68386) 10.00 9.30 Earthworm Jim (66388) 10.00 Gravedale High (63920) 10.30 Flash Gordon (11882) 11.00 Creepy Crawlers (20348) 11.30 Cadillacs and Dinosaurs (20348) 11.30 Cadillacs and Dinosaus (70807) 12.00 Grevetale High (35562) 12.30pm Sturi Davys (62104) 1.00 Bat-man (86389) 1.30 Dangermous (61473) 2.00 Creepy Czawiers (4543) 2.30 Flash Gordon (6253) 3.00 Sonc (3678) 3.30 Earthworm Jim (808) 4.00 Denils the 1025 Cadillack (6017) CARTOON NETWORK

Non-step cartoons from 5.00em to 9.00pm Includes Torn and Jerry. Popeye NICKELODEON

6.00mm Dr Seuss (20765) 6.30 Will Quack Quack etc. (42814) 7.00 Baber (73272) 7.30 Cryptiesper (92307) 8.00 Jurnarii (94291) 8.30 Hey Amoldi (9352) 9.00 Rugesis (84814) 9.30 Rugrus (20104) 10.00 Doug (65494) 10.30 Asahhi Reel Monsters (80098) 11.00 Rocko (65104) 11.30 Ren and Stompy (66633) 12.00 Pete and Pete (99936) 12.30pcm Clanssa (24920) 1.00 Alex Mack (72543) 1.30 Round the Twist (23291) 2.00 Baley Kupper (3659) 2.30 Lutted Pet Shop (3340) 3.00 Sacker Around (5494) 3.30 Brune the Nd (5186) 4.00 Hey Amold! (7920) 4.30 Rugrats (3104) 5.00 Sieter Sister (7611) 5.30 Sister Stater (4456) 6.00 Moestha (1369) 6.30-7.00 Are You Quack etc (42814) 7.00 Baber (73272) 7.30

TROUBLE Ready or Not (8773765) 1.00 Mad (877)233 1.30 Seept Valley High (877)2039 2.00 Swan's Crossing (2773727) 2.30 No Naked Flames (989)291) 3.00 Byter Grove (2785562) 3.30 Hangime (980)3035) 4.80 Californie Dreams (8082543) 4.00 California Dresma (8082543) 4.30 Saved by the Bet (8088727) 5.00 Sweet Valley High (2797807) 5.30 Ready or Not (8002307) 6.00 Hangtime (8092920) 6.30 Madison (8883272) 7.00 Saved by the Bet (2777843) 7 28.0

8.00pm Twilight Zone (2786291) 8.30 Monsters. (2772098) 9.00 LA Heat (8310833) 10.00 Tour of Duty (8313820) 11.00 FELLE: The Flend (7732017) 1.00pm LA Heat (4218128) 2.00 Tour of Duty (5863505) 3.00 FILM: Adventures of

7.00pm Roseanne (7475) 7.30 Family Ties (4833) 8.00 E UK (6123) 8.30 Wings (5630) 9.00 Cheers (45349) 9.30 Cybii (11456) 10.00 Frasier (49497) 10.30 Gerry Shanding (81727) 11.00 We Know Where You Live (57185) 11.30 We Know Where You Live (57185) 11.30 Vacant Lot (62678) 12.00 Soap (18296) 12.30mm Lawren and Shriny (34037) 7.00 Cheers (51873) 1.30 Oxidi (90050) 2.00 E UK (16175) 2.30 We Know Where You Live (17760) 3.00 Frasier (71437) 3.30-4.00 Wings (58352)

THE SCHOL CHANNEL 1.00em Twilgit Zone (8476234) 1.30 One Step Beyond (2377986) 2.00 Friday 13th (9448025) 3.00 Dark Shedows (8433050) HOME & LEISURE

9.00am The Joy of Painting (4208982) 9.30 Garden Calendar (8775123) 10.00 Garden Cuto (1964901) 10.30 Creftwise (4237494) 11.00 Room for interovement (1629017) 11.36 Sweet Things (1620745) 12.00 Julia Child (4226746) 12.30pm Hometime (8746611) 1.00 This Old House (9450369) 1.30 New Yarkee Workshop (8745982) 2.00 Tool Box (2779901) 2.30 Driving Pass ons (9804765) 3.00 Daving Pass (2799096) 2.30 Roadiumner (9876962) DISCOVERY

4.00pm Dangerzone (9695017) 4.30 Am-bulance! (9684901) 5.00 Connections 2 (9896746) 7.00 Invention (2780017) 7.30 Time Travellers (9885630) 8.00 Science Trie Italianis (1903/543) 9.00 Fightine (1609253) 9.30 Ultimete Thril Rules (6706475) 10.00 New Detectives (6226494) 11.00 Professoriais (9460745) 12.00 State of Alert (1999857) 12.30am Ambulance (9178505) 1.00 Time Travellers (4265878) 1.30-2.00 Connections 2 (7792498) THE HISTORY CHANNEL

4.00pm Life and Times of Mounthotten

CHALLENGE TV Win with Prize Time twice an hour

7.40 Give Us A Clue (133122) 8.20 All Clued Up (153920) 9.00 Through the Keyhole (494475) 9.35 Sale of the Century (389104) 10.10 Treasure Hunt (846272) 11.20 Studs (346272) 12.00 Winner Takes All (89706) 12.30cm Hunt to Hert (30147) 1.30 Sweet Justice (33012) 2.30 African 3.30 Big Brother Jake (57302) 4.00 The Fall Guy (83505) 5.00 Shopping (79741) UK LIVING 7.00em Tiny Living (36276543) 9.05 A Woman Celled Smith (4321104) 9.18 Gor-don Elliott (3641369) 10.06 Jeny Springer (3611833) 11.00 Young and Restless (3886388) 11.50 Brookeide (8542494) 12.25pm Why Me? (70180104) 12.55 Tempesti (4640036) 1.40 Rolonda

(2153253) 2.30 Agony (5618475) 3.00 Live at Three (90102456) 4.05 Jerry Springer (8485543) 5.05 Lingo (57364562) 5.30 Ludy Ladders (5612291) 6.00 I Dream of Jeanne (7343340) 6.35 Ready, Steedy, Cook (2459949) 7.05 Hearts Afire (7503389) 7.35 Brookside (1270814) 8.05 Rolonda (9521611) 9 00 Fil Mr Pa 7.00em Jaagran 7.30 ZEE Presents 8.00 Gaane Anjaane 8.25 Ek Nazar 8.30 Bus-ness 9.00 Janm Daata 9.30 Vijitna Chamke Motina 10.00 Almobi 11.00 Aashana 11.30 Benegi Apri Baat 12.00 Dastaan 12.30pm Raahai 1.00 FiLM 4.00 ZEE Zone 4.05 ZEE Top. 10 $.00 Zone Time 5.25 Dada Dadi Ku Kahani 6.00 Sony Meri Lony 6.25 Ek Nazar

6.30 ZEE and You 7.00 Your Zindagi 7.00 Cinomogic 8.00 News 8.35 Andaz 9.05 Jaal 9.30 Hasretain 10.00 ZEE Presents 10.30 Yaadon ki Barast 11.00 Mano Ya Na Mano 11.30 Antakshar reviews and five concert footage

The video hits channel. Classic rock and

BRYANT'S EYE 43

Why Black deserved better from Britain's athletics selectors

CRICKET 44-45

Smith bowls himself back into reckoning for England place

THURSDAY JULY 17 1997

Champion well-equipped to make strong defence of his title at Royal Troon

Lehman heads list of the Open minded

By JOHN HOPKINS, GOLF CORRESPONDENT

TOM LEHMAN buttoned his rain jacket up to his chin and buried his head in its water-proof folds. His friendly face peered out from beneath a tweed cap. The eyes of the Open champion danced, in contrast to a predecessor of whom it was once said that he laughed, but not with his eves. Lehman, at Troon on the eve of the 126th Open Championship, looked at home, at ease. in control and beloved.

As well he might. Lehman begins the defence of the title he won at Royal Lytham and St Annes with almost everything in apple pie order and swept along on a wave of support from the Scots that threatens to wash him down onto the beach and out into the murky waters of the Firth of Clyde. The Scots have not taken an American to their hearts in such unrestrained fashion since Tom Watson donned a tam-o'-shanter here in 1982 to mark his fourth Open victory in Scotland.

There is some symmetry in this because no one since Watson in 1983 has had as good a chance of repeating their victory in the Open as Lehman has now.

As Lehman demonstrated so clearly last week in winning the Gulfstream World Invitational, he is playing near his best, though the challenge presented by an inland, American-style course, such as Loch Lomond, is dramatically different to that of Royal Troon, a traditional links if ever there was one and one that this week has been dampened by rain squalls and caressed by a wind that capriciously alters its angle of attack from southwest to northwest.

CHAMPIONSHIP

In the past 12 months, Lehman, 38, has grown in confidence before one's eyes, adding both toughness and charm. This, in part, explains why he has achieved more in his year as Open champion and been deflected less by the minutiae and avarice than thing about winning a big championship is it gives you a lot of confidence that you can win more big tournaments," Lehman said. The confidence gained from winning the Open has made me a better player. I have learnt about myself, working out where I can improve, where I stand in the world of golf.

"I feel very confident," Leh-man continued. "My game is in good shape and the course is extremely good. If I play my best there are few who can beat me. If the wind continues to blow the same way, which I expect it will, it is going to take a lot of good, solid shotmaking to get round this course. I think those kind of things are to my advantage. I keep things under control pretty well. This is different golf. You can't get up and just bomb it all over

One story reveals why Lehman has been taken to the hearts of the Scots. Last October he flew over to Troon for a quick visit and was having dinner in a local restaurant. The proprietor asked if a photograph could be taken. "Don't bother about that." Lehman replied, "I've got one back in my room. I'll drop it

"No, no." said the restaurateur. "I'll send someone up to

'it's no trouble." Lehman said. That same evening a photograph, signed by Leh-man, was duly delivered to the restaurant - by Lehman himsell. Such generosity and humanity bore out what Jack Nicklaus said about his counperson and a wonderful player," Nicklaus said. "He has got a good balance between his golf game and his life. He is a very solid citizen."

The enticing prospect before the Open is that there are more good players at the peak of their form than at any time since the thrilling last round at Sandwich four years ago. Whetting the appetite even more is the fact that the examination will be as much ment in the United States; substantial presences in golf, of their technical skill as of Lehman; and Tiger Woods. 6ft 3in and 15st of goodtheir character and resolve golfer of the next decade. Do Not only must they cope with the difficulties of the most not overlook Nick Price, nor fearsome inward nine holes on the Open rota but, with time for a decade is not the leading home contender. luck, they will be buffeted by a wind and battered by rain There could be no better way showers. An Open should test for him to celebrate his fortieth The names one would expect are all there: Ernie Els, the US Open champion, Colin Montgomerie, who is in the Open on Sunday. form of his life and hoping to end his lamentable Open record: Greg Norman, who

WILL assuredly be ured determin God-given talent, "When Ernie came along I thought he was the most talented one I'd doubt the determination of Nick Faldo, who for the first seen for a long time and I still birthday tomorrow, and his entry into formal middle age. than by winning a fourth

Eight years after Els appeared in his first Open as a 122st teenager, he has matured into one of the most think he's as talented as anybody," Nicklaus said. "But Tiger, I mean, good gracious. At 21, he's got so much time. I think he is a very special young man with special values and dedication and if ing to embrace him. anybody's going to exceed my record in major championships, I cannot see anybody else on the horizon that could do that."

ly. Though he has won seven when he won the Masters. though he has had difficulty in reading the greens. This Open will test him fully and by Sunday one may see precisely what Lehman meant when he said of his young countryman: Tiger is mentally very strong. I don't see a lot ruffling his feathers. People here are wait-.

was at Augusta in the spring.

Nonetheless, victory by Woods over such a stellar field, while possible, is unlike-

Woods has prepared thor- tournaments as a professionoughly and is reported to be al. Woods has not triumphed over such a course as this when competing against a field as strong.

What would be really exc ing would be for all the guy who are supposedly on goodform to be still in good form on Sunday," Lehman said, a remark that every golf enthusiast would wholeheartedly endorse. "That doesn't happen very often. It would be really exciting to be part of it on

1

100

4.7

. . 20 AZ

Z.COM

Company of

No R. D

100

The .

To a Particular

Company of

- 10

- Jan 19

1945. SEC.

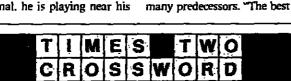

The Actual

Z - Verilla

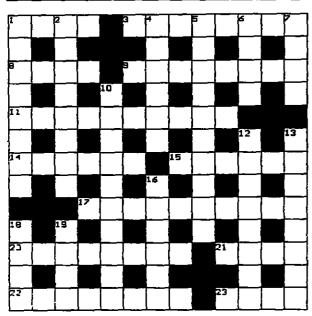

÷ ing.

Faldo's fears, page 43 Pavin in crisis, page 43

Sunday.

No 1148 in association with BRITISH MIDLAND

ACROSS

- String: wood measure (4)
- 3 Minc host (8) 8 Plucked instrument; pipe sealant (4)
- 9 Raw veg. starter (8)
- 11 Tacit permission (10) 14 Celtic language (6)
- 15 Give sharp blow; sound
- (hour) (6) 17 China expert (10)
- 20 Closing scene, chapter (8) 21 Advise of danger (4)
- 22 Unient: ironing (8) 23 Terrorist group (4)
- DOWN
- Pilot's identification (4.4)
- 2 (Treaty) approved (S)
- 5 Devotion (to) (10)
- 7 Evening twilight (4) 10 Apt, well-expressed (10)
- 12 Make less harsh (8) 13 One on guard (S)
- 16 Duke of Bedford seat (6)
- 18 Ocze (4) 19 A tree: long (4)

British Midland The Airline for Europe

PRIZES: THE WINNER will receive a return ticket travelling Economy Class to anywhere on British Midland's domestic or international

THE RUNNER-UP will receive a return ticket to anywhere on British THE MUNICIPACY will receive a return accer to anywhere on chash Midland offers an extensive range of destinations throughout the UK as well as Europe and has now added daily tights from Heathrow to Copenhagen. Oslo, Gothenburg. Cotogne and Rome. With over 1,500 flights a week to 20 European destinations British Midland is the Airline for Europe.

A" flights are subject to availability:

Post your entry to Times Two Crossword. PO Box 6886, London E2 8SP to arrive by next Monday. The winners' names and solution will appear on Wednesday.

SOLUTION TO NO 1147 ACROSS: 1 Database 5 Scut 9 Bromide 10 Zaire 11 Spat 12 Realise 14 Rocket 16 Agreed 19 Gazette 21 Sawn 24 Agnes 25 Abridge 26 Tier 27 Black Rod DOWN: 1 Debt 2 Troop 3 Brittle 4 Sherry 6 Cuisine 7 The bends 8 Ezra 13 Fragrant 15 Cézanne 17 Gastric 18 Recall 20 Task 22 Wader 23 Mend

- 07.35; P Blackmar (US) J Spence S McCerron (US) 07.45: N Sato Dapan) P McGellev B Watts

Great Botain and Ireland unices stated

07.15; *S Webster A Cabrera (Arg.) C

07.25: T Putter (US), R Boroll W Westrer

- 07:55: R. Godden (SA) S. Torrance P. Starkowski (US)
 08:05: P. Lonard (Aus), *C. Warson, J. Maggert (US)
- 08.15, L. Westwood, S. Stricker (US) G. Norman (Aus)
- 08.25: P-U Johansson (Swe), S. Mon (Japan), J. Nicklaus (US)
- 06.35: C Montgomeno T Waston (JS) M. McMatty (Zim)
- 09.45: A Russell, F Courses (US), E

MY AGENDA was set before

- 08.55, A Coltan, M Calcavacchia (US), D

09,05; " Woesnam, R Alertoy (Aus) P. Street visi 09.15 & CMeera (US), 5 Managama (1957), A (196 (925, 75,000 Den) (100k (105) S Ames 09.35; J.M. Olazzbai (Sp.: Tikze (US), N.

Ozak wapen) CSAS P Broadmirth, J Leonard (US) W R ey Aus.

won his most recent tourna-

all aspects.

- 09.55; Joseph Ger Verder (Frink Roberts (US)), Sending Australia
- 10.05. Diume (LS. S Baverberos (Sp. H Mysee Japan) 10.15: Baver-From Aust R Claydon, R Tasy (LS) 10.25; F McFarere W Andrade (US), M
- 16.35 A Mages (US) P Curry, J Cooper 10.45, F. Cure US: S Bottomey, F f Taylor
- 10.56° A Samplacel, S Clark, B McGovern 11.05° Paymesy Fr., J Philips, D Tapping 11.15° Philips (See, T Gogete (Gert, C Perr, 125°

Ten months ago, a heavily pregnant Tracey Capstick was left behind to look after the family when her husband,

Jim. gave up his job to join the BT Global Challenge. He returned yesterday after sailing round the world. Before going to meet him, Tracey's husbands work away for long periods will testify, there is a feelings were mixed . . .

TODAY'S TEE-OFF TIMES 11.25: J Kemohan (US), G Ghel (India), P Hinton 11.35: W Bladen, A Crerar, P Haugsrud

- 11.45: " S Young, G Oir D A Russell 11.55: D Hart (US), I Gamdo (Sp.), M. Bradley (US) 12.06: C Strange (US), J Lomes, E Bs (SA) 12.15: D Ediund (Swe), J Funyk (US), Y Kandro (Japan)
- 12.25: D Clarke, S Jones (US). F Notifo 12.35: M James, M Weebe (US), C Paver (US)
- 13.05: T Woods (US), B Langer (Ger), S 13.15: P Hammgton, M Brooks (US), C Parry

13.25; M.A. Martin (So), T (Jehman (US), V

13.35; P Macholl, C Stadler (US), D Frost

Lehman was in confident mood after he had practised on the eve of the Open at Troon yesterday. Photograph: Marc Aspland

- (SA).  Banks, C. Saker (US), b Problems, SA).

 13.45; P. Azanger (US),  D. Okszon (Swe); G. Player (SA).

 13.55; N. Pakio, T. Tobes (US), N. Price (Zm).

 14.05; M. A. Jimenez (Sp), D. Duval (US), G. Turner (NZ).

 14.15; P. Hedblom (Swe), J. Haas (US), Kim Jong-Cuck (S. Kor).

 14.25; A. Cojka (Gen), P. Mickelson (US), S. Applietoy (Aus.).

 14.35; R. Darmon (US), P. Baker, R. Davis (Aus.).
- 14.45: P O'Mastry (Aus), "B Howard, J
- Payme
 14.55; G Brand Jr, G Day (US), C Mason
 15.05; P Fulle (Swn), J Kelly, "J Miller
 15.15; M Bradley, P Teravalnen (US), S
 Duritap (US)
 15.25; M Miller, G Murphy, M Mamat (Sing)
 15.36; I, Barchelor, K Enlesson (Swo), C
 Clark 15.45; R Jacquelin (Fr), G Dodd (Aus), J Smenkamer (Hnill)

Champagne on ice at Rover's return

Jim left to have a baby, to take the children. Stephen. 11. Christopher, eight, and Georgia, nine months, to New Zealand and Australia and to complete the last term of my college course with a good enough grade to take my place in the history department of Royal Holloway and Bedford University this September. Last week I came up for air, only to be submerged again under the tide of moving house. The imminent arrival of liberation in being left the day-to-day business of raising a family under this type of Ocean Rover and Jim's return has brought some trepidation. separation. Our family life After experiences of his arrivhas changed: the primary al in Wellington and Sydney. relationships are now between myself and the child-I am only too aware that after our initial reunion, wife and ren. I make the decisions. family will be sidelined in When the television broke favour of beer and seamen's down it gave me great pleasure not to have it mended for camaraderie. On both previthree weeks and I only did it ous occasions, after a long then because Jim. who is a and tiring night, the children and I returned to our hotel television addict, was due without our prize, who joined us some hours later, somewhat worse for wear, I felt more anger than I realised was possible then, but such is the nature of this beast, the

As many women whose

BT Global Challenge.

home from Cape Town. I have gained the greatest respect for Stephen and Christopher. We travelled for almost four months following the Challenge, often in difficult circumstances. I watched them cope in a variety of where I was the only security they had. When I look back on the Challenge there will be little reference to yachts racing around the world against prevailing winds. My children's achievements probably take priority.

In some respects we have all paid a high price, both financially and emotionally. The financial cost has been much greater than anticipated, including the additional costs of Jim's flights home almost as soon as he got into port, but at the time his need to return was paramouni. With support from family and friends. I held fast at the helm and enjoyed being cap-tain of my own ship. It will be difficult to relinquish control. In many ways, Jim and I have both had to become insular to survive. He left us and bears the guilt. I held the fort and excelled at the task. Like many other wives and girlfriends. I have found a new way of life. I was aware this might happen. Now I hope for infinite patience until we are back on line as a family.

I should feel great pride in my husband's achievements, especially as I am fully aware of his personal suffering during the race, but last week I watched my son play his saxophone in a school concert. I knew he was petrified and really did not want to do it. but he performed well and I know he did it for me and his music teacher, not for his own satisfaction. I was overcome with intense pride and I hope for the same intensity of emotion over the next couple of days. To date, this pride has sadly cluded me. The question is: would I let Jim do it again? Yes, provided I don't have to foot the bill. And don't bore me with the details — just ring me when you get in.

Fleet returns, page 46

حلدًا منه الأصل